

In Our House

By Arthur Mayse

From the tone and content of certain back-bench growls from the government side this week, it becomes plain that in spite of Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's assurances, at least a few Soc-red private members feel provincial grants to municipalities could be more generous.

On Wednesday afternoon, with most cabinet seats empty, Revelstoke S.C. Arvid W. Lundell leaped heels-first into what shows signs of becoming a minor insurrection.

"I think," said Mr. Lundell, "the paternalistic attitude of the provinces—this province included—which lay down a policy for the municipalities and say in effect, 'Take it and like it,' is not consistent with good government."

"I want to say I do not think the municipalities are receiving their fair share, considering the affluent conditions under which we live."

This mouthful, loosed by Mr. Lundell with a conviction which would draw buzzsaws from a UBCM convention was vigorously applauded by a decimated opposition.

(When the cat's away, the mice will play: everyone who could shove off early, including the premier, was scurrying to the testimonial dinner laid on for Mr. Bennett in Vancouver.)

There are in our House, members who blow the big bassoon so fervently in support of government ways and works that they overlook the folks at home.

Mr. Lundell is not of that number. He spoke bravely and well for his constituency, pointing out how district saw-mills had been reduced from 12 to two by a forest management licence whose holders float their logs to a distant pulp mill.

Then there was the matter of highways; and here again Mr. Lundell pulled no punches.

"It was five years ago," he declared, "that Highways Minister Gagliardi promised if we elected a Social Credit member, he would commence work on our eastern access. Mr. Speaker, we are still waiting!"

Mr. Lundell was followed by fellow-Soc-red A. S. Matthews for Vancouver Centre, a veteran legislator who rose with the air of a man about to repair a pranged fender.

"This book," orated Mr. Matthews, with one hand on a pretty-bound export copy of the premier's budget speech, "shines like a star in the firmament of political annals!"

Earlier we were treated to a choice bit of fang-and-claw in which Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell charged that Liberal Harry McKay, while not an essentially wicked man, had short-circuited the judicial process with his Tuesday J'Accuse.

Up like a rocket flew NDP Anthony Gargrave to protest. "The minister," Mr. Gargrave asserted loud and clear, "is a pompous ass!"

Mr. Gargrave retracted on Speaker's order, and subsided to a smoulder.

It has been nice to listen while this or that Soc-red, Mr. Campbell included, has head-patted North Van Liberal Gordon Gibson for his praise of certain government achievements.

Wiser, I suggest, to fondle a grizzly, as these remarkably trusting gents may learn before Thursday has sped its course!

DISASTER HITS NORTH B.C. MINE

40 Buried by Glacier

FORTY MEN lie buried beneath a massive snow and ice slide in a mining camp built in this remote northern B.C. valley. This photograph, taken last

80 Survive At Granduc

STEWART, B.C. (CP)—Forty men were buried and between 80 and 90 survived today when a huge glacier slide tumbled down on a camp of the Granduc Mining Company in far northwestern British Columbia.

The site is about 30 miles north of this port community at the head of Portland Canal, some 100 miles north of the north coast city of Prince Rupert.

RCMP S. Sgt. Jack Duggan of the Prince Rupert RCMP detachment reported:

"The slide occurred at 10:16 a.m. (PST). It wiped out Portal Camp and buried 40 men. Some 80 to 90 survived."

"It is not known whether any of the survivors were injured."

A Dakota transport aircraft and a helicopter were ready to take off from the RCAF base at Comox on Vancouver Island as soon as possible. They would wait at Prince Rupert for improvement in weather conditions.

An appeal went out from Stewart to medical authorities at Ketchikan, Alaska, for more morphine—apparently to ease the pain of the injured.

Sgt. Duggan said that an 11-mile tunnel the Granduc Company was building from the mill site to its huge ore reserves was "sealed and it is believed there are men inside." This did not count the 40 buried.

Bulldozers and other heavy equipment were buried in the slide, so there appears to be no way to get through to those in the tunnel.

He said heavy snow was falling at the remote area and all planes are grounded at Prince Rupert and Annette Island. It was reported the U.S. Air Force was trying to send in a helicopter to the scene.

LOCATION of glacier slide at Stewart, B.C., near Alaska border, is indicated by arrow. Forty men are reported trapped. Stewart is 800 miles north of Vancouver.

QUEBEC MP BOLTS PCs AS REBUKE TO LEADER

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Remi Paul, Conservative member for Berthier-Maskinonge-Delanaudiere today left the Conservative party to sit as an independent in open rebellion to the leadership of John Diefenbaker.

Paul, a 43-year-old lawyer and strong supporter of Quebec Tory leader Leon Balcer, rose on a question of privilege at the opening of the House of Commons to announce the move he has threatened to make for several weeks.

Paul, speaking in English and French, said he was leaving not the Conservative party, "but the Diefenbaker party . . . which unfortunately is now controlled and directed by a single man."

HALL REPORT

Provincial Medicare Plans Urged

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The royal commission on health services recommended today that a universal prepaid medical care plan be operated in Canada on a province-by-province basis under federal co-ordination.

It called also for a set of provincial, regional and municipal advisory councils drawn from the medical profession and the general public to back up the 10 operating commissions.

The royal commission, in the second volume of its report to the federal government tabled in the Commons, said health services might vary from province to province, but the objective is "the best possible health care for all Canadians."

The changes that we envisage . . . are based on the maintenance of a close relationship between those who provide and those who receive health services, including freedom of choice on the part of the patient and of the physician."

The royal commission, headed by Mr. Justice Emmett Hall of the Supreme Court of Canada, recommended its comprehensive health services program for all Canadians in a 500,000-word first report last June 19.

The 135,000-word second report, completing a 45-month study of 385 briefs, outlined the machinery under which a universal plan might operate.

Operations would have their roots in regional and municipal agencies—perhaps similar to those already existing in doctors' joint practices and local health units. But the royal commission said it would not try to spell out how these local bodies should be organized.

A federal-provincial health ministers conference would meet at least once a year to discuss common health problems.

The federal health department would be shorn of its present welfare responsibilities and become a grant-making and consultative body, still responsible as now for drug information.

In its first report, the seven-member commission, appointed by the former Conservative government, outlined its proposed "health charter for Canadians" and rejected "state medicine."

Instead, the costs of the medical care program would be divided 50-50 by the federal and provincial governments. The federal share would be paid out of general tax revenues. The provincial share would be paid out of provincial taxes, a scale

ATTACKS CONTINUE . . .

U.S. to Press Bomb Raids on N. Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States evidently has decided to strike military targets in North Viet Nam without waiting for specific attacks by Communist forces in South Viet Nam against which to retaliate. This is understood to be the meaning of President Johnson's statement Wednesday on Vietnamese war policy.

The president spoke of "continuing aggression" by the Communists and "continuing actions" by the United States. He said:

"We must all understand that we will persist in the defence of freedom, and our continuing actions will be those which are justified and those that are made necessary by the continuing aggression of others. These actions will be measured and fitting and adequate."

The U.S. objective in striking at bases in the north is to convince the Communist leaders in North Viet Nam that they cannot win the war in the south except at the risk of destruction of their own country.

Talks scheduled

Possible peaceful settlement of the long guerrilla conflict was foremost among the topics expected to be discussed here by French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville in talks with President Johnson, State Secretary Rusk, and Defence Secretary McNamara.

The French diplomat arrived

Word Flashed By PWA Operator

First word of the tragedy was flashed by a radio operator employed by Pacific Western Airlines at the glacier strip at the campsite.

Radio man Innis Kelly just had time to tell his PWA headquarters in Prince Rupert of the slide before his radio tower apparently crashed to the ground.

He said "several" men were believed trapped by the snow but nothing further was heard from him.

A report was relayed to RCAF Air Sea Rescue in Vancouver and it said between 40 and 50 men were believed trapped in the avalanche.

RCMP, army and provincial government officials were advised of the slide at the big copper property and the tragedy it brought.

Robert Baker, general manager of Granduc in Vancouver, confirmed that 40 men were unaccounted for out of 150 working at the site.

He said the slide knocked out the cookhouse and covered a considerable portion of the portal to the tunnel.

Mr. Baker said the U.S. Coast Guard at the Annette Island base, which is socked in by snow and low visibility, was standing by with quantities of food and blankets. Evacuation would proceed as soon as weather permits, he said.

Dr. Vesey Stewart was in the camp at the time of the avalanche and he and a first aid man, O. Moore, treated those who were injured in the slide but escaped.

U.S. Library Stormed By Indonesia Rioters

JAKARTA (AP)—Some 700 Communist-led demonstrators stormed the U.S. consulate in Medan, Sumatra, today and tried to seize the American library on the ground floor.

The mob tore down the American flag in the consulate yard, raised the Indonesian flag and pulled down the U.S. shield over the front door.

U.S. Consul Theodore Heavner reported that he called the police as soon as the demonstrators appeared and the police arrived 45 minutes later. He said the police evicted the demonstrators from the library with some difficulty.

No Showdown, Says Adlai

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson predicted today that the United Nations General Assembly would avoid a U.S.-Soviet showdown, conclude action on essential business and adjourn this afternoon until September.

A similar demonstration was held in Jakarta Monday, and the semi-official national front seized the American cultural centre and library. The Indonesian government said Wednesday it was taking over supervision of the centre.

It involved a long series of commands to make the spacecraft twist around in space and fire a direction-changing rocket for 39 seconds, enough to change the spacecraft's course by more than 1,600 miles.

In a 13-minute, 40-second period before crash-landing on the moon's east-central portion, Ranger VIII's six television cameras are to snap more than 4,000 pictures of the surface.

The colonel's complaint was reported by Hanoi radio, which said the commando boats were met with answering fire from the shore "by the local armed forces."

Lau protested the attack in a message sent to Indian Ambassador N. A. Rahman, chairman of the ICC. Canada and Poland are the other members.

The broadcast said the raiders headed south and "were intercepted by patrol boats of the navy of the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam, which damaged two of them."

Johnson said earlier this month he hoped to visit Moscow this year and that Soviet leaders would go to the United States. A Washington report at the time said the two nations had been in high-level contact to work out details of the exchange of visits.

HALL REPORT

of premiums, or even possibly from profits of lotteries.
Patients would be charged $1 for each pharmaceutical prescription. In its second report

Won't Change Forecast of Costs

The Hall commission said its new recommendations will not appreciably change the forecast of costs in its first report.
Last June, it said the present health bill will grow to an estimated $4,015,000,000 in 1971 and the cost of the pre-paid medical care plan would add an additional $466,000,000 a year.
For the individual, this means $20 a year more than the $178 the royal commission forecasts he would spend on health in 1971 if a health plan were not adopted.

Mr. Justice Hall was chief justice of Saskatchewan when he was appointed chairman of the commission June 20, 1961. After commission hearings were completed, he was named to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Other commission members: Dr. D. M. Baltzan of Saskatoon, O. F. Firestone of Ottawa, Alice M. Gird of Montreal, Dr. C. L. Strachan of London, Ont., Dr. Arthur F. Van Wart of Fredericton and Mr. Wallace McCutcheon. Mr. McCutcheon resigned from the commission the commission rejected proposals that, in addition to premiums which some provinces might collect, a patient should be charged a token payment for medical services.

When he was appointed to the Senate and the cabinet in 1962, the commissioners said in a foreword to the new report they are pleased with steps some provinces have already taken towards preparing for pre-paid medical care.

"Time is of the essence in the development of certain health services such as the implementation of crash programs for the education and training of health personnel.
"We visualize that full implementation of the program may take seven years so that by 1971, Canadians would have all the health services which scientific genius and human skill can create."

The royal commission's goal throughout has been "the best possible health care for all Canadians."

It emphasized that in health care, primary responsibility rests with the provinces. Its plan was fully compatible with recent trends in federal-provincial relations, including the principle of provinces opting-out from shared cost programs.

More Education, Research Needed

But additional measures were needed in education and research. There should be many more teachers of general practice medicine, more pharmacists in the Atlantic area, improved library facilities at research institutions, and increased health sciences research grants.

Every province should also have a committee planning para-medical education—covering the fields of psychology, dietetics, therapy, radiology, electrocardiography, prosthetics, and the like.

There should be provincial laws governing the qualifications and licensing of dispensing opticians. Contact lenses should be sold only on prescription by an ophthalmologist.

The commission also said provinces should enact laws setting standards for training and qualifications of ambulance staff and for licensing ambulance services. Services should be efficiently organized on a regional or community basis.

The federal Vocational Rehabilitation and Disabled Persons Act, passed in 1961, should be widened in its application by removing its restriction to vocational rehabilitation.

Administer and Operate Schemes

The provincial health services commissions would be the bodies administering and operating the pre-paid medical services, making grants for development work, negotiating fee schedules and ensuring the orderly development of the program.

The advisory councils would recommend new activities, program development, personnel and facility requirements, and attractions to medical practice recruits.

Provincial health services commissions and health planning councils would report to provincial health departments, which would be responsible for public health grants, training grants, and the traditional public health functions of provincial departments.

At the apex in Ottawa there would be the federal department of health, the Health Planning Council of Canada, the Health Sciences Research Council, the federal-provincial health services co-ordinating committee, and finally, the federal-provincial health ministers conference.

The royal commission predicted a larger but changing role for volunteer organizations under the program. It recommended that they participate in the work of the planning councils.

The commission also proposed a new rehabilitation agency in the federal government, embracing facilities of the Unemployment Insurance Commission and health, welfare, labor and veterans affairs departments.

A national advisory council on the rehabilitation of disabled persons including representatives of provincial governments and volunteer agencies as well as the medical profession, would work with the new agency.

"We have come to the conclusion that in order to make the best possible health services available to all Canadians, we must abandon the haphazard and piecemeal approach of the past," the report said.

It added: "Although it is vital for good health care that services be co-ordinated, it is not possible or desirable to specify in detail how co-ordination should be carried out. What is required is that it be extended to all areas of Canada and that physicians, hospitals, public health authorities, and voluntary agencies everywhere participate in the development of co-ordinated programs."

The multiplicity of appeals now raised the danger of public apathy unless assurance were given that donations were being used in the most effective way.

Throughout its second report as it did in its first—the royal commission emphasizes that traditional doctor-patient relationships must remain unaltered.

"No profession is nationalized; no professional person is turned into a state employee. No practitioner is coerced into working in a specific region or occupation or prevented from practising his profession in accordance with his training, experience and professional ethics."

"Indeed what we have recommended in the area of medical care is a continuation and an expansion of the medical care prepayment plans operating on a service contract basis that have been developed so successfully by Canadian physicians and those associated with them."

Planes need 6,000-foot ceiling to fly in the area but cannot do so today because of 70 mph winds.

However, a rescue team is being sent in by cat road. Granduc Mines last year announced a $55,000,000 development employing hundreds of men.

The development was to include the building of a 28-mile road from Stewart to the plant site at Tide Lake to tap the mine's estimated 22,500,000 tons of ore which averaged 1.93 per cent copper.

Also included was a 11.6 miles tunnel from Tide Lake to the mine.

The Le Duc Glacier, south of Summit Lake, is formed by a triangle of Mount Bayard, Mount Dilsworth and Mount White-Fraser. The area lies off the southern tip of the Alaska Panhandle.

Supplies go into the area through Stewart by tractor road. Granduc has spent $9,000,000 in the last three years preparing the copper property. It has a program calling for the expenditure of a total of $65,000,000 before it can mine the rich copper ore deposits in 1968.

The Granduc campsite is located at the bottom edge of the Le Duc Glacier at the head of the Le Duc River.

The construction camp was built to accommodate 140 men and consists of four bunkhouses, a dining hall, recreation hall, auditorium and office and a powerhouse.

The Le Duc Glacier slopes toward the camp but its slope is gradual. An airstrip had been built on it.

RCAF officials at Comox base said an Albatross, amphibian aircraft, left for Vancouver at 12:12 p.m. where it will pick up Col. W. H. V. Matthews, who will be in charge of rescue operations.

The plane will carry him to Prince Rupert where it will stand by with para-rescue personnel. It is expected to arrive at Rupert at about 3:30 p.m.

A twin-jet helicopter was being readied at 1 p.m. to fly direct to Rupert to offer emergency assistance where required. A DC3 transport was to leave at 11:30 p.m. for Prince Rupert with a cargo of stretchers and other medical equipment.

Weather at Comox was well below normal fog limits and the aircraft were leaving under emergency conditions, it was reported.

DORION

if he hadn't been ordered to interview these three men—he would have liked to set a trap.

SUGGESTED CHECK

He also testified that he suggested to his superiors checking the background—movements and telephone calls—of the three men. He had been told there wasn't time.

Mr. Drapeau agreed with Mr. Dorion's suggestion that a tape recording was the best way to monitor an Aug. 20 phone call between Denis in Ottawa and Lamontagne in Montreal, provided it was known in advance when and where the call was to be made and that one of the parties would consent to have recording equipment used.

He hadn't suggested this method when he filed RCMP Inspector J. R. R. Carrière in Montreal to "cover" the Aug. 20 call. He had left the method up to Insp. Carrière.

The inquiry has been given testimony by Insp. Carrière that he instructed Sgt. Ronald Crevier and Const. Gilles Poissant to listen to the call at Mr. Lamontagne's office.

Insp. Drapeau said that instead of questioning Denis right away, he would have preferred to have arranged a meeting between Denis and Lamontagne in a room "bugged" with microphones.

Mr. Dorion said the only thing the "higher brass" was after was statements because the persons involved were executive assistants.

Mr. Dorion asked whether Insp. Drapeau realized at the time that Liberal MP Guy Rouleau could have been one of the kingpins in the affair and should have been questioned immediately.

Insp. Drapeau said "yes" and that Mr. Rouleau was then in Ottawa.

However, his instructions were to interview only Denis, Leclerc and Lord. In his Aug. 28 report he had suggested that Mr. Rouleau and others be interviewed.

He had received instructions Sept. 3 to interview Mr. Rouleau and others and he had questioned the MP Sept. 17.

Mr. Dorion said Insp. Drapeau gave Mr. Rouleau a "breather" of three weeks.

The witness said somebody had to be questioned, last, and he had decided it would be Mr. Rouleau.

Mr. Dorion suggested it would have been logical to have questioned Mr. Rouleau first.

Insp. Drapeau said this was debatable.

Mr. Dorion insisted that Leclerc and Lord had both mentioned Mr. Rouleau in their statements to Insp. Drapeau and it would have been logical "to get hold of Rouleau right away so that he would not communicate with others involved."

Insp. Drapeau said he chose to do it the other way and that he didn't know at the time it would take three weeks before he could get to Mr. Rouleau.

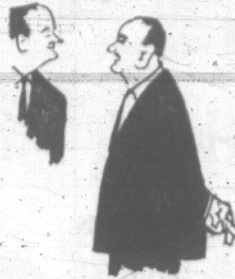

He said he didn't begin his investigation in Montreal until five days after receiving his instructions because the Labor Day weekend intervened and "if you start an investigation on a long weekend you are wasting your time."

Mr. Dorion suggested Labor Day weekend would have been a good time for Insp. Drapeau to interview Mr. Lamontagne's mother at her summer cottage at Chicoutimi, Que.

Insp. Drapeau said he would have wasted too much time going to Chicoutimi.

Congolese Silent On Slayings

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (UPI)—The government maintained silence today on its sensational charge that three leading officials were kidnapped and killed by political enemies.

Brazzaville Radio announced Wednesday that Attorney-General Lazare Matsokota, supreme court president Joseph Pouabou and the director of the government information agency, Anselme Massoumi, all were abducted and slain Monday night.

The government radio said only political motives could have been behind the triple murder.

North Viet Nam Likely To Expel Control Body

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said today the Hanoi Communist regime today may give its final answer on whether the international control commission observer teams will be forced to withdraw from North Viet Nam.

Martin said in an interview that the Indian chairman of the ICC, which is composed of teams from Canada, India and Poland, had asked North Viet Nam to reconsider its position.

"Within the last few days North Viet Nam has called for the withdrawal of the teams for the reason that it was impossible to ensure their security in the area. It is believed, however, that North Viet Nam does not want observers in the area to see movements of equipment and troops."

The ICC has stood firm and demanded that North Viet Nam put its request to withdraw in writing. This was done and the Indian chairman has now taken the final step by asking for reconsideration.

MAY WITHDRAW

"If North Viet Nam persists in its decision, we will have no alternative but to withdraw to Hanoi," Martin said. "And if we are not allowed to do even this, there is no alternative but to get out of the country completely."

"This would be the beginning of the end for the commission."

Actress Stricken

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Patricia Neal, 39, winner of last year's best actress Academy Award, was reported in critical condition today after suffering two strokes.

Truce Group Role End Predicted by Official

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun in a special dispatch from Saigon quotes a Canadian official of the International Control Commission as saying withdrawal of truce observers from North Viet Nam is inevitable.

The dispatch, bylined by John Kirkwood, quotes James B. Seaborn, chief of Canada's ICC delegation, as suggesting the get-out order of last weekend "is to conceal as much as possible an expected build-up of Soviet-supplied military equipment in North Viet Nam."

Mr. Seaborn is quoted further as saying there is a possibility of mass transportation of Red Chinese into the North Viet Nam area.

He adds that an influx of military equipment is possible following the visit to North Viet Nam by Soviet Premier Kosygin and "they don't want a bunch of foreigners snooping around watching what they're doing, so the easiest thing is to ask them to leave, which is what they've done."

and also the end of the Geneva conference arrangements," he said.

The ICC was set up by the Geneva conference of 1954 which was jointly chaired by Britain and the Soviet Union to work out a means for keeping peace in Indo China and Viet Nam.

Almost from the beginning the North Vietnamese have failed to live up to the terms of the agreement with the result that the efforts of the ICC have been continuously thwarted.

NEW CONFERENCE

In the House of Commons Monday, Prime Minister Pearson said that another conference of some sort may be necessary and desirable to try to work out a more durable solution in the area.

"I do not think that a conference called without careful preparation at this particular time would be able to accomplish what we all have in mind," he said.

"I think it is desirable to settle this matter by negotiation, and to discuss with the governments concerned, and the co-chairmen the conditions which would make a new conference or resumption of the old conference more successful."

Rescue Impossible

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons was told Wednesday that three Canadian Coast Guard ships on the East coast could not go to the rescue of a fishing vessel Dec. 1 because two were unseaworthy and the other was too small to operate in the conditions that existed.

SMILING PREMIER BENNETT is led through standing ovation by RCMP officer at testimonial dinner in Vancouver Wednesday night.

Friend, Foe Hail 'WAC' As B.C.'s 'Great Leader'

VANCOUVER (CP)—With all the pomp and ceremony they could muster, friend and foe alike hailed Premier W. A. C. Bennett Wednesday night as a "great leader" of British Columbia.

They wined and dined him and applauded as he was described by speakers as "dedicated, unselfish, a great leader."

Premier Bennett had become British Columbia's longest-serving premier, outlasting the 12½-year tenure of Sir Richard McBride early in the century.

More than 1,000 black-tied men crammed into smoke-filled rooms for a $10-a-plate testimonial dinner in honor of Premier Bennett.

One speaker described it as a "remarkable occasion—a political gathering divorced of politics."

Through it all the smiling premier looked out over a sea of faces—the elite of British Columbia's business and political world.

HEARD ON TV

When he spoke, half his audience watched and heard through 12 closed-circuit television sets in two adjoining rooms.

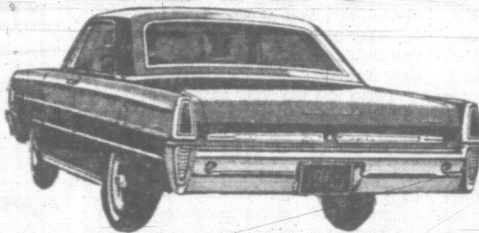

Only once did the spectre of country editor Mrs. Margaret "Ma" Murray make its appearance.

Mrs. Murray, editor of the weekly Bridge River-Lillooet News and one of the premier's most outspoken critics, had been invited some months ago to address the meeting. However, the organizers of the dinner said later that the response for tickets was so great they would have to make it a stag affair.

Mrs. Murray stepped down and in her place came Liberal Senator J. W. De B. Farris and H. H. Stevens, a senior member of the Privy Council of Canada.

Mayor William Rathie made the premier a freeman of Vancouver and Mayor R. F. Parkinson of Kelowna placed a horseshoe-shaped wreath of red carnations around Mr. Bennett's neck. A banner read: "The Champ From Kelowna."

INVESTIGATOR TESTIFIES BEFORE DORION

Official Curbed RCMP Bribe Probe

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dorion inquiry began delving Wednesday into why the RCMP did not question certain persons whose testimony might have been of value in the police probe into an alleged bribe offer (and coercion by aides to federal cabinet ministers).

The RCMP's chief investigator of allegations by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne said he was over-ruled by his superiors when he suggested broadening his investigation.

Inspector Jean-Paul Drapeau said he suggested to RCMP Deputy Commissioner J. R. Lemieux on Sept. 10 that he should question both the wife and a close associate of Lucien Rivard, the accused narcotics conspirator on whose behalf the alleged bribe attempt was made.

Insp. Drapeau said the deputy commissioner doubted the "propriety" of interviewing Mrs. Rivard at that time and said he already knew the unsavory reputation of Eddy Lechasseur, Rivard's close friend.

Several of the key witnesses before the Dorion inquiry have said they dreaded Lechasseur and his underworld "gang."

CHANGED MIND

Insp. Drapeau said he had been told to "possibly" question the mother of Lamontagne. He had intended to do so at first but changed his mind after he found out she lived in Chicoutimi, Que., rather than in Montreal.

Insp. Drapeau quoted Deputy Commissioner Lemieux as saying he (Lemieux) doubted Mrs. Lamontagne's testimony could "add much."

Mrs. Lamontagne since has told the inquiry of threatening phone calls her son received July 20-21 while he visited her at Chicoutimi.

Mr. Lamontagne alleges he was offered a bribe of $20,000 July 14 by Raymond Denis, former executive assistant of then immigration minister Rene Tremblay.

He also says he was subjected to pressure by Andre Letendre and Guy Lord, aides to Justice Minister Favreau, and by Guy Rouleau, Montreal MP who then was parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson and chairman of the Liberal party caucus.

LINKED TO CASE

Another person whose name had been linked to the Rivard affair at the time of the RCMP investigation was Senator Louis P. Gelin, treasurer of the Liberal party in Quebec.

Insp. Drapeau said the name had been made known to him but he was not ordered to see the senator.

The investigator — 47th witness to testify before Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court — said he was ordered first to question only Denis, Lord and Letendre.

He was given those instructions Aug. 19, eight days after Mr. Lamontagne complained to the RCMP in Montreal.

He reported the results of his interviews Aug. 28 and was given further orders Sept. 3 to question Guy Rouleau, his brother Raymond Rouleau, Raymond Daoust, Rivard's lawyer, Robert Gignac, a friend of Rivard, and Liberal organizer Guy Masson.

REPORT WAS BASIS

His report on those interviews was made Sept. 18 and served as the basis for the decision by Mr. Favreau that there was insufficient evidence to successfully prosecute either Denis or the justice minister's two assistants.

The matter became public after Mr. Lamontagne's charges were brought up in the Commons by a member of the opposition last November.

Insp. Drapeau testified that the last person he interviewed was Guy Rouleau, Sept. 17.

He asked the MP what he thought the interview might be about. "He said he thought it might be about some parking tickets," said the investigator.

Insp. Drapeau had been told eight days earlier by the MP's brother that Guy had informed him the RCMP would visit him concerning the Rivard case.

TOLD DIFFERENT STORY

The RCMP witness also testified he was told a different story by Guy Rouleau about telephone calls made to Lamontagne than that the inquiry already has heard from the MP.

Insp. Drapeau said Guy Rouleau told him of speaking with Lord about the possibility of bail for Rivard and of asking the special assistant to Mr. Favreau to telephone Mr. Lamontagne in Montreal about it.

The inspector said Rouleau told him he had not received an answer from Lord when Letendre was approached in the same vein. Insp. Drapeau said he was told by Rouleau that information was received from Letendre. Later Rouleau approached Lamontagne independently.

In testimony earlier before the inquiry, Mr. Rouleau said Lord had provided information, but that he had not spoken with Letendre prior to calling Lamontagne.

Commission Counsel Andre Desjardins stressed the importance the commission puts in the timing of Guy Rouleau's call to the Montreal lawyer.

Well Worth the Price

THE UNITED NATIONS ASSEMBLY will not emerge from its present sessions with enhanced prestige. For the layman, reading the news each day, the meetings have provided a succession of evasions and negations: this was not a world conference showing mankind the way to a better future but a gathering of frustrated delegates trying to ensure a continuance of the bare existence of the organization.

It is true that the dangers have been great. The United Nations was—and still is—threatened with disruption, and great credit is due those who have worked so hard to walk the tightrope of protocol and save the UN from a collapse into the depths of international chaos.

But the achievement still represents only a breather in the organization's struggle to remain alive. At a critical time in world affairs, with another world war perhaps already in the making, the UN Assembly has been tongue-tied and handcuffed.

The blame for this is not universal. It lies at the door of those nations—mainly in the Soviet bloc but also including France—which have refused to pay their shares of expenses incurred in the United Nations' great peace-keeping operations. These policing actions have included the Suez and the Congo work; more recently to them have been added the Cyprus costs.

The United Nations agreement states that a member nation which falls into arrears on its assessments to the equivalent of two years' annual dues must lose its vote in the Assembly. Russia, for example, has refused to pay its share of the policing costs and the arrears now exceed the sum of two years' annual dues. But Russia says that if it is deprived of the vote it will withdraw from the Assembly. Such an action, especially if accompanied by that of other Soviet bloc spokesmen, would destroy the Assembly as a world forum.

It is absurd that the United Nations should be threatened with collapse, particularly through a squabble over money payments. The value of the organization is too great, too vital, to permit it to fail, yet it is faced with bankruptcy today because of the refusal of important members to pay their legitimate assessments.

What alternative do they propose? Without the United Nations—quite apart from the loss of its many sub-groups in health, agriculture, education, child care and other humanitarian endeavors—there could be only larger national armaments, greater insecurity, and the development of regional economic and military fortresses which could result only in tragic retrogression.

A workable sharing formula and a firm agreement on United Nations financing must be found.

A Centennial Project

REEVE HUGH CURTIS, WITH the blessings of his Saanich council, has swung behind the proposal to make a community stadium the Canadian centennial project for Greater Victoria.

He has encountered some criticism for the manner in which he advanced the suggestion. It is criticism, however, which should evaporate when his objective is more clearly understood.

The Saanich reeve first seeks consideration of the plan by the councils of the adjacent municipalities and Victoria. If they favor it, he would advocate the creation by municipal representatives of a committee of experts to study details.

A stadium, frequently discussed here, deserves consideration as the major centennial undertaking. It will not, at this time, exclude consideration of other plans—the improvement of the Gorge among them. But championship of the stadium idea by Reeve Curtis reminds Greater Victorians that they should bestir themselves now to come up with some concrete proposals.

An appeal was made last summer for early presentation of suggestions appropriate to the observance of Confederation's 100th anniversary. During the last six months, the public has heard little of specific plans. Now the Saanich reeve has given support to the stadium idea. If there is some better alternative, let's hear about it.

Greater Victoria has had ample time in which to consider the general idea of a joint Canadian centennial project. Within a reasonable time it should come to a definite conclusion on a specific undertaking. Then, with the capabilities of the city and municipalities have already displayed, it should go into the eventual plan on a co-operative basis calculated to produce the best results for the benefit of the whole region and its people.

The Patricia Bay Highway

MR. GAGLARDI HAS WISELY taken a second look at 1965 plans for the Patricia Bay Highway and has reversed the decision he announced a month ago.

On January 19 he stated that improvement of the existing route, or construction of a new expressway "is not in this year's program... no work will be done this year."

The case for improvement presented by his Social Credit colleague, Mr. Tisdale, by the Automobile Club and by others, including this newspaper, interested in highway safety has apparently caused a change of the minister's heart. Now he says reconstruction work to make the road a four-lane traffic artery will be undertaken this year. The cost of the project will be about $2,000,000 and work—presumably the black-topping of wide shoulders to give added breadth to the travelled portion—will be done mainly on a day labor basis.

This is a sound decision. The death toll last year on the Patricia Bay highway constituted a telling argument for improvement.

The 1965 undertaking is not to be confused with plans to create an expressway from Victoria to Swartz Bay in the relatively near future. That is a project which will cost a great deal more and require rerouting of the road.

In the meantime, this year's work should provide an extra margin of safety for the swelling volume of traffic on the highway.

The Image of the Court

MR. HARRY MCKAY, FERNIE'S Liberal member, has revived earlier legislative discussion on the unsatisfactory situation which exists in some of British Columbia's magistrate's courts.

Mr. McKay points to the impossible position in which a police officer is placed when he is required to carry out investigations, make an arrest and then conduct the prosecution. And he suggests that some officers appear to have difficulty in realizing that a person

"is not a criminal just because he has been arrested."

The problem arises in the lowest court. But this is the court with which a citizen is most likely to have first contact. From such a contact, British Columbians can acquire lasting impressions.

If we wish to maintain the prevailing high regard for courts and the legal processes, something will have to be done to improve practices in the courts which are drawing criticism. Surely this is a job for Mr. Bonner.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

A Fuzzy Constitution Plan

AT a special press conference late last week, Mr. T. C. Douglas and Mr. Robert Cliche made public the Grand New Democratic Design for a modern constitution with a special status for the province of Quebec. Mr. Cliche, the new hope of the party in French Canada, was confident that the scheme would commend itself to Quebec voters although he prudently refrained from an estimate of the probable harvest of seats.

The most obvious feature of the plan is a general fuzziness. It is not likely to alarm anyone in English Canada. Nor is there any apparent reason why it should electrify any apathetic voter in Quebec province.

Three paragraphs in the NDP text dealt specifically with "the special case of Quebec." The first notes that "the preservation and development of French culture and tradition require a strong provincial government and a special consideration in Confederation." This sounds curiously like a description of the status quo.

According to the next paragraph "it is possible that Quebec may elect to separate from Canada, but it is doubtful that she will do so." Separation, it is observed, would be disadvantageous to both Quebec and Canada. The doubt and the judgment will be widely shared but they do not get us very far.

Everyone's Responsibility

The third paragraph observes that "all Canadians share a responsibility to ensure our country continues to be enriched by the existence and growth of the French language and culture. In view of Quebec's position as the major centre of this culture, it is not only possible but desirable to work out a status for her within Confederation which recognizes this role. But this can only be based on a reciprocal recognition by Quebec that a strong and lasting Confederation requires certain basic matters to be left to the jurisdiction of the federal government."

From these premises, the NDP argues for a "new look" at the constitution, for a "renewed and revised constitution" to come into effect on the centennial day, and for a preamble "which refers to the historic partnership of English-speaking and French-speaking peoples and to the contributions made by Canadians of other ethnic origins."

The constitution should make clear that Canada, as a nation has respect for individual rights, the protection of historic rights of religion, education and language, and a legislative parliamentary system based on the British model. There would be required "an amendment of the British North America Act which entrenches these rights in the Canadian constitution."

Butters No Parsnips

The only specific suggestion here (apart from the old demand that a Bill of Rights should be embedded in the constitution) is the proposal for a preamble. While this seems unobjectionable, it would butter no parsnips federal or provincial.

It is arguable that Quebec has always enjoyed a special status within Confederation. At least a dozen sections of the present Act refer specifically to Quebec—or specifically exclude her, which amounts to the same thing. Other traditional rights are entrenched by virtue of the exclusive powers conferred on the provinces by section 92.

Mr. Douglas must, therefore, be arguing for a new status. But what is this?

Symbol of Change

From the Financial Times
Canadians who find it difficult to understand the change which has come over Quebec can find an important clue in last week's news.

It was the appointment of Dr. Roger Gaudry as Rector of the University of Montreal. He is the first layman to head the U of M since it became autonomous in 1919. (It started in 1878 as a branch of Laval.) His vice-rector, appointed in 1961, is also the first layman to hold that post.

Dr. Gaudry's background underlines the new orientation of French Canadian education. He is a man of 51, with "little Latin and less Greek", a brilliant biochemist, Rhodes scholar, teacher and researcher. He comes to the U. of M. from industry. For the last 11 years he has been with Ayerst, McKenna and Harrison, rising to be director of their research in the U.S. as well as Canada.

He is a real symbol of the new Quebec.

He denied, at his press conference, that he had in mind the status of an "associate state" as he understands that term. This is, indeed, borne out by the NDP statement which at many points upholds the federal power; noting particularly that the federal government must retain control over monetary and fiscal policy, banking, tariffs and transportation; that free trade among the provinces must be ensured; and that Ottawa must secure treaty power commensurate with her international responsibilities.

In other words the NDP calls for revision and renewal of the constitution by July 1, 1967 while declining to specify how it is to be revised and renewed.

All-Party Committee

What Mr. Douglas does recommend is the establishment of an all-party Parliamentary committee which would make specific recommendations on three subjects: The distribution of federal and provincial powers; a special status for Quebec and a revised constitution with a workable amending formula. It would co-operate with similar committees in the provinces and the 11 sets of recommendations would come finally to a grand constitutional conference embracing not only the governments but also all the other parties in all the other legislatures.

This should guarantee full employment over the next two years for the country's constitutional experts, assuming that we do not lose most of them as the result of heart attacks.

It would be far more realistic to press for a special parliamentary committee, with power to call expert witnesses, on the existing project for amending and patriating the constitution. Here Mr. Douglas has a valid case; he is opposed to the one-province veto as written into the present formula and Parliament should certainly consult with leading constitutionalists before proceeding with the matter.

Danger Denied

On the other hand Mr. Douglas showed no awareness at his press conference of the potential dangers in a scheme of delegation which protects the provinces but not the federal power. He denies, in fact that there is any danger because Parliament will decide what it will, or will not, delegate. But the assumption here is that any government, even a minority government, can always be trusted to defend the federal powers. Not only is this a strange and trusting faith but it is in flat contradiction with the opening paragraphs of Mr. Douglas' own statement.

These are the NDP assertions: "1. Canada today faces crisis which could result in the breakup of Confederation."

"2. This crisis has been precipitated by a consistent lack of leadership from a succession of federal governments. Into the resulting power vacuum, provincial governments have thrust their expanding and often conflicting claims."

If, as Mr. Douglas says, federal governments have been so weak or lethargic as to create a power vacuum, how can he be sure that future governments will be resolute enough to resist the pressure of expanding provinces thrusting through the delegation door?

FROM LONDON

How Much is the Interest?

NESTLING in a cabinet in London's vast Board of Trade Building is a bulging file folder which may well hold the key to a problem that has bedeviled Canadian consumer organizations for years.

The folder traces the long, patient search which led finally to the development of the Board of Trade's "true" annual interest rate formula—the breakthrough formula which can determine the true annual rate of interest in any credit transaction, no matter how complex its terms.

This was the formula which some British financial interests had been saying could never be found, and which some Canadian financial interests are still saying cannot be found.

Indeed, the difficulty of finding an accurate and generally acceptable interest formula is one of the chief obstacles standing in the way of the many Canadians who have long been pressing, on both the federal and provincial levels, for the adoption of various kinds of "true disclosure legislation"—that is legislation requiring, among other things, the disclosure of the true annual rate of interest involved in all credit dealings.

Trackless No-Man's-Land

Until such a formula is found and agreed upon, Canadians will have to continue shopping for credit in a trackless no-man's-land, where the bank's famous rate of six per cent often means a true annual rate of more than 11 per cent, where the personal loan company's two per cent a month hides a true annual rate of around 24 per cent, and where the department store's "nominal service charge" for credit can conceal an alarming range of true interest rates.

The way in which the formula has been put to work by the British government doesn't begin to tap its almost revolutionary potential.

The formula appears only in the Hire Purchase Act 1964, an act governing the sale of consumer goods on credit which came into effect in Britain on New Year's Day. While this act requires that the full costs of hire-purchase credits be clearly set out in contracts as a money sum, it does not require that these charges be stated in the form of an interest rate. It is only when a merchant or finance house chooses to display an interest rate that the formula comes into play, for the act provides that such advertised rates shall be subject to official verification.

This restraint stems in part from the fact that the formula was conceived as a specific remedy for a specific ailment. The Molony Committee on Consumer Protection, after wide-ranging investigations over a three-year period, recommended in July, 1962 that something be done about certain common forms of "deception" in advertised interest rates.

The committee was particularly annoyed by two practices which will be only too familiar to Canadian borrowers and credit buyers. The first is the custom of stating interest rates on a monthly basis, which makes them appear lower than they are and inhibits comparison with yearly rates. The second is the device of calculating interest as if the original amount of credit were to remain outstanding for the length of the contract—when, in fact, the borrower begins to whittle down the original sum as soon as he makes his first instalment payment.

The problem is finding a truly serviceable formula true.

Formula Found

Mr. F. J. Broomfield, the Board of Trade mathematician-in-charge, was slipping through a consumer's magazine one day when he came across an interest formula that appeared to be heading in the right direction. It was this chance find which, many months later, emerged after much prodding and teasing as the formula which satisfied Mr. Broomfield's two essential demands.

Firstly, the finished formula struck the necessary balance between accuracy and simplicity. It was accurate to within

Our Flag

I would like to congratulate Paul Lamy, of 777 Blanshard St. for his sensible and loyal Canadian views on our new Canadian flag. His letter appeared in your valuable paper last week. As he says, Canada is a very young country and while growing up, needed the protection of the mother country, as we grew stronger and larger we gave the mother country our help and loyalty in two world wars and our boys did not do this because of a certain flag. Now Canada and our beloved Queen believe that Canada is ready to stand on her own although she will always be loyal to the mother country.

British Maple

I would like you to note the following, taken from Webster's Dictionary.
A maple tree — a tree of the Sycamore kind.
Sycamore tree — a fruit tree of the fig family.
A maple tree — naturalized in Britain.
The plane tree of America — a kind of maple.
So you see the Maple Leaf originates in Britain, and is not truly Canadian.

Under Foot

The new flag is flying in the breeze. British tradition is under foot. Thus the dream of Quebec is fulfilled.
The only fair and decent thing left, is for Canada to retire, from the British Commonwealth of Nations.

By doing this, other commonwealth nations would enjoy the British balance of trade which Canada depends on for survival.

Please note, British imports from B.C. alone were $170,000,000 in 1964. B.C.'s imports from Britain in the same year were $43,000,000—in resources. What would the figure be throughout Canada.

On February 15, while attending a meeting of the Saanich Council I was delighted to see a teacher from Mount View High School, accompanied by a group of students, observing the functions of local government in Canada.

It seems to me that in the last few elections many people have displayed an attitude of complacency and it is my hope that more teachers will take an example from this man so that future generations will realize their responsibility and will turn out 100% at the polls and exercise their franchise which our forefathers paid for with "blood, sweat and tears".

Pure Rubbish

"Pure rubbish," he replied with an impatient wave of the hand. During the preparation of the Hire Purchase Act, he said, the Board of Trade thoroughly examined this point both on its own and in consultation with affected firms. He and his colleagues are convinced that complaints of this nature are little more than a smokescreen.

For now, at any rate, Mr. Broomfield feels his formula is earning its keep by eliminating specious advertising claims.

What about the argument, frequently heard in Canada, that compulsory adherence to a single interest formula confronts business firms with costly administrative changes and increased paperwork?

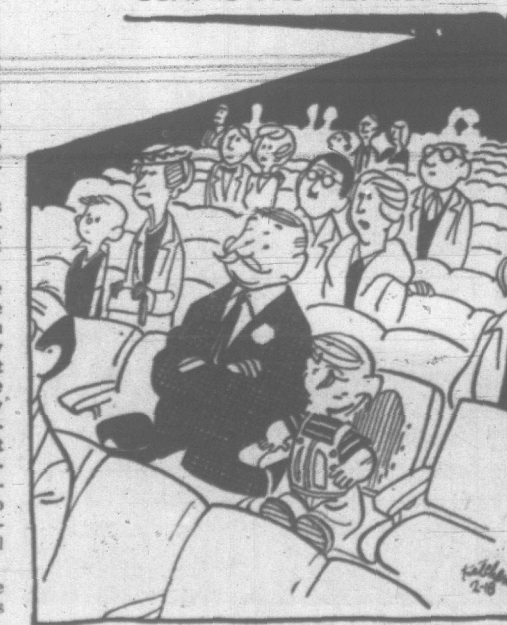

'Pure Rubbish'

"Pure rubbish," he replied with an impatient wave of the hand. During the preparation of the Hire Purchase Act, he said, the Board of Trade thoroughly examined this point both on its own and in consultation with affected firms. He and his colleagues are convinced that complaints of this nature are little more than a smokescreen.

"Some of the smaller finance houses were certainly vocal on this score, but then they were among the worst offenders," he said. "There should be no bookkeeping changes at all. The necessary calculation can be done on a slip of paper and, since most firms have standard terms, they need only do it once."

The introduction of true disclosure legislation is not a technical problem at all, it seems. It is only a political one.

Looking Back

From The Times of Feb. 13, 1890.

A trial trip was made by a National Electric Tramway Company street car on Store Street. The car, filled with the president, directors, and a few friends, started off at between eight and 12 miles an hour. Victorians were moving smoothly along in their own city for the first time in a modern, electrical street car. The run was made to the junction of Store and Douglas and back several times. The car weighed six tons and seated 26 persons comfortably.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

If you could look through the register of the Victoria Coffee Club you'd discover its members include bankers, lawyers, men in business and in public life and a good percentage of men who have reached retirement age.

The club meets in the morning between 10:30 and 11, from Monday to Friday each week.

It's been doing this for 25 years, first in a little coffee shop on Government Street, then in what was known as "The Dugout" in the basement of the T. Eaton Company store (when it belonged to the Spencer family) and now in the main dining room of the store on the fourth floor.

Ask any member what has kept the club alive for a quarter of a century and you'll get a variety of answers: Not one will point to the fact that members merely like to drink coffee.

It's relaxing, one man told me. Another said it was stimulating. You can start an argument, then sit back, listen, and get a lot of good ideas.

One member preferred to label these morning talks over the coffee table as discussions. "It's amazing how far afield we travel," he said.

The club was formed in 1940 by seven men, five of whom are still alive.

Well-known Victoria lawyer Gordon Cameron was first president, a position he held for 10 years. Second president was the late P. Archie Gibbs.

Other members of the original group were Peter G. Barr, Walter S. Knight, Austin I. Curtis, the late Art Dowell and Alastair Campbell, who now heads the club.

Primary rule of the group is "no guests." When a visitor is introduced he automatically becomes a member and to mark the occasion, buys the others their coffee that morning.

Duties of the president include wishing each member a "merry Christmas" in a "suitable form and manner," once a year, and seeing that every member complies strictly with the unwritten but nevertheless definite constitution and bylaws.

These make it obligatory on each one to pay for the coffee on his birthday, his wedding anniversary, when a child or a grandchild is born and on various other occasions.

Proudest possession of the group is its register of members and a short history of the club, neatly arranged between natural wood covers, inscribed with the club name. It was the gift of Mr. Cameron.

Look through its pages and you'll find any number of well-known Victorians including Lloyd G. McKenzie, Frank Mulliner, Brent Murdoch, former mayor Percy B. Scourrah and Len Woodhouse.

W. F. Pinfold has his name on the register.

In the same year appears Ed N. Liersch, Hugh Curtis, Alan Bigelow, Cec Wyatt, J. A. deBourcier and Dugald Macgregor.

Next pages show the signature of the late Johnny Johnson, also the names of Capt. Ron Newell, Dick Batey, Bill Heaney, Stu Keate, Fred McGregor and Harry P. Hodges.

British Columbia's Liberal leader Ray Perrault signed the book in June, 1959. He was not married then, so only recorded his birth date.

Other names include Pat Dunn, Geoff Edgell, Fred Usher, Eric Martin, Courtney Hadcock, Millard Mooney, Archie Wills, Fred Manning and a host of others it is impossible to record here.

One morning, early in the life of the club, four prisoners of war from the Far East, on their way back to England, were made members. Their names were J. M. Scouler, C. H. Fell, C. R. Shepherd and M. W. Thompson.

They were invited to the table and later taken for a drive around the city and entertained at dinner.

One of the first out-of-town members to sign the register was Bruce V. Massie, QC, of Edmonton. Others include Sir Leslie Bowker, city remembrancer, Guildford, London, Eng., and Frank Osborn, general manager of the Fulham Football Club, also of London.

Only woman member of the club is Dame Flora MacLeod, the chief of Clan MacLeod.

She was introduced by Bill Gilmore, then manager of the T. Eaton store, at a morning coffee session in November, 1955. Her signature reads, "Flora MacLeod of MacLeod; Dunvegan, Skye, Scotland."

At present the club has almost a closed membership, except for out-of-town visitors. If a member does bring a city resident to a session, it is now his duty to pay for coffee that morning, as the city guest cannot — except on special occasions — be introduced as a member of the club.

Only four local men signed the register in 1964. They are Alan Maclean, G. C. Cunningham, R. L. V. Jermain and H. M. Dawson.

At one time an effort was made to have the Victoria Coffee Club join with the Knockers Club of Montreal. This was through John A. Macdonald, an out-of-town member from Ottawa, who was reputed to be a descendant of Sir John A. Macdonald, first prime minister of Canada.

After spirited discussion and exploration of ways and means, it was discovered that The Knockers Club DID have a written constitution and that to amend or change it, would mean going through the Secretary of State.

"It would have taken time and we didn't have that kind of time," Gordon Cameron explains today. "So we didn't affiliate."

'French-Canada PM Would Betray Roots'

MONTREAL (CP)—Credited Leader Real Caouette says a French-speaking Canadian could not become the country's prime minister without "betraying his roots and stabbing his race in the back."

He made the comment Tuesday night during a television survey of Quebec political spokesmen on the possibility of Premier Lesage's returning to federal politics. The poll was carried on the CBC French-language program Aujourd'hui (Today).

Asked if his statement meant he disqualified himself as a possible prime minister, Mr. Caouette replied: "My only ambition is to serve my country as the head of the provincial party of the Ralliement des Creditistes."

Other comments on current rumors Mr. Lesage may return to Ottawa included:

Quebec opposition leader Daniel Johnson: "I always have said that Mr. Lesage is looking for the first possible chance to return to Ottawa. He has the air of an emissary of Ottawa, all of whom would make Quebec a province like the others."

Conservative MP Louis-Joseph Pigeon: "I am convinced that, if he returned to Ottawa, it would be a catastrophe for the autonomous rights of Quebec."

Robert Cliche, Quebec NDP leader: "The departure of Mr. Lesage would leave the Quebec Liberal party in a poor state. But Mr. Lesage should not count too much on the idea that, as a French-Canadian, he automatically could obtain Quebec's federal vote."

$500 Million Suit

NEW YORK (AP)—An anti-trust suit seeking triple damages of $507,000,000 has been instituted in federal court by International Railways of Central America against United Fruit Co. The suit resulted from activities of United Fruit in its capacity as controlling stockholder of the rail system from 1928 to 1961.

Arrests Thwart 'Revolt'

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Indian government charged today that pro-Chinese Communists were plotting a Cuban-style revolution before mass arrests crushed an extensive Communist underground.

Guerrilla warfare instructions written by Ernesto (Che) Guevara, one of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's top aides, were being circulated in preparation for a revolt in the countryside, the government said.

The charges were in a statement laid before Parliament by Home Minister G. L. Nanda to explain why the government arrested about 900 pro-Chinese Communists beginning Dec. 30.

Communists and other leftist opponents of Prime Minister Shastri's regime charge the government decimated the Communist organization to prevent the Reds from winning what appeared to be a sure election victory March 4 in their stronghold of Kerala state.

Though he charged Cuban revolutionary writings were providing tactical inspiration for Indian Communists, Nanda left no doubt the government feels over-all strategic direction came from China.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Walter Alvarez

Because all mothers have had times when they had to take care of a shut-in child, they will be interested in reading in that fine journal, "Today's Health," a good, well-illustrated article on some of the things which parents can do to keep a shut-in child happy. A child who is a good reader can be kept happy with a goodly supply of the best children's books.

Many children love to make things, and, as the author says, it is amazing what interesting things can be made out of brown paper bags, soda straws, paper plates, milk cartons, aluminum foil, cereal boxes, empty spoons, shoe boxes, and other objects that can be found in a house. Many a mother has told me that her child would rather play with homey things like that than with the most expensive toys she could buy in a store. Children can get great happiness also from going through a drawer of pots and pans in a kitchen.

One way in which to fascinate a child is to give him a present all wrapped up; he'll be so interested to unwrap it and see what is inside. Plenty of paper with crayons can keep a child busy for a long time. Also, children love to cut out paper dolls—a whole row of them. Small children love to color pictures with crayons.

Often the child should be left awhile to his own devices, especially if the mother is overly nervous and worrisome and too deeply concerned over the child's illness. If she keeps fretting around the youngster, she can get him tired and nervous.

Often the big secret is to find something that the child can make. Most of us, from childhood to old age, are happiest when making something. I am happiest when I am writing a book or an article. Many a man is happiest when down in his basement shop making something. He may not need it very much, but he has great fun making it.

Thousands of women get great comfort out of knitting or sewing or crocheting. Some women love to write and can write well. The essential thing is that something useful is being made. This is true also for a child.

Whenever possible, the sick child should be allowed to sit up in a chair; he will be much happier there than in bed. Making a scrapbook may give great pleasure. Given a scrapbook, a lot of old magazines, a pair of scissors and a pot of paste, the child can be very happy.

A girl, of course, can dress dolls. Sometimes a child will enjoy very greatly having a story read to him. But there are limits to the amount of time that can be spent in this way. The mother may lack time and the sick child may lack attention.

Ace Girl Pilot Dies In Crash

RIG PINES, Calif. (UPI) — Aviator Joan Meriam Smith, who conquered the same around-the-world course that claimed the life of Amelia Earhart, was killed Wednesday along with a companion when their borrowed plane slammed into a mountain and burned.

The blonde, 28-year-old pilot and Trixie Anne Schubert, 42, a writer and flyer herself, were found in the charred, mangled wreckage of their Cessna 180. The pair was on a short hop from the coastal city of Long Beach to the mountain resort of Wrightwood when their plane crashed on the slopes of a San Gabriel mountain range at about the 6,500 foot level.

The fatal crash happened only five weeks after Mrs. Smith and a companion, William Harry Eytchison of Glendora, Calif., survived the smashup of her twin-engine Piper Apache — "City of Long Beach" — in which she girdled the globe via the equator in 1964.

Her equatorial route was the same itinerary followed in 1937 by Miss Earhart when she disappeared over the Pacific.

The earlier crash destroyed Mrs. Smith's much-autographed plane, ending plans to put it in one of several museums that had asked her for it as an aviation showpiece.

Mrs. Smith, who was inspired by the pioneer flying exploits of Miss Earhart, shared public attention on her 1964 around-the-world flight with Jerri Mock of Ohio, who also circled the earth. But Mrs. Smith claimed she flew the more difficult course.

VISITING Victoria Friday is Lieutenant-Colonel Frank Mouton, head of the Salvation Army correctional services work in Canada, who will inspect local efforts and visit penal institutions.

BACKBENCHERS COMPLAIN

Municipalities Are 'Treated Like Children'

Two government backbenchers Wednesday complained of provincial attitudes to the municipalities.

Alex Matthew (SC — Vancouver Centre) told the legislature Vancouver is not receiving fair financial treatment.

He said the city produces $14,000,000 a year in provincial revenue from motor vehicle taxes but gets only $360,000 in return from the government.

Mr. Matthew said it has been demonstrated that larger cities have higher per capita costs for some services such as policing, yet Vancouver has the lowest per capita grant of any B.C. municipality.

The capital cost of hospitals was being borne by the city, yet one-third of the patients at Vancouver General Hospital come from outside the city.

Next to speak was Arvid Lundell (SC — Revelstoke), who criticized the government's "take it and lose it" attitude toward per capita grants to municipalities. The attitude was "not consistent with good government."

Mr. Lundell, the mayor of Revelstoke, said his politics "are Revelstoke" and went on to complain that all provincial governments are "paternalistic" toward their municipalities.

NOT CHILDREN

"The municipalities of this province don't want to be the children of this government," he said. "The municipalities are not receiving a fair share considering the affluent conditions under which we live."

Mr. Lundell also called for a government insurance plan for amateur athletes who cannot work because of injuries and pension increases for retired civil servants.

Mr. Matthew renewed a plea made in the throne speech debate for the government to give drug addicts free injections and so take the profits out of "this damnable business."

'Province Must Not Hinder Prospectors'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The mining copper and molybdenum prospectors to start producing in 1963, and listed other mines to come into production next year and in the two years following.

The lecture was the first of a series sponsored by the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines.

He said prospectors "should be continually encouraged and no red tape legislation should be put in their way" because they are important in discovering B.C.'s vast untapped deposits.

Mr. Brothers, addressing 620 persons attending the first of a series of mining industry public lectures, noted the importance of exploration to the expansion of the industry.

He said the large mining companies are now looking to B.C. for resources because the province has vast untapped deposits, a stable economy and fair and consistent mining laws.

He described mine developments involving capital expenditures totalling $17,000,000.

Columbia Expects Sales Hike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Increased mill capacity should contribute to increased sales for Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., says the company's annual report.

Paul M. Marshall, Columbia president, said in the annual report Wednesday the company looks forward to increased sales despite adverse effects from unusually severe weather during first-quarter operations.

The annual report also indicated that both dissolving and bleached kraft pulps will be in short supply.

The company had a net income in 1962 of $4,000,000 on sales of $62,000,000 compared with a net of $3,700,000 in 1963 on sales of $56,000,000.

Mr. Marshall said the company expects to operate its kraft mill at Castlegar and its sulphite pulp mill at Prince Rupert at capacity during 1963.

He said both pulp capacity and demand will increase during the next few years.

Alberta Gas Net Income $5.5 Million

CALGARY (CP) — A 1962 net income of $5,573,047 was earned by the Alberta Gas Trunk Line Company Ltd., J. C. Mahaffay, executive vice-president, announced today.

Mr. Mahaffay said new pipeline facilities at a cost of approximately $25,845,000 were added to the company's new system during 1962 to boost total plant investment to about $192,000,000. The company now has 1,765 miles of pipeline and compression facilities.

Construction on the Edson line, 173 miles of 30-inch pipe, is proceeding on schedule, Mr. Mahaffay said. Estimated cost of the pipe, linking the Edson gas field with the pipeline system of Trans-Canada Pipelines Ltd., at the Saskatchewan border, is $24,000,000.

Mr. Mahaffay said a $4,000,547 balance remained after payment of preferred share dividends amounting to $1,512,500. This was equivalent to $1.50 a common share, a 14-cent increase over 1962.

LBJ URGES BUSINESS TO HELP CURB DRAIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson summoned some 370 top-level U.S. businessmen to hear a plea today that they help curb the gold dollar drain by volunteering to slash investments and lending in Europe.

Even as Johnson called leading industrialists and bankers to the White House, he was holding in reserve a threat to require the investment-lending cuts through legislation.

Beatles' 'Stock' Sold In Minute

LONDON (UPI) — The British stock exchange made it official today: the Beatles are a smash hit.

It took only 60 seconds for brokers to announce the public had grabbed up 1,250,000 shares.

Alaskans are among the world's most talkative people, averaging 609 telephone calls a person every year.

at $1.09 each in Northern Songs Ltd. ($1.36 million), in which Beatles John Lennon and Paul McCartney are major stockholders.

The sale itself placed a valuation of $5.4 million on the song publishing firm but not all the stock was offered for sale.

Lennon and McCartney own 30 per cent personally and today's one-minute stock market action made their holdings worth $1.63 million.

The value of their stock plus huge incomes from royalties, recordings, personal appearances and movies put them well into the multi-millionaire circles, according to popular music circles.

Beatles Ringo Starr and George Harrison do not write for Northern Songs although they may be among the unnamed original stockholders.

Today's action was the formal opening of the books which made the subscribers actual owners, and placed the stocks on the big board. Under stock exchange rules the actual trading on the exchange does not begin until Feb. 26.

Isolation Cell For Juveniles May Be Moved

Relocation of isolation cells at the juvenile detention home is recommended in the January report of superintendent Charles Etchells.

The report was tendered with the superintendent's annual report at city hall Wednesday.

Mr. Etchells said the two existing isolation cells on the home's basement level are "not convenient and not suitable for the purpose."

He said they were constructed as holding places for intoxicated children. He proposes two more cells, for general purposes, to be added to the main floor to the rear of his own quarters.

When superintendent Etchells took on the post last year, the home was almost completed, a joint undertaking of Greater Victoria municipalities.

"I felt from the start these cells should be on the main floor of the building to be more easily supervised," he said.

BUSY MONTH

Mr. Etchells said January was an extremely busy month, handling 43 boys and 12 girls. One case resulted in a willful damage charge against the boy, who in fighting with a policeman caused $75 damage to the building.

The annual report shows 459 juveniles were held, 72 of them girls, and offences were committed in these areas: Victoria 241; Oak Bay 14; Saanich 133; Esquimalt 13; RCMP territory 50; Central Saanich 2; federal immigration 1.

The Victoria figure is up 110. Saanich is increased 94. Esquimalt 8, and Oak Bay 6.

Theft, breaking and entering were the major offences.

UNDERDOG MAN CHARGED WITH THEFT

VANCOUVER (CP) — David Cowlishaw, 33, who formed a movement called "Underdog" to give aid to persecuted individuals, has been charged with theft of his mother-in-law's cutlery, RCMP disclosed Wednesday.

Cowlishaw, who last year drew attention by hurling a milk carton of cow's blood on the floor of the House of Commons and recently threw ashes at an SPCA meeting here, will appear in court Friday.

RCMP said he was served Tuesday with a summons alleging the theft of the cutlery from a house his mother-in-law owns at Deep Cove. The cutlery, police said, was recovered from a pawn shop.

Interior Land Sales Booming

The boom in agricultural and homesite land sales is shifting from the Peace River country to the central interior according to the annual report of the provincial lands department tabled in the legislature Wednesday.

The report said collections from leases, rentals and sales jumped 27 per cent during 1964 over the previous year to bring in a total revenue of $2,587,110.

Greatest land activity centred in the Prince George to Terrace area. Although still high, interest in Peace River farm lands tapered off during the year because the choice sites with access have been taken up.

The report said the provincial government holds title to 342,621 square miles of land, private owners have 19,751 square miles and the federal government owns 3,583 square miles.

COMMITTEE REPORT

Johnson Street Site Backed For Parking

A Johnson Street site for Victoria's next off-street parking building was recommended Wednesday by a special committee following several months' study.

Recommendation of the special merchants-city council committee will go to aldermen at their next meeting.

It is expected to end speculation and disagreement between downtown factions as to whether Johnson Street or Yates Street would be the better location of the next building.

It is urged that council authorize the acquisition of properties on the north side of the 700 block to make a site for the structure, which may not be built for three years, or when finances become available.

The city has $122,000 in its off-street parking reserve fund, which may swell by another $30,000 this year with current parking meter revenues.

LAND PRICE

Cost of the building would be in the vicinity of $375,000, plus price of the land, in order to accommodate 350-400 cars.

GOD-LIKE FIGURES

Jovial Dane Busy Carver

By MARK DICKINSON

He works with Gods.

In fact, wood carver Nick Sorenson, 46, a resident at the Dominion Hotel, is carving 28 God-like figures for a chalet at Deep Cove.

Born and raised in Aalborg, Denmark, Mr. Sorenson practised woodwork as his profession before he was 10 years old.

His vivid imagination allowed him to produce a wide range of unique figure carvings.

In his home town, he set up a shop that was equipped with more than 300 carving tools and six workers.

However, tax rates forced him to move to Canada, and in Stratford, Ontario, he again set up shop.

He became established in the famous theatrical town by producing many statues and props for the Stratford Festival Theatre.

One of his assignments was to sculpture, in wood, a figure of William Shakespeare. This now stands on the theatre grounds.

While occupied there for eight years Sorenson met another Danish wood carver, Ove Nielson, 37.

GOOD TEAM

Mr. Nielson says they make a good partnership. He does the rough work and sanding while Sorenson manipulates a chisel for the finer detail.

Last October the two decided to set up business in Victoria.

"Our wood carvings have had a wonderful reception in this area," said Mr. Sorenson.

Mr. Sorenson possesses only manual carving tools and rents a small shop at the rear of a local garage.

In this shop he works with red or yellow cedar shaping it into a Godly image, a wild life creature, a historic figure or even something that suits his imagination—whatever his customer demands.

Besides statue carving Mr. Sorenson produces "reliefs," a carving of the main feature extended two or so inches from the face of the picture, a hand-carved and painted background.

NO TITLE

The jovial Dane works under no company title. He dislikes any hint of commercialism.

An expert at cabinet making and sign embossing, he is an excellent painter of traditional art.

Mr. Sorenson showed a magazine clipping of a well known race horse and then from a pile of assorted works drew a copy of it in relief carving. The two were identical to the last muscle.

Working alone, Mr. Sorenson claims that he is capable of completing a 6 by 13-inch figure in less than one day.

The eyes and the hair take a good percentage of the time.

Mr. Sorenson believes his best work was a relief carving of the "last supper" for a private individual in Stratford.

TAX EVADERS PURLOIN $1 MILLION IN EAST

HALIFAX (CP)—Widespread evasion of fuel taxes was revealed in a report tabled in the Nova Scotia legislature this week by G. I. Smith, finance and economics minister.

The report says the provincial government may have been cheated out of $1,100,000 last year through illegal use of marked dyed gasoline and ineffective attempts to collect taxes on diesel fuel.

Get Fat For Quick Pension

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—How to obtain a retirement pension at the ripe old age of 28, was uncovered by the auditor general Max Henderson and set out in his annual report to parliament tabled Tuesday.

The system is surprisingly simple.

Get fat. Enlist in the armed forces. Show a reluctance to take off weight.

Take your medical discharge, and retire with your service pension.

Canadian army authorities said today that a fully trained private, married who had been in the force the minimum of 10 years and retired at 28 would receive a pension of $792 per year gross, or $66 per month. It would be taxable.

In 1963 the auditor general noted that in determining pension awards every possible consideration is given to the welfare of the individual serviceman. But he said somewhat wryly that it was sometimes questionable whether a reasonable balance is struck between fairness to servicemen on the one hand and economy of public funds on the other.

In the latest year under review (1964) by the auditor general several cases were noted of which he cited four.

In the four instances servicemen were awarded full annuities on being retired, compulsorily for medical infirmity. Information on the files indicated the reason given for retirement was of secondary importance to others, which had they been recognized officially, would have resulted in the aggregate in a reduction in capitalized value of the annuities awarded of approximately $45,000.

Each of the servicemen was 28 years old and had served to qualify for pension.

In one of the four cases a medical release was recommended although in the opinion of the medical board the serviceman did not require hospitalization or active therapy in the foreseeable future.

There was the case of the overweight serviceman, a condition that existed when he joined the forces and said the auditor general "he presumably lacked motivation to regain normal fitness."

Another case concerned an airman who was determined to leave the service on the completion of his current engagement in order to return to school. He had indicated his intention not to re-engage but was granted a medical release apparently to prevent a possible re-engagement.

The fourth case dealt with a medical release following a long period of domestic trouble and eventual psychological disturbance. At the time of his release the serviceman was not incapacitated and the audit office view was that he was actually released to "promote economy and efficiency."

Band Plays Better With Banknote Base

There's more to forming a band than learning the notes of the scale.

There's the slight matter of less musical notes which rustle as they slip across the bank counter.

And they're every bit as important, as Victoria City Police Boys' Band has just found out.

For while it lacks none of the first kind, its funds are way down low.

To date they stand somewhere between middle C and lower base.

All being well they are aiming for the treble range.

For non-musicians this note rings at around the $10,000 mark.

In charge of collections is Constable Kenneth Horsman of the city force.

It was his idea to form the band in the first place.

So far auditions have been held and the 50-plus junior musicians selected.

First practice session will take place at the city H.Q. on Yates Street Feb. 23.

But before the band can really really swing into action the money is needed to buy instruments and uniforms.

Cost of instruments alone will be around $5,000 or $6,000.

Several businesses and clubs have already been asked to lend an ear to the cause. And not all have been tone deaf.

Victoria Gyro Club this week chipped in a cheque to the tune of $250.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

MISS MIDNIGHT'S NOTEBOOK: Can spring be far away? Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton will make it back to Hollywood late in June. They'll arrive for the big "Sandpiper" premiere, and have already reserved the usual bungalows and 17 rooms at the Beverly Hills Hotel for the children, the domestics, Elizabeth's wardrobe and that sort of thing. Of all the compliments Rod Taylor has received for "Young Cassidy," the film story of Sean O'Casey, the one he cherishes most is a note from director John Ford saying: "Your performance could have gotten tears from a rock." It looks like another Academy Award nomination.

Dimitri Tiomkin now wants to tackle "Anna Karenina" as a Broadway musical. He'd like to co-produce, too, he admitted after winning two Golden Globes at the Hollywood Foreign Press Association. Make a bet that he doesn't do it: he racks in fantastic loot as a movie composer, and there isn't an actress on Broadway who could play "Anna." "Happy" Rockefeller's friends say the cheerful nickname does not fit her any more. She couldn't be happy over the loss of her children to her former husband, and Governor Rockefeller's political future looks bleak.

William Lewis, tenor lead in "Pique Dame" at the Lincoln Centre, is going to give a concert at Town Hall in September—all in Russian, a language he mastered in five months. Why? I don't know. Perhaps it's a tribute to Nikita Khrushchev. Who, except a Russian, would want to listen to a Russian concert? And it's doubtful that the real Commies would care to attend and risk being photographed by the FBI.

Tennessee Williams' last play, "The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Any More," which flopped twice on Broadway (although it was far better than the critics admitted) apparently will go on and on, anyway. It is being considered for production in London, with statuesque Carol Browne in the leading role essayed in New York first by Hermione Baddeley, then by Tallulah Bankhead.

Ray Stark is on a talent hunt for "a yacht that can act" for his flicker version of "Oh, Dad, Poor Dad." Specifications—the craft will have to be gigantic, believable as the property of the richest man in the world, and the true owner will be given a part in the picture. Aristotle Onassis and Stavros Niarchos undoubtedly don't need the money, but they might take it.

The film hasn't officially opened yet, here or in London, but the preview comments on "Lord Jim" sound like money in the bank. Examples: "An action melodrama of tremendous stature." "Mass audiences will eat it up." "Richard Brooks has directed one of the most thrilling films of all time." "Peter O'Toole caps everything he's ever done." (Golly, sounds as if they liked it.)

The owners of the Martin Beck Theatre are applauding themselves as they watch the audiences streaming in to see "Judy Hackett in 'I Had a Ball.'" They had a choice of four shows for their theatre and are ecstatic that they selected the hit.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Nelson Higgins, age 12, of Asheville, N.C., for his question:

Are vitamins food?

No person can enjoy a happy life unless his body is supplied with the proper items of a balanced diet. Vitamins are a necessary part of this diet. Small amounts of these chemicals are used by the body to create good health and good looks, strong teeth and bright eyes, calm nerves and an alert brain.

The fuel that runs an automobile is gasoline, and the fuel needed to operate the body is the food you eat. A car also needs a supply of rich oil to make its machinery move. The body needs a supply of vitamins along with its food in order to operate its machinery. Small amounts of these vital chemicals are present in the different items of a balanced diet, and as a rule this is enough.

We know of about 25 different vitamins used by the body, and more may be discovered. Each has a different role, and in most cases we know what role the body has for each vitamin. We know also what diseases and disorders follow when this or that vitamin is not included in the diet. In some cases we know how the body uses its vitamins. But we need to know far more of these complex chemical operations.

In the process of digestion, the bulky food is broken up, liquefied and its chemicals converted into usable body fuel. We know that certain vitamins are necessary in the conversion of some foods. For example, we may eat all the proteins, fats and carbohydrates the body needs to build and repair a handsome, healthy skin. But without a daily smidgen of vitamin C the skin will get a miserable disease called scurvy. Traces of vitamin C are present in the fruits and fresh vegetables on the daily diet.

Food Elements Necessary

Vitamin A is needed to convert food into strong bones and teeth, to build and repair cells and to ensure sharp eyesight. Andy's young readers need this chemical for building strong bodies to last a lifetime. They eat it with their vegetables and dairy foods. Each vitamin is present in one or more of our foods. They have different roles from the basic fats, proteins and carbohydrates. But the body must have its traces of vitamins to put these bulky basics to the best use. For this reason we may say that vitamins are food. Traces of vitamins are necessary parts of the proper diet, and we certainly may call them food elements.

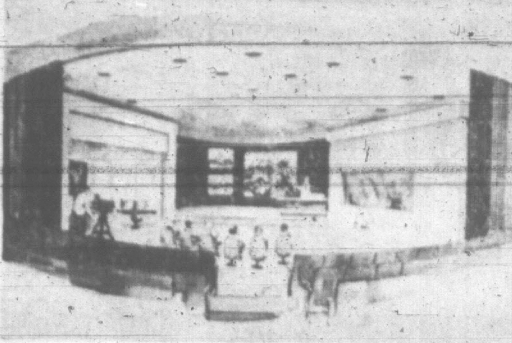

Some vitamins are fragile chemicals that tend to perish before the food items get to the table. Water-soluble vitamins such as C and the assorted B vitamins may disappear from wilted greens or escape into the cooking water. Many diet experts suggest a daily capsule of assorted vitamins just to make sure that the body gets the daily quota it needs and deserves to perform its many miracles.

POSSUMS A MENACE

ABBOTSFORD, B.C. (CP)—Possums, unknown in British Columbia 15 years ago, now are becoming a menace, says Abbotsford game warden Jack Lay.

The cat-size predators feed on duck and pheasant eggs and kill young birds. The first seen in this area was found dead on a road in 1961.

"Now we trap about 60 a month. They are so thick at present that only disease will cut them down."

FUTURE CLASSROOM may use electronics to project dates, films and geographic details for large number of students. The classroom is on display at New York World's Fair.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

House Hears Hull History

By JACK HUTTON

The scene is your own home, although you might not recognize it. We are looking ahead a few decades. The electronic calendar reads: Feb. 16, 1965.

Dad looks up from his book. "How many hockey goals did that player, Bobby Hull, score in 1965?" he asks. "Where's our film on early hockey history?"

As he rises from his chair Mother speaks up. "Now dear, you know I was just about to look up the avian flight of the order Passeres. I saw a jay today."

The simple pressing of a button rolls back a door and we suddenly see that the living room opens into a larger second room. The far wall contains a large screen which can be used either for films or to project incoming television programs.

At the side of the room is a giant electronic console, capable of recording, playing large or small records or switching into an untold number of radio channels.

Dad strides to the side of the room where several dozen cans are filed neatly on shelves beside labels. "Here we are," he says, lifting a roll of film from one can. "The Ancient History of the National Hockey League."

Every Home

Unbelievable? It isn't, you know. A growing number of experts forecast today that at least one room in every home of the future will be devoted to learning.

Not formal learning. Not the kind you absorb by sitting in a classroom several days a week and writing examinations to prove what you have remembered. Call it "casual learning." And why not? We have been moving towards it for years.

A teacher who has devoted the last decade of his life to studying such trends asked me this week: "How many homes in Canada had an electric iron 10 years ago? How many of them lack a TV set today?"

"Look at what's available. Everything from tape recorders, hi-fi and stereo sets, electric dryers, washers, stoves that do everything but cook dinner, transistor radios hardly bigger than our hand."

"That's just the beginning. More and more of this 'hard-ware' if you can call it that, is devoted to filling one's spillover time. That's only natural since the other hardware is saving your time."

Work Week

"So how do you fill in spare time? The work week's getting shorter, even if the school week isn't. Something has to fill that time."

"If anyone thinks this idea of a casual learning room is crazy, I'd suggest they look at the square-eyed monster in the corner—their TV set."

There sits the greatest example of outside learning to him in the home in centuries. Imagine. You can switch from a hockey game miles away to a panel discussion, on to a play, then back to the hockey game.

"And it may be common within another 10 years for families to make their own TV shows for private viewing. I remember the first TV film tape-recorders years ago. They cost well over $40,000."

"That price was more than halved when Japanese manufacturers got into the market. Today some models costing only a few hundred dollars are being sold in Great Britain."

Price Down

"As techniques are improved and competition becomes stiffer on the market, it's inevitable that the price will come down even further. Why don't you buy one?"

Not this week, thank you, I replied. But it is still a sobering thought. What other advances will be common gadgets in our homes before we are all much older?

The only way we can find out is by living a little longer. But just be prepared.

Thinking about that summer job? I mention this only because the experts are predicting a rough time for students who wait till the last moment this spring before looking around.

Is this the summer to try a "worthwhile" job, one that won't pay much money but will give you a look at a field you may want to try some day? Let me know if you have ideas you would like to pass on to other readers.

Painfully, All Salute School Board Budget

The 1965 Greater Victoria School Board's $11,662,243 budget estimate was run up the flagpole Wednesday for the benefit of municipal representatives.

With pained expressions, everybody saluted.

Said Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis: "Every year we prepare ourselves for the shock of this budget and every year there is an increase."

Our council has been a little concerned about the high administration costs, but we realize the board has been burning the midnight oil on this matter, too.

"We need assurances from time to time that every penny is being spent wisely."

Acting Mayor Ald. Cecil Parrott also expressed concern about the 19 per cent estimated increase in administration costs, but he allowed "there is very little we can do about that."

The board's secretary-treasurer Thomas Christie explained the 19 per cent increase, $25,000, will go toward implementation of a new teacher's salary schedule, increases to officials, additional staff, persons employed late in 1964 and in regular teacher's increments.

He said another major reason for the high budget this year is that in addition to the regular operating costs, it also contained provisions for the board's 10 per cent share of a $2,500,000 vocational school plan.

SHARE COSTS
Under the vocational schools assistance act the major part of the costs would be shared by the federal and provincial government.

He said if the board did not take advantage of the cost-sharing agreement this year, the taxpayers would likely end up paying 50 per cent of the total cost under a referendum.

"It is a case of getting $9 for each $1 we invest at this time," said district superintendent John Gough.

He said the board's brief on the vocational schools' cost-sharing agreement would be submitted to the provincial educational department this week.

City manager Dennis Young suggested the total increase in the school board's budget this year could mean a two-mill increase in taxes. The increase was $1,348,164.

The education department has until April 15 to announce the assessments.

Tories Didn't Take Action On Hal Banks

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons was informed Wednesday that the former Conservative government received RCMP reports about union boss Hal Banks Feb. 23, 1959, and June 14, 1961, but took no action to prosecute him.

Donald Macdonald, parliamentary secretary to Justice Minister-Favreau, said former Conservative justice minister Davie Fulton instructed the RCMP in November, 1958, to investigate allegations that Banks was using force and threats of force to intimidate rival unions.

He said nothing came of the investigation until October, 1963, when the Liberal government prosecuted Banks, then president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), for conspiracy to beat up a rival union leader in 1957.

Banks later was convicted, sentenced to five years imprisonment and released on $25,000 bail pending his appeal. He jumped bail last summer and turned up in Brooklyn, N.Y.

FANS FROM ORIENT

India is a leading exporter of fans—the electric variety, with steaming Iraq the best customer in 1964.

TONGUE TEST SUGGESTED

The federal government should not allow immigrants to come to Canada without some knowledge of English, Victoria Labor Council was told Wednesday night.

Lack of English "sometimes causes them to be dismissed," said Gus Gildemeester, business agent for the Brotherhood of Painters.

Such persons made mistakes purely because they could not understand the language. The government had a duty to see they learned some English before being admitted to Canada, he said.

Reading Listed On Licence Plan For Auctioneers

A bill to establish a separate licensing system for livestock auctioneers was to be presented for second reading in the legislature today.

The bill, introduced by Agriculture Minister Frank Richter, would amend the Livestock Public Sales Act to provide a distinct licence for farm auctioneers who also would require a dealer's certificate under the Stock Brands Act.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

At the Victoria Maple Leafs' bunfeed Tuesday the main course called for the press to be served—live—to the diners. It had been chairman Phil Barter's idea to have local authors catch questions, along with perhaps vegetables and soggy fruits.

Rudolph Pilous, the Leafs' chief steward, seemed pleased with the arrangement. He has had his share of press passes and no doubt would have had a ripe time sticking his fork into certain soft hides.

MURRAY COSTELLO

The massacre never came off. Somehow the question of referees was raised. With live bait like that who wants to listen to typewriter lyrics?

Lifting the scalp of a hockey referee to investigate the packing inside for signs of life is not a new game, but it is increasing in popularity.

There is no limit to the number of players and you don't need a PhD to qualify. The main requirements are loud lungs, bias and a conviction that anybody who takes the job has to be buggy.

Now, Mr. Barter was saying, a word on refereeing in the Western Hockey League was in order. And here to deliver the sermon... Murray Costello, aide to WHL president Al Leader.

There is a word to describe refereeing in this part of the world, Mr. Costello said. The word is inadequate.

"We're getting complaints from managers, coaches, players, fans. But even here there is no consistency. When Art Skov worked games in the south, they said 'you can send him back any time.' But Frank Udvari, supposedly the No. 1 man in the National League, was a bust—in the eyes of the same people."

WHL Guinea Pig for NHL Experiment

Skov and Udvari are on the NHL payroll. Under an arrangement in effect for the first time this year, they belong to a pool of referees assigned to work NHL and WHL games. Unfortunately the most trusted arbiters only make brief flings into the wild west. The Western Hockey League has been exposed largely to others assigned to gain experience on the farm. Mr. Costello implied that the WHL is not delighted at being used as a guinea pig.

"We realize the need for better officials," Costello said. "But there's more to it than that."

"This is not the hockey of 10 or 20 years ago, except for the concept of control. No longer can one referee watch 12 players at the speed of today's game."

Costello came equipped with a plan—Al Leader's. Leader would eliminate the centre line, move the blue lines 10 feet closer, abandon the linesmen or put them off ice at the blue lines and use two referees.

One would work deep, ferreting out sins near the goal. The other would lag back to get a broader look at the gore.

Linesmen Off Ice? Yes... In a Cage

The Leader scheme would eliminate the two-line offside pass and would nullify the work of the scoundrel who waits to see if the ref is looking before committing assault.

Presumably with two referees, outstanding leg carvers like Portland's Connie Madigan and Seattle's Larry Zeldel would only be half safe.

Mr. Pilous, a man who has conceded that certain referees are less than the salt of the earth, liked the two-man idea with a qualification. One would have to be senior and so identified and they should work in reverse of the play.

Stationing linesmen off the ice? That was alright. "Providing," he said, "you build a cage around them."

Costello confirmed an opinion, expressed earlier, that at the start of the WHL season, the referees called all infractions. Alas, he admitted, they became less firm—"deteriorated," he called it—began to listen to squawling players and generally were less effective.

"The fault," Costello said, "lies in all areas. Even at the coaching level."

MacLeod Showed Fair Judgment

At the Victoria-Seattle game, an experiment was conducted to see if one referee, in this case Ken MacLeod had sufficiently large baby blue eyes to scan the entire surface for naughtiness and the inclination to tag the principals. And conversely to consider if the penalties levied were valid.

First period: Sandy Hucl hooked Fielder. No call. Fred Hucl hooked Hale. Nothing. Seattle's Larry Zeldel, the Al Capone of the blade set, drifted into a Victoria player and was sent off.

Second period: Gordie Redahl kneed Hale. Innocent. Claude Labrosse flagrantly held Dineen. Referee MacLeod out to lunch. Sandy Hucl gave it to a Seattle player where Nellie wore the beads. No whistle.

Third period: Zeldel left elbow marks on Jankowski's face. No conviction. Sandy Hucl (busy, wasn't he?) slashed Fielder but the cop on the beat didn't see it.

Overall MacLeod exercised reasonable judgment, the prime requisite for the job. He dispensed justice without indulging in the histrionics favored by some of his brethren. Some of the guff he missed occurred beyond the range of his vision.

Do They Breathe Or Are They Stuffed?

If Leader and Costello feel moved to rate officials for future employment, they should do it without the benefit of advice from coaches, players and fans.

Any analysis must be objective to be valuable. It cannot be dispassionate or honest if it is tainted by people too close to the game, full of impartiality and sportsmanship.

R. Pilous had the last word on this thorny question of whether referees breathe or are they stuffed.

"I know I'm always complainin'," Mons. Pilous said. "But it's only because I think hockey is the greatest game in the world."

"Become an official, then," interjected Costello. Mons. Pilous turned and stared at his heckler.

"My mother," he said, "raised no foolish children."

Gaudaur, Herb Only 'Logical' Candidates

VANCOUVER (CP)—The retiring president of the Western Football Conference says Herb Capozzi and Jake Gaudaur are "the only logical candidates" for the Canadian Football League commissioner's post.

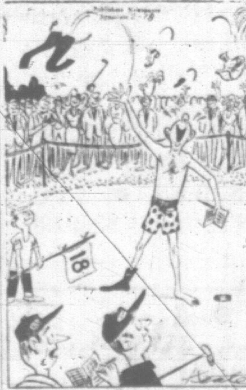

Allan D. McEachern, who is also vice-chairman of the British Columbia Lions board of directors, said Lions' general manager Capozzi and Gaudaur, who holds a similar post with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, are "definite contenders" for the post to be vacated by G. Sydney Halter next year.

"Capozzi and Gaudaur are chairmen of almost every committee in the CFL and the few they don't chair, they are members of," he said.

"Since they're doing all the work right now, they should certainly be given top preference for the post," McEachern said.

Pressure Applied By Prairie Rinks

FREDERICTON (CP)—Two Prairie rinks pressed a strong counterattack against a challenge from the Maritimes as the Canadian schoolboy curling championship entered the home stretch today.

With three rounds remaining in the 11-rink, round-robin competition, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Nova Scotia share the lead with identical 6-1, won-lost records.

All won their morning matches today.

Alberta and Saskatchewan returned to the ice this afternoon for what loomed as the biggest game of the bonspiel. The 10th round will be played tonight and the 11th and final round Friday morning.

Nova Scotia went against New Brunswick, still very much in the running, in another important ninth-round game today.

Wednesday's play saw Ontario knocked out of contention. The Toronto rink skipped by Paul Savage shared the lead entering the day's play but fell out of the running by losing two games, 7-5 to Alberta and 6-5 to British Columbia.

The B.C. rink, skipped by Dennis Poir of Burnaby, won its third game this morning but four losses suffered earlier leaves the West Coast province with no hope of overhauling the leaders.

U.S. Grid Deaths Go Up Sharply

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood, chairman of the American Football Coaches Association, said today deaths in U.S. football rose to 45 in 1964 from 24 in 1963.

Twenty-seven of the deaths could be traced to traumatic blows while the others came from indirect causes, including heart failure, heat stroke and infection, the professor said.

Twenty-one of the traumatic deaths were suffered in high school games, three in college, two in sandlot play and one by a professional athlete, Eastwood said.

The majority of the victims played in the backfield and died of head injuries, Dr. Eastwood said.

Dr. Eastwood is a professor at Los Angeles State College and has been keeping records of gridiron fatalities for 33 years. His report on 1964 deaths was reported in the Medical Tribune.

Double Title Go

Set for March 30

NEW YORK (AP)—A world boxing championship double-header for the welterweight and light-heavyweight titles—apparently has been clinched by Madison Square Garden for Tuesday, March 30.

In the two 15-round bouts, light-heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano of Miami, will meet Jose Torres of New York, and welterweight king Emile Griffith of New York will fight Jose Stable, No. 1 contender from New York. Torres is ranked fifth among the light-heavy contenders.

Seattle U Rocked By Bribe Charges

SEATTLE (AP)—Two Seattle University basketball stars and a Chicago tavern owner were arrested Wednesday night on bribery conspiracy charges involving a game with the University of Idaho.

Charlie Williams, captain of the Chiefs, a teammate, Peller Phillips, and Leo Casale, 24, of Chicago, were arrested in connection with the Jan. 22 game in Seattle. Casale was arrested in Chicago.

Seattle won the game 89-72. Williams and Phillips were arraigned Wednesday night, and U.S. Commissioner Walter Resburg, Jr., released them on $1,000 bond each for a preliminary hearing March 1.

'DID CONSPIRE'

The charge against Casale and the two 21-year-old students is "that they did conspire... to carry into effect a scheme or plan in commerce to influence a sporting contest by bribery."

Williams is Seattle's high scorer, averaging 20 points a game, and has been prominently mentioned as a contender for All-America honors.

In the Idaho game, he scored 16 points, and Phillips accounted for eight.

Williams could not be reached for comment, and Phillips' wife said he would have no statement to make.

Don Wood, publicity representative for SU, said both players were suspended from the school for not reporting the alleged incident.

... $2 MILLION MOVE

Forum May Be Rebuilt

VANCOUVER (CP)—The executive of the Pacific National Exhibition is considering rebuilding the aging Vancouver Forum hockey arena to seat at least 10,000 spectators, PNE president Capt. H. J. C. Terry said Wednesday.

Terry said in an interview the project would cost at least $2,000,000.

City council has said it was strongly in favor of a downtown site for a coliseum, preferably combined with a convention centre.

"We don't want to get into a fight with council," Terry said. "It's just a case of the PNE needing a new arena."

"We are not interested in convention facilities."

Terry said the PNE was motivated only by the desire to improve facilities for professional hockey in the city.

COUGARS RIDDLED BY CLASSY ROYALS

New Westminster Royals, the team holding a firm grip on the Pacific Coast junior hockey championship, has played 51 games this season.

Victoria Cougars have played only half that number.

And that appeared quite obvious Wednesday night as Royals outskated and outbumped the Cougars to breeze to a 14-2 victory and a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five playoff series.

Royals, who displayed far better positional play than the Cougars, have won 43, tied two and lost only six of their games this year. They'll have home-ice benefits on their side when game No. 3 will be played Sunday at New Westminster.

Royals, who won the first game 8-2 at New Westminster, led 3-0 at the end of the first period and 7-0 going into the third.

Wayne Goss scored four goals for Royals while Kevin McGladery and Paul Shmyr each collected three goals. Mike Paulin scored a pair and singles went to John Shmyr and George Parrett.

Jim Shkwaruk and Bob Pike scored for Victoria.

Victoria goalkeeper Bob Richter turned aside 31 shots and Don Wallis of New Westminster was called on for 28.

Persons interested are asked to contact manager Fred Magee (EV 3-3303).

'Fight Or Else ...'

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The World Boxing Council said Wednesday that world flyweight champion Pone Kingpetch will have to honor a contract for a title defence against Italian challenger Salvatore Burrini in Rome next March 12 or face loss of his title.

Canadians In Second Victory Over Finns

TURKU, Finland (CP)—A touring Canadian amateur hockey team defeated Finland 2-0 Wednesday for its second straight victory over the Finns in two days.

The Canadian team, made up largely of players from Winnipeg Maroons, defeated Finland 4-2 at Tampere Tuesday.

The Canadian team includes two men who will play on the Canadian national team which will compete in world hockey championships at Tampere March 4 to 14. They are goaltender Don Collins and defenceman Bill Johnson.

Wednesday's game was the second in an eight-day tour for the Canadians.

Jim Irving and John Russell scored the Canadian goals.

The Canadian team's next game is in Stockholm Friday against the Swedish national team. The team plays three games in Stockholm and then proceeds to Moscow for a three-game series beginning Feb. 25.

Meanwhile, St. Paul Rangers of the Central Hockey League grabbed a 3-0 first-period lead and were never threatened in whipping U.S. Nationals 7-4 in an exhibition hockey game Wednesday night at St. Paul.

The game marked the final appearance for the Nationals before they head for Europe Thursday. The Nationals, with a 1-2-2 record in exhibition games in Minnesota, will play a brief exhibition schedule in Europe before competing in the world tournament in Finland.

Hull Aggravates Knee Hurt Again

By The Canadian Press

While Bobby Hull keeps turnstiles turning, Stan Mikita may be secretly leading Chicago Black Hawks to a National Hockey League championship.

Secretly, because Mikita plays in the shadow of Hull, one of the most exciting players in pro hockey. No one can deny Hull's value to Chicago, but these days Stan is the man up front.

Slowed by a knee injury and the tenacity of his opponents' checking, Hull has accounted for a mere goal and two assists in Chicago's last 12 games. But the Hawks are four points ahead of the pack in the pennant race, and Mikita is the reason.

The Chicago centre has scored nine goals and is credited with 19 assists in Chicago's last 20 games. Thirteen points behind Hull in the scoring race at mid-season, he now leads by one point.

WINGS CLIPPED

Mikita took the lead with his two points Wednesday night as he paced the Hawks to a comeback 5-4 victory over New York Rangers at Chicago. In the only other game played, Montreal-Canadiens blanked Detroit Red Wings 2-0 behind Charlie Hodge's third shutout.

Mikita's worth doubled in the past week when Hull was laid up with knee injury. Hull may sit out another game this week because of another injury sustained Wednesday.

The blond winger was hurt in the first period when checked by New York defenceman Arnie Brown. The Chicago team doctor said Hull "shouldn't skate at all until Saturday."

Trailing 4-2 at the start of the third period, the Hawks got two quick goals from Doug Mohns and Fred Stanfield to tie the game. Mikita's 21st goal gave the Hawks the victory with less than six minutes remaining.

RANGERS LED

Kenny Hurreham gave Chicago a 1-0 lead in the first, Earl Ingarfield, Rod Gilbert, Vic Hadfield and Donnie Marshall counted four for the Rangers in the second to only one

BOWLER OF WEEK

Three Sevens Give Helen Pin Laurels

Everything eventually came up sevens for Helen Montgomery and she became the first Sooke pin-spiller to win a weekly award in the Bowler-of-the-Week contest, being sponsored for the second season by The Daily Times.

Mrs. Montgomery fired a 777 series on games of 223, 293 and 261 in league play at Rainbow Lanes, Sooke, to top the women's fivepin division.

The Milne's Landing housewife, mother of a boy and a girl, has been bowling for about 12 years. She is now eligible to compete against other weekly winners in the 28-week contest in the Bowler-of-the-Year rolloff on May 9.

Tight Races Dominate Puck Scene

Interest in Friday's Esquimalt and District Hockey League double-header at the Sports Centre is a double-barrelled affair.

Firstly, sights will be set on the league's race for second place. There the inside track belongs to Esquimalt Pontiac Chiefs, who boast a two-point advantage over Navy and who will be matched with last-place Army in the nightcap that starts at 9:15.

The third-place Sailors will go against University of Victoria Vikings, who already have clinched first place, in the opener at 7:45.

Secondly, there's added interest in the individual scoring race where only two points separate the league's top marksmen.

Chiefs' Wayne Anderson holds down top place with 22 points, one more than teammates Orv Coulter and Bob Fowler and Vikings' Glyn Harper.

The scoring story:

	G	A	Pts
Wayne Anderson, Esquimalt	9	13	22
Glyn Harper, Vikings	11	19	21
Orv Coulter, Esquimalt	11	30	21
Bob Fowler, Esquimalt	9	12	21
Jim Haggerty, Vikings	8	21	20
Joe Iannarelli, Esquimalt	8	12	20
Ken Maxwell, Navy	5	15	20

Damaging Outburst

MILAN, Italy (Reuters) — A devastating second-half burst of three goals in five minutes led Inter-Milan to a 3-1 win over Glasgow Rangers in their European Cup quarter-final first-leg match here Wednesday night.

READY FOR ANYTHING

Cross-country training has been soggy business this week and Victoria High School athletes Jim Eaton (left) and Mal Blann were prepared for showers, snow or sun as they plodded through practice paces. They'll be in action in four-mile championship event for secondary school runners at 4 p.m. Friday. Race will start and finish on Vic High track. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Saanich Anglers Set Salmon Derby Dates

Directors of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association have set dates for the fishing club's major competitions in the 1965 season.

Heading the list is the annual Handicapped Children's Derby, co-sponsored by the VSIAA and the Daily Times. The big one-day event will be staged at Saanich Inlet Sunday, Aug. 15, and will be open to all anglers.

Members of the VSIAA will hold their own derby on June 6 and again will be chasing prizes in their chinook-coho derby on Sept. 19.

The junior derby, open to all youngsters under 16, is slated for July 25.

VSIAA members have been reminded that, after catching a button-sized salmon, they are responsible for ensuring a claiming certificate is forwarded to the club secretary.

Frustrated Lions Talk Of Looking 'Elsewhere'

VANCOUVER (CP)

A British Columbia Lions director said Wednesday the football club may have to consider joining a non-Canadian league if the Canadian Football League's "indicated trend of cutting-back" continues.

Lions' vice-chairman Al McEachern, who is also retiring president of the CFL's Western Football Conference, said club officials were "disappointed, discouraged and frustrated" by new CFL policies determined at the league's annual meeting in Ottawa last week.

The Grey Cup champion Lions were disgruntled about decisions to reduce import rosters from 15 to 14 and restrict naturalized imports three per team.

AIM TO IMPROVE

"It has always been our aim to improve the game and expand in British Columbia," McEachern said. "The cut-backs, without our approval, indicate a trend toward contracting, not expanding."

"If that attitude were to continue, we would have no alternative but to look elsewhere for a league to play in," he said.

He said the American and National Football Leagues in the United States would be "logical alternatives."

But he said the club would try to get the new rulings reversed at the CFL's meeting in June.

"We want to improve Canadian football; not harm it," McEachern said.

He said the club would not threaten the league with withdrawal at the June meeting but "something has to be done" to keep the league from lapsing into negative action.

LEAGUE TOO SMALL

Asked if he thought the Lions were getting too big for the CFL, McEachern said "it would appear, instead, that the league may be getting too small for us."

He said the team "is in no position" to make an immediate bid to join the NFL or AFL because they require a minimum 40,000 seat stadium in a member's city.

But Lions' stadium committee member A. M. Eyre said he is anxious to meet with Burnaby officials who have proposed just such a 40,000 seat coliseum.

He said the Burnaby stadium "would be a fabulous place to play football."

"It would give us the expanded facilities we need to look after our fans."

BOBBY MARSH RETURNS TO VANCOUVER'S HELM

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bobby Marsh is the new coach of the Mann Cup champion Vancouver lacrosse team, back in the spot he held three years ago.

Club officials said Wednesday Marsh takes over from Alex Mackay, who replaced him in 1962 but who last week announced his retirement.

Marsh retired in 1961 after Vancouver won the senior Canadian lacrosse championship to become a player again. He played in 1962 and 1963 but was sidelined in 1964 with knee trouble.

"I'm happy to be back now that I'm through as a player," was Marsh's reaction to his new appointment. "I want to keep my hand in the game."

Yachtmen Get Healthy Grant From Ottawa

TORONTO (CP)—The department of national health and welfare has given the Canadian Yachting Association "a substantial amount" of money towards helping junior sailing and the Pan-American and Olympic game classes in Canada. R. C. Stevenson of Montreal, has announced.

Stevenson, chairman of the CYA's membership committee for 1965, did not specify the amount at the association's annual meeting here.

It was reported that $10,000 has been set aside towards financing junior sailing seminars this year.

LOWER ISLAND MEET

Bays Assigned Favorite's Role

St. Louis College is the host, Victoria High the defending champions. But the eyes of the high school set will be focused on Oak Bay.

That's the advance picture as Greater Victoria schools warm up for the 10th annual Lower Island senior boys' championship tournament.

The two-day tourney, drawing the top four clubs from the Inter-High League's day division and the top four from the night league, will be held Friday and Saturday at Central Junior High.

UNBEATEN RECORD

Oak Bay, unbeaten in league play this season, is favored to claim the tournament title. As the fates would have it, Oak Bay is drawn against Belmont in the opening game at 4:15 Friday afternoon.

Friday's other first-round games will have Claremont, the night-side champs, meeting Esquimalt Dockers at 6; Vic High Totems, the defending Lower Island kings, face University School at 7:15, while St. Louis, the tourney hosts, play Mount View Hornets at 8:30.

Tournament play resumes Saturday morning at 10:30 with Friday's four losers playing the first two games. Semifinals will be played starting at 1, the consolation final at 5, and the championship finale at 8:45.

'Pension Shift Election Hint'

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister L. B. Pearson's surprise announcement of his government's plan to pay the $75 old age pension at age 65 instead of 70 was seen here as "just one more straw in the wind" indicating an election.

New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas said Wednesday night the Prime Minister's announcement strengthened his conviction that there would be a June general election.

"It's just one more straw in the wind," he said. "All the little signs are popping up. I see them with a politician's weather eye and I have that feeling. We will probably get a budget early this spring with tax cuts and then we'll have an election," Mr. Douglas said.

However, Mr. Douglas' colleague in the Commons, Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre), did not agree. He said his leader was out on a limb predicting June 21 as the general election date, but Mr. Knowles did not see the pension announcement as a sure sign of an early general election. Rather, he said, he preferred to take it as an indication that the federal government had realized that something must be done to assist those who are not 70 and in need of a form of pension.

ELECTION SIGNS

But the New Democratic Party national leader pointed out that if the Liberal minority government is thinking seriously about a general election this spring "then certainly this reduction in the age for the pension will not do the government any harm." He said he did not know what the government was planning but in his opinion, the election signs were appearing.

The announcement made by Mr. Pearson could make for a maximum monthly benefit—the old age pension plus the Canada pension—of a monthly $179.

Mr. Pearson said that depending upon parliamentary action, starting next January, the old age pension could start at age 69, then a year later at 68 until by 1970 those retiring would get the pension at age 65.

LIVING COSTS

The Canada pension plan will have a clause tying the basic old age pension to the living costs. Under the proposal put before Parliament Wednesday by Mr. Pearson the pension will be paid automatically at age 65 in the full amount of $75 plus the cost-of-living adjustment.

The prime minister's announcement set the parliamentary corridors buzzing with early election talk. One top-ranking government spokesman was asked if this could be interpreted as an election sign. He replied in the negative but added that if an election did happen to come along this year it would be a "good piece of ammunition to have in the campaign arsenal."

Cost of the early payment, by 1970, will run to an annual $180,000,000 it is estimated by government officials.

It replaces the former old age assistance which has been paid, on a means test, from 65 to 70.

PENSION PLAN

It also replaces old age security, proposed under the Canada pension plan, which would have paid off, at a reduced rate in the 65 to 70 age bracket, starting at $51 monthly.

It will be paid in addition to the Canada Pension plan benefits.

The early payment old age pension is universal, everybody will get it.

The Canada pension plan benefits are contributory.

But together at the maximum—that is for those earning $5,000 or more, the total pension at 65 will be the $75 basic pension plus the $104 or a total of $179 monthly.

The early pay pension will be paid unconditionally to all those retiring with 10 years' residence in Canada.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA of West High School, from Bremerton, Wash., will be visiting Victoria on February 20, 21 and 22. The 65-piece orchestra, conducted by Mr. William Bissell, visited Victoria in the spring of 1964. The orchestra plays a concert for the general public on Sunday afternoon and arrangements have been made through the courtesy of the Empress Hotel, where the orchestra will be staying, to hold the program in the Crystal Ballroom at 3 p.m. The general public is invited to pick up the complimentary tickets at Western Music Co., Ltd., 820 Fort Street, Victoria.

'Bug Knows No Boundaries'

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Wednesday told the legislature that unorganized suburban areas will have to incorporate to protect the health of their residents as well as provide services.

"The hepatitis bug is not aware of political boundaries," he said.

"And it is now established that there is an exact and direct relationship between hospital admissions for this disease along Highway 16 and the sewer and unsewered areas along it," he said.

Highway 16 is the northern trans-provincial road linking Prince Rupert to Prince George. Outside the house, Mr. Campbell said that incidence of hepatitis (jaundice) rose sharply in septic tank areas and fell in sewer communities.

Mr. Campbell told the MLAs that the same situation in all probability applied throughout the province in all "bedroom" suburbs as well as small communities.

Mr. Campbell said "upwards of three-dozen areas" are studying approaches to incorporation as a result of an intensive education campaign by his department.

Mr. Campbell said many organized areas would be improved if they amalgamated but "there is no doubt we do have a parochial cancer in some parts of B.C."

This made it politically unrealistic to rely on amalgamation, annexation or metropolitan government as "the only tools" for tackling regional problems.

"This government wants to find the solution by the process of rationalization, by the process of synthesis and not by the process of force," he said.

The result is the proposed joint services board concept under active study in Greater Victoria—which would allow persons to retain their pride in local municipalities while providing the means for solving inter-municipal problems.

Mr. Campbell said the move into the countryside had resulted in urban sprawl that created "chuck towns," inadequate sanitation, increasing pollution, lack of park areas in built-up areas and "dozens of overlapping administrative vehicles" for garbage disposal, water services, fire protection and other necessities.

Mr. Campbell announced that 25 University of B.C. town planning students this Sunday would leave Campbell River for a four-day tour of the north end of Vancouver Island to inspect the rapid development of communities there.

He said several forestry firms, merchant groups and his department would assist the study tour.

The minister defended the homeowner grant as a logical transfer payment to residential owners. He said if the grants were given directly to the municipalities, they would be applied to relieve the tax loads on commercial and industrial properties too.

Mr. Campbell also attacked the "wickedness of McCarthy-ism" he attributed to Liberal Harry McKay's naming of Al Williamson as author of the phony Bennett letter because it overstepped "the division between the legislative and judicial functions of our system."

This sparked a shouting match between him and Anthony Gargrave (NDP—Mackenzie) which saw Speaker William Murray force Mr. Gargrave to withdraw his statement that "the minister is a pompous ass." The speaker also reprimanded Mr. Campbell for failing to address the chair.

MINARET LOSES LONG LEAN LOOK

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Russians have straightened the leaning minaret of Samarkand.

And, they said, they might be able to help Italians straighten the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

The top of the 15th-century Ulughbek minaret in the ancient Soviet city has leaned by five feet for the past 30 years and has been supported by cables. The news agency Tass said it was jacked upright today at the end of a two-month operation.

Engineer Emanuel Gandel, who was in charge of the job, told a Tass correspondent the method they used here could certainly be applied to bolster up many structures, including the Leaning Tower of Pisa in Italy, although, constructionally, a different system would have to be applied," Tass said.

TWO MONTHS

It said during the two-month operation the 970-ton minaret was "wholly detached from the foundation and put on a steel structure under which 10 hydraulic jacks with a total capacity of 2,000 tons were placed.

"The final stage of the work was an impressive sight," it said. "With the help of jacks the minaret began gradually to straighten up. The tower slowly moved to a vertical position at a speed of one half-inch an hour."

Fix Boundaries For Parks—NDP

A new Parks Act should be written which would fix the boundaries of all provincial parks so that they could not be changed by the provincial cabinet, Leo Nimsick (NDP—Cranbrook) told the legislature Wednesday.

NIMSICK

Letter May Have Been Hand Signed

The "W. A. C. Bennett" signature on the phony "Dear Hal" letter must have been signed by hand, it was indicated by an answer tabled in the legislature Wednesday.

Premier Bennett was asked by Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby) if there were any mechanical signature writing devices used by government officials, who they were and other details.

The premier's written reply listed six such devices used to duplicate the signatures of various departmental and crown agency officials. His own name was not among them.

House Hears Udder Side Of Story

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons rocked with laughter Wednesday when an opposition MP read some choice excerpts from a speech about udders made in Toronto earlier in the day by Agriculture Minister Hays.

Leon Balcer (PC—Trois-Rivières) rose during the oral question period and quoted these lines from a speech in which Mr. Hays discussed a new prize class for dairy fairs—"best udder":

"I've been told it's a simplification of a very complicated situation to say an udder is an udder and that it doesn't matter to what kind of cow it is attached."

"With all due respect to women and dairy cows, I think the same argument applies to some of our beauty contestants. I realize that a lot more could be said on the subject, but isn't an ankle an ankle, a bosom a bosom, whether the girl is Canadian or Swedish or from Australia?"

"After all, a cow's equipment, just like a woman's is intended to do a certain job and the most important part of a dairy cow's equipment is the udder, regardless of her breed."

When the laughter died down, Mr. Balcer asked Mr. Hays, who was in the House, to elaborate on those interesting observations.

"Every farmer in Canada will understand those words," the minister replied, touching off another roar.

Blast Injures 7

MONTREAL (CP)—Seven persons were injured Wednesday night when an explosion and fire destroyed a three-storey apartment building in Montreal's Cote des Neiges district. Four residents of the building, which housed 12 families, were among the injured along with a police constable and two firemen.

He said the cabinet had "chipped away at our parks" by permitting mining development in Strathcona Park and by swapping pieces of various parks with private concerns for property thought to be desirable.

Mr. Nimsick said it was true that Western Mines had developed a mine on a crown-granted mineral claim made many years ago but he said this development likely would not have occurred except that "this government only a few years ago made the suggestion that prospecting would be allowed in the parks."

Now, he said, the park would be further despoiled by a proposed townsite and this could be followed by more townsites.

"It's not so much what has already happened that worries me as to what will happen in the future," he said.

For this reason a new parks act was needed that would create park boundaries that only could be changed by the legislature itself, he said.

Mr. Nimsick repeated his earlier criticism of conditions in Brannen Lake School.

THREE WEEKS

He said a probation officer had verified his contention that young boys were held in solitary as much as three weeks while awaiting disposition of court cases.

Mr. Nimsick, noting criticism of his statements by government backbenchers, said MLAs were not elected to "whitewash" the government but to represent the interests of their constituents.

A government automobile insurance agency would eliminate the overhead costs of some 200 private companies in the field and ensure that all British Columbians were covered, he said.

Mr. Nimsick said he had heard of one case where a youth was charged $600 for car insurance.

He said this was a "back door" method of banishing him from the highway.

A wealthy person could afford that high a premium but not an ordinary citizen and this monetary distinction should be eliminated.

Mines Minister Donald Brotherton said the high premium probably was the result of a bad driving record.

LOSE LICENCE

"If anyone is not fit to drive he should lose his driver's licence, not be able to buy it with $600," replied Mr. Nimsick.

He also suggested that MLAs' salaries should be put on a sliding scale which would give higher remuneration to those serving large rural ridings where travel and other expenses are high.

Mr. Nimsick said there should be a study made of the Manitoba system which provides a special classification of remuneration for members representing rural ridings.

Mr. Nimsick said a provincial safety committee should be set up to make highway regulations, including setting speed limits.

He said Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi should not be allowed to set speed limits because he has a speed "phobia" and a record of speeding.

College Issues Pills

SHEFFIELD, England (AP)—Sheffield University's student health service has started issuing birth control pills to reduce the number of the illegitimate births among students. Dr. Peter Gifford, the director of the health service, said Tuesday illegitimate births among the university's 700 girl students were running at the rate of 12 a year.

TWISTER'S BALL

Ole Empress Will Rock 'n' Roll

By AB KENT

There'll be rocking at the Empress Saturday night. The staid old lady of the Inner Harbor will lift her skirts to reveal a modern day cuttin' contest between two rock 'n' roll bands in the ballroom.

Brainchild of four Victoria teen-agers at University of Victoria, the twister's ball could roll the rockers into a jackpot. Inspired to do something out of the ordinary for the hard rock set, a group called Take Four, led by Bernice Mueller, hired the ballroom at a $100 reduction for the student dance.

'GUT PLUCKERS'

They also engaged a Port Alberni gut-plucking group, the Bel Aires, to come and play. Now they find they can't advertise on the university campus and are fearful of losing their tab collar shirts.

A sympathizer, Mrs. Elva Radtke, 3685 Kathleen, in whose basement the Take Fours have been rehearsing, said they need a promotion to bail them out and get a crowd Saturday night.

A break-even bill of about $300 stares them in the face and the advance sale tickets total some $54.

One of the group, says Mrs. Radtke, has considered jumping off a building into a teacup to draw a crowd.

Meanwhile, hoping for the best, rehearsals go on, with Bernice playing lead guitar, Cal Bachelor playing bass guitar, Bobby Lee on drums and Liverpoolian Phil Linfield blasting the Mersey Beat.

They are trained to take over from regular officers in traffic direction and crowd control. But their service does not extend to their employment in civil disputes such as labor strikes, a senior officer emphasized.

The auxiliary was conceived at a time when civil defence organization was given a new role, that of national disaster planning. An order-in-council passed by the B.C. cabinet in 1960 authorized all detachments to recruit one auxiliary for each regular officer.

The full complement has not been attained in all areas. There are six in Colwood but only one at Sooke and one at Sidney. The federal government pays 75 per cent of the costs. The provincial government 15 per cent and municipal governments 10 per cent.

Existence of the auxiliary has not meant any reduction in the 1,500-man regular officer force in B.C.

Not all, but most, are in uniform and sidearms have been ordered but not yet issued. The auxiliary officer wears a standard RCMP uniform with a shoulder patch and a cap badge showing his status.

Although he serves without pay, some of the part-time officers log as many as 100 hours a month in patrols and training.

The 12-week classroom course covers criminal law, discipline, first aid, foot drill, crowd control, traffic control and small arms training. Their practical training takes them on patrols, but only under supervision of a regular officer.

While there has been no drive for recruits there has been no shortage. Each applicant must be a respected resident of the area where he serves. Final selection is up to the senior NCO in each detachment, but each must be a British subject.

He must be between the ages of 18 and 55 generally, and stand five feet six to six feet five, with a good build and be well proportioned. He can be married or single with a minimum Grade 7 education. He must submit his fingerprints and have no other emergency commitments.

The auxiliaries have merged so smoothly with the regular force, many British Columbia residents don't know they exist.

Potential Doubled In Rural Areas

By PETE LOUDON

Almost unnoticed by the general public, the strength of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police has been recently increased by 650 men in British Columbia.

Spread throughout every community where there is an RCMP detachment, they have almost doubled the potential of the force in rural areas.

And except for the cost of uniforms, side-arms and training, they haven't cost the taxpayer a cent.

The full story of the creation of the RCMP Auxiliary was told to The Times today by senior officials of the force at B.C. headquarters here.

The auxiliary officers are recruited in the communities in which they live and serve. Given an abbreviated training course, they learn most of their duties travelling on patrols with regular force officers.

The auxiliary, which is expected to grow to a strength of up to 800, swears it members as peace officers with power of arrest. But their main purpose is to create a well-trained reinforcing unit which can be called into service in any emergency or disaster.

They are trained to take over from regular officers in traffic direction and crowd control. But their service does not extend to their employment in civil disputes such as labor strikes, a senior officer emphasized.

Moonie Guilty 'Manslaughter'

Jury Recommends Leniency; Judge Asks Probation Report

The three-day trial of Gary Allan Moonie, 21, charged with the non-capital murder of his father, ended in a verdict of manslaughter Wednesday afternoon.

The 12-man jury added a recommendation for leniency, and Chief Justice J. O. Wilson replied: "You may be sure your recommendation will receive the most serious and sympathetic consideration."

"I have no quarrel with your verdict," he added.

The jury took less than an hour to reach its verdict after listening to a two-hour summation by Chief Justice Wilson.

Addressing a crowded courtroom, the chief justice remanded Moonie in custody for sentence until Friday, Feb. 26.

"I want a probation report and I want to give very careful thought to the sentence."

Moonie had been charged with the non-capital murder of his father, Allan Austin Moonie, 41, by shooting him with a .303 rifle at their home at 110 Hartland Road, Saanich, in the early hours of Nov. 28 last.

The father died in Royal Jubilee Hospital two days later from kidney damage, shock and peritonitis.

"VULNERABLE"

"If a man intended to kill, he would be more likely to aim at the upper part of the body, which is generally more vulnerable," the chief justice said.

"If there is any reasonable doubt as to whether the accused shot his father he must be found not guilty. And if you find it was an accident you must find him not guilty."

"If you conclude he did actually shoot his father, then you have to decide whether he is guilty of murder or manslaughter."

"CAN'T REMEMBER"

The chief justice noted that, in his statements to police, Moonie had repeatedly stated: "I didn't mean to kill him" and he said he did not remember firing the shot which killed his father.

"You may say: 'Poor young devil he has suffered enough.' But emotion cannot be allowed to guide a decision in law. You must decide on the evidence whether the accused committed murder or manslaughter."

Chief Justice Wilson said it appeared from the evidence that Moonie, Sr., was "not a very pleasant man." He returned home in the small hours of the morning and abused his young daughter (Gail, 14) about giving milk to her cat.

(In evidence it was stated that Moonie, Sr., returned home intoxicated and screamed at his daughter after stepping on the cat's milk saucer.)

REASON FOR ANGER

Chief Justice Wilson said it appeared the accused had reason to be angry with his father and, according to police evidence, he had said he wanted to hurt him.

The chief justice noted that the accused, in a statement to police, had said his sister was "all kicked up inside" and that

'Finest Principles Of the Law'

The people of Saanich have every right to be proud of their police force, Chief Justice J. O. Wilson said in Assize Court Wednesday.

"I honestly believe they upheld the finest principles of the administration of the law," said the chief justice in reference to two detectives and three police officers who gave evidence at the trial of Gary Allan Moonie, 21, found guilty of manslaughter in the death of his father, Allan Austin Moonie.

Later the chief justice said: "I was most impressed by the conduct of these police officers. They seemed to be trying at all times to be fair to the accused."

Hugh McGivern, the lawyer defending Moonie, also praised the Saanich police.

"I am convinced these officers did all in their power to be fair to the accused," Mr. McGivern said.

The officers referred to were Detective Sgt. Robin Stewart, Detective Norman Baker, Sgt. Robert Coleman, Constable James White and Constable J. M. Post.

When she began crying her father mimicked her crying.

He said he had formed the opinion the accused was "emotionally unstable," but added:

TOLD TRUTH

"Any man who has shot another, especially his father, would be emotionally disturbed. And there is a perfectly valid argument that he would be telling the truth when he was in an upset state."

In his final address to the jury, Crown prosecutor William R. McIntyre said the evidence showed the shooting was "no accident."

Symphony Tired — But Triumphant

Tired but triumphant, 22 members of Victoria Symphony Orchestra returned to Victoria at 6:30 this morning after playing to an audience of 1,200 at Bellingham Wednesday afternoon. But the performers looked much less jubilant when they returned early today. The reception in Bellingham was grand but fog delayed their return.

Most of them went straight to work.

Delayed by navigational difficulties, they arrived late at the university auditorium Wednesday evening and the performance was held up half an hour.

The huge audience, advised of their troubles, waited patiently and greeted the orchestra with a storm of applause when they rushed in with their instruments.

There was still more applause when the orchestra concluded their performance of the Strauss opera Die Fledermaus with the Canadian Opera Company.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE

This was a repeat of the performance given by both organizations in the Royal Theatre Sunday and Monday—and it was their first appearance in Bellingham.

They left Coal Harbor in high spirits aboard the Victoria motor vessel Blue Fjord at 2 p.m. Wednesday, ran into fog on the voyage south and had difficulty finding a landing in Bellingham Harbor.

They finally located one at Bellingham Yacht Club, but a policeman on duty redirected them to a wharf adjoining a pulp mill.

Unable to find the wharf, they returned to the yacht club, scrambled ashore and telephoned the university. Soon after, they were being rushed to the university in a motor bus.

"We had no time for a meal," said French horn player Charles Moore. "But the university served us sandwiches between the acts."

After the performance, the orchestra returned to the motor vessel and sailed for Victoria at 12:30 a.m.

They ran into more fog on the way home and few had any sleep.

"It was a wearing night," said Mr. Moore, "but we felt compensated by the wonderful reception we had in Bellingham. It was the most enthusiastic audience I can remember—anywhere."

Schools to Expand
Sex Education Plan

By BOB DONAHUE
Times Education Reporter

The Greater Victoria School Board's family life program will be expanded to include all seven junior secondary schools sometime after Easter, district superintendent John Gough said today.

The sex education program was piloted last November at Oak Bay Junior High School with more than 300 Grade 8 students participating.

Mr. Gough said reaction to the program has been good so far and it will likely be expanded to include the 2,100 Grade 8 students in the seven schools.

HIRING MORE DOCTORS

A $5,000 provision for hiring additional physicians to teach the classes is contained in the board's budget estimates for 1965.

"This may be putting the cart before the horse," said Mr. Gough, "but we believe the plan will be approved by parents."

He said the pilot program at Oak Bay will not be completed

NEW CANADIAN POLICY

'Welcome Sign' Out To Skilled Worker

Canada employs no discrimination of race or color in choosing its immigrants, a senior official of the federal department said here today.

But Canada is selective in that it seeks immigrants who have skills necessary to this country, said J. K. Abbott, Ottawa director of the Canadian service of the immigration branch of the federal government.

Mr. Abbott and Pacific region director L. C. Hawkins were interviewed here today prior to their meeting with regional personnel, about 30 immigration officers from the B.C.-Yukon area.

Why has Canada so few Negroes if there is no racial discrimination? Mr. Abbott was asked. He was reminded that early last year, Governor George C. Wallace of Alabama, a U.S. segregationist, said here that Canada is discriminatory, and does not let Negroes settle here.

NOT TRUE

"This isn't true," said Mr. Abbott. "We turn to countries that have large labor-skilled populations."

He said that in countries such as the West Indies there is a smaller percentage of highly-skilled labor available for export.

"And we have a responsibility to the underdeveloped nations to take the few skilled people they have," Mr. Abbott added.

Are there not a large number of highly-trained Negroes in the United States?

"We receive comparatively few applications from them," he said.

Mr. Hawkins said the same desire to find people whose skills are most needed in Canada sets the policy for Oriental immigration.

Recently in Vancouver, a move was spearheaded by Douglas Jung, a former Vancouver Conservative MP, to bring Chinese laborers to the Fraser delta area as farm workers.

The campaign has received no formal recognition by the department, said Mr. Hawkins.

MUST SHOW NEED

If a need is shown for such immigrants and if wages and working conditions offered are adequate, then the proposal would be considered, he stated.

"But so far I haven't received any representation from the farmers who would be the employers," he said.

The two officials said that in past years Canada has been most concerned with bringing settlers to Canada, but now the emphasis is on bringing in people who fit into gaps in Canadian manpower resources.

OUTLOOK CHANGED

The future of the Canadian-born worker is the prime concern, they explained. This change in outlook is the reason behind the three-day closed meetings now under way here.

In the period of 1963-64, Canada brought in up to 115,000 immigrants from 27 different countries. Greater industrialization in Europe has not depleted the sources of skilled immigrants, but "the market is very competitive now."

Canada has to change its approach in view of changing world conditions. The department intends to work closely with provincial labor departments and a move to co-operate with the Canadian Labour Congress is probable, the officials explained.

Be Cool and Collected Though Others Wilt

By PENNY SAVER

Even this "liquid sunshine" is doing nothing to dampen Penny's spirits these days. Spring is on the way. For the past few weeks, I have been mentioning some of the new spring fashions I have seen and today will be no exception.

Another cool and comfortable idea for spring is washable, drip-dry seersucker. This lightweight fabric stays crisp through washing and never needs ironing.

I noticed one outfit in particular, selling for $19.95, featuring a straight sheath dress topped by a long-sleeved jacket. Vertically striped in pale blue and white and belted at the waistline, this dress can be worn as a jumper, over a filmy white blouse, as the dress itself is sleeveless.

A three-piece suit of the same material is selling at $25. Highlight of this ensemble is a sereno-suiting overblouse, accented with two rows of large white buttons at the front.

The jacket of the suit is trimmed at the neckline with bands of the sereno and the artificial pockets are highlighted with similar trim.

To look cool on a hot spring or summer day, try this perky shirtwaist dress of seersucker. The crisp material simply refuses to wilt. Belted at the waistline, the front opening is fastened with large white buttons. Huge kangaroo-pouch pockets are an added feature.

If you are in a real hurry some day, and want something that looks smart to put on in a twinkling of an eye, why not don one of the new two-piece suits I've found, priced at $19.95. The sleeves of this ensemble come to just above the elbow and the straight line design of the jacket makes it perfect for a coffee party or downtown shopping.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Follow These Rules If You Plan An Exercise Routine

Too many women find movement a drudgery. They literally drag their bodies through life and never know the joy of free, easy, well-coordinated movement. I think this is one of the greatest benefits of regular exercise.

Today, so many women realize that exercise is of great value because of health and figure as well as energy and grace. Therefore let me give you a few rules if you are considering beginning regular exercise.

1. Always have your heart and blood pressure checked before you start.
2. Begin each exercise period with mild exercise, such as walking about the room or swinging arms and legs back and forth. This avoids strain on the heart.
3. Try to exercise every day.

If even for 10 or 15 minutes. Once-in-a-while exercise is of little benefit.

4. Do your exercises in a smooth rhythmic way, giving plenty of time to the stretch of the exercise.

5. Whenever you take bending exercises, breathe out when you bend over and in when you lift your trunk. This also places less strain on the heart.

6. The way you feel after exercise is the measure of whether or not you are doing too much. After a short rest you should feel refreshed. If fatigue is severe or lingers on, you are doing too much exercise. You may find that exercising is so relaxing that, while this is healthful, you do not do your best mental work afterward. I always exercise after writing my column instead of before.

7. Your exercises will be just as valuable no matter what time of day or night you take them. Do them when it is most convenient for you. They will also be just as effective if you do them in several parts. For instance, you may prefer doing 15 minutes in the morning and 15 at night rather than 30 minutes at one time.

8. Wear unrestricting comfortable clothing when doing your exercises.

If you would like to have my Combination Exercises which correct more than one figure fault with each exercise, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet 5 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Children Victims

MONTREAL (CP)—Of the 110 persons who died last year in the 34,500 fires in Quebec, 50 were children. Fire Commissioner Francois Perreault said the fires caused $54,000,000 in damage and represented an "important increase" over figures for the previous two years.

BE SMART—

A new evening bag appears on the scene—soft satin, carrying its own little pouch so you'll never have to borrow your escort's pocket to cache your lipstick. We were charmed by the smart tortoise shell chain handle and closing.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Buie, 1310 Burleigh Crescent, have announced the engagement of their only daughter, Shirley Anne, to Mr. Barry Frederick Granger, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Granger of Winnipeg. The marriage will take place on Saturday, February 27, at 7:15 p.m. in St. John's Anglican Church with Canon George Biddle officiating. (Jus-Rite Portrait Studio.)

DEAR ABBY...

He's Too Calm!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

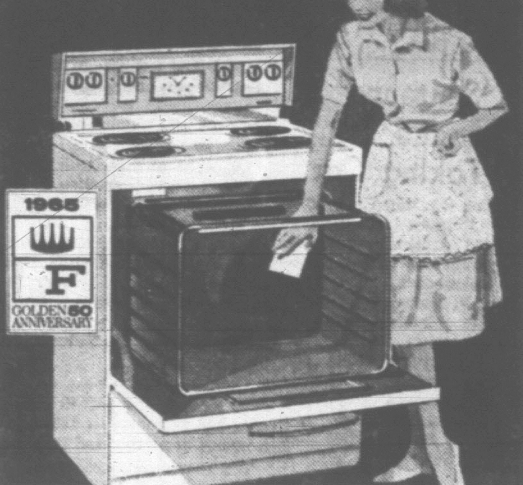

DEAR ABBY: We have three children, 13, 12 and 10. I am worried about our eldest boy. He is about the same size as his 12-year-old brother. In fact, they are often taken for twins. The two younger boys gang up on the older one, who just stands there and lets them beat him up. He doesn't cry, or hit back or even ask for help. This doesn't seem normal to me. I know all brothers fight some times, but this is no fight. He won't even try to defend himself. He is a good student and a very quiet, obedient boy. Could something be wrong with him? I can't figure it out.

MOTHER: DEAR MOTHER: Don't try to "figure it out." Ask your family doctor (or pediatrician) to recommend someone who specializes in child behavior problems, and take the boy there. Something is wrong with a boy who will not defend himself, or retaliate when attacked. P.S. And while you are about it, find out what is making unprovoked aggressors out of the other two boys.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is divorced, has two small children and receives no help from her former husband. (He has remarried and left the province.) I have been taking care of her children days while she works. She makes very good money, but I have a small pension and don't take anything for helping her. My daughter is very quarrelsome. She curses me and the children and treats me like a hired hand. She has been getting me so nervous and upset lately that I can't eat or sleep right, and my health is beginning to fail.

I have had a proposal of marriage from a very nice man I've been going with for two years, but he wants me to promise him that after we are married I will not take the responsibility of caring for my grandchildren any more. He says that is the only way we can be happy. I care a lot for this man, Abby, and want to marry him. But is it fair of him to make me choose between him and my own flesh and blood?

HARD TO DECIDE. DEAR HARD: Marry the Needy Families Helped With Gifts of Food

The sum of $36.75 was spent by the Navy League Chapter, IODE, during the past year for cases of baby and children's food donated to needy families. This was the amount presented by services at home and abroad secretary Mrs. P. E. George in her report at Friday afternoon's annual meeting in the Dominion Hotel.

From the total expenditure of $319.88, $65 was used for hampers and food for needy families, $30 for Korean "Save the Children" funds and $23 to Dr. Whittier's Youth Program in India. Knitted articles, included 10 nursery bags, were donated by members. They also tagged for the Alberni Relief fund.

Educational secretary, Mrs. W. F. Mawdsley, announced that the chapter's $100 bursary had been presented to PO Alan Gillis, Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadets, and $20 had been used to buy books for Central Junior Secondary School. A donation of $10 was sent to the municipal bursary fund. Other donations included: $40.53 for the chapter's two adopted schools in Two Rivers and Copper Mine, B.C., and $10 for the War Memorial fund.

The balance on hand for this year is $339.73, announced treasurer, Mrs. F. J. Nobbs. Receipts totalled $1131.41, with the largest fund-raising project being the Penny Sale, which realized $560. The chapter also received $280 as their share of the IODE festival profits. Disbursements amounted to $1043.42.

Past regent, Mrs. H. Davenport was in the chair.

Special guests at the meeting were municipal regent, Mrs. Elsie Lowthian and regent of Florence Nightingale Chapter, Mrs. Harold Menzies, who were presented with corsages.

Mrs. Menzies conducted the installation of officers. They are Mrs. C. E. Belmes, regent; Mrs. Maurice Smith, first vice-regent; Mrs. A. J. Sparks, second; Mrs. E. Downing, secretary; Mrs. F. G. Nobbs, treasurer; Mrs. Mawdsley, educational secretary; Mrs. Davenport, echoes and immigration and citizenship; Mrs. M. Chattell, standard bearer; Mrs. P. E. George, services at home and abroad; and Mrs. H. English, public relations.

Italian designers continue to demand world-wide attention with their revolutionary ideas. At the left is seen a jumper made from Aerpel, a new leather-like fabric which is made of heavy cotton, finished to give the appearance, feel, shine and softness of leather. At right is seen an exciting Italian fashion that features a volcano-necked wool jersey blouse topping a black velvet skirt. The skirt is printed overall with tiny multi-colored roses and other flowers. There is a purse to match, chain-handled and hooked to the belt. The design is by Lella Sport, the fabric by Legier.

WOMEN APPROACH CABINET

Scrutiny of hospital services will be enlarged if the British Columbia Legislature acts upon one resolution presented to the Cabinet by the Provincial Council of Women at the close of the group's three-day annual meeting, Wednesday evening.

Concerned with the growing lack of hospital beds and nursing staffs, the council recommended that the provincial government conduct a thorough study of hospital services with the objective of providing improved standards of service.

It is also recommended that the government enlist the co-operation of the B.C. Hospital Association, Registered Nurses' Association of B.C., the B.C. division of the Canadian Medical Association and the universities.

In another resolution the council concerned itself with the rising costs of ambulance service. It asked that the service be included under benefits of the Hospital Insurance Act.

The council also dealt with the problems faced by people suffering from chronic ailments that demand rehabilitative treatment or intensive corrective service in a chronic hospital.

They requested the government to negotiate an agreement with the federal government in order to provide outpatient rehabilitative treatments. It suggested that a citizens' implementation committee be set up, comprising major provincial health and rehabilitation groups (both government and voluntary) with the idea of providing complete and properly co-ordinated continuity of care for all with long-term illnesses.

The council further recommended that an activation unit be set up in Vancouver for the treatment of long-term illnesses.

In another resolution, the council criticized health minister, Hon. Eric Martin for the recent poster brought out to combat the rising incidence of venereal disease, objecting that the poster is concerned with only women, ignoring the fact that both sexes are responsible for the growing rate.

It recommended that the minister would be better advised to revise the program and launch a complete program of education, directed at youth as well as adults.

Concerned with facilities for recreation and the need to provide attractive sites for tourists, the council recommended that the government set aside sufficient salt water park sites to ensure adequate accessible areas for recreation.

In other resolutions, the council requested the government to provide adequate finances to enable research to be made on the problem of air pollution, support requests from municipal governments for funds to provide an extended program of subsidized homemaker and housekeeper services and make funds available for the expansion of education services by the Alcohol Research and Education Council.

Guard of Honor Holds Umbrellas When Newlyweds Leave Church

Members of the Solgrium Junior League formed a guard of honor, holding Shower of Dimes umbrellas, when Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Lindsay left St. Aidan's United Church after their recent marriage.

Rev. A. G. MacLeod officiated at the evening ceremony which saw Andrea Clay become the bride of the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lindsay, 4131 San Ardo Place. The bride's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Gordon R. Clay, 1630 Cedar Avenue.

RED AND WHITE

The church was decorated with red gladioli and carnations, accented with white stocks. Red carnations and white ribbons centred the pew markers of white lace hearts.

Mrs. Ruth Powell was organist and Mrs. Margaret Dixon sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony. While the couple and their witnesses signed the register, Mrs. Dixon sang "I'll Walk Beside You."

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride was lovely in a bouffant gown of white nylon, edged with scalloped lace and caught at the front with a lace rose. The lace bodice featured a square scalloped neckline and lily-point sleeves. A floor-length panel train, edged with tiny bows above the waistline, created back interest. Her chapel-length veil was edged with lace and starred with seed pearls and rhinestones. It was held with a headpiece of rhinestones and seed pearls. Only jewelry was a tiny gold filigree cameo, given her by her mother. Red roses formed the cascade bouquet.

VELVET GOWNS

Red velvet gowns, styled with A-line skirts were choice of matron of honor, Mrs. D. Gibson and bridesmaids, the Misses Sherri Clay, Patricia Jackson, Norma Redfern and Kathy Hatcher. Candice Clay made a charming flower girl in a short hooped dress of the same velvet.

All complemented their gowns with red velvet pill box headpieces, topped with white tulle and a white rose. The senior attendants carried cascade bouquets of white carnations while the flower girl had a basket of the same flowers. Their jewelry was crystal drop necklaces, gift of the bride.

Ring bearer, Master Paul Byron Patterson wore a white dinner jacket to match those worn by the best man, Brian Lindsay, and the ushers, John Price, Don Gibson, Ron Black and Des O'Brien. All wore red carnation boutonnières.

Miss Laurel Lindsay was in charge of the guest book at the reception which followed in the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club. Lieut. E. Tudor Jones proposed the toast to the bride and the best man read telegrams from Dartmouth, N.S.; Edmonton and Kelowna.

THREE-TIER CAKE

The three-tier wedding cake was trimmed with red roses and set in a froth of white tulle. Red lace hearts, centred with white carnations, and red candles in silver candelabra completed the table decor. The rooms were decorated with large arrangements of red and white gladioli, carnations and chrysanthemums, flanked with white candles.

Mrs. Eva Calder, Vancouver, and Mrs. Lorne Davey presided at the tea table, which was covered with an heirloom cut-work cloth and centred with red carnations and white freesia. Serviteurs were Mrs. B. Lindsay, Mrs. J. Solomon, Mrs. J.

Price, Mrs. R. Black, Mrs. A. Wedman and Mrs. G. Varley. After dancing the bride's waltz, the couple left on their honeymoon. The bride chose a teal blue suit with toning brocade hat as her going-away ensemble. A white topcoat, black patent accessories and white orchid corsage completed the picture.

On return, the newlyweds will make their home on Pearce Crescent.

Automation Danger Idea Scored by Trio at UBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three University of British Columbia professors sniped Wednesday at the automation theories of New York Professor Robert Theobald, apparently without changing his mind.

Prof. Theobald, who says automation and computers will destroy society unless capitalism is reformed, was participating in a seminar for 30 Vancouver businessmen.

He says the "cybernation revolution" — brought about by the combination of computer and automated self-regulating machines — means unlimited productive capacity and progressively less human labor.

Prof. Len Crouch of the mining and geology engineering department at UBC, said Prof. Theobald's views are extreme.

LACKS DETAILS

Attacking Prof. Theobald's theories because of a "lack of supporting facts, statistics and research" was Dr. Martin Meissner, assistant professor of anthropology and sociology. He questioned that the expansion in productive power implied by automation can be dangerous when most of the world is impoverished.

Prof. J. T. Montague, UBC director of industrial relations, said the economy will adjust to automation and the constant level of 20 per cent of new investment in automation indicates the program is not making great inroads.

All these are familiar arguments, Prof. Theobald answered.

"The failure to achieve a meeting of minds has been just as complete on other occasions," he said.

Prof. Theobald said that within 20 years there will be computers able to carry out any job in which decision-making rules can be set out in advance.

This, he said, threatens not only white and blue-collar jobs but also middle management. He said Wall Street traders now earning $50,000 a year will be out of their jobs when odd-lot trading is computerized, as now planned.

FORMER Turkish ambassador to Britain, Senator Suat Hayri Urganli, 63, has been named premier-designate of Turkey. He was the surprise choice appointed by President Cemal Gursel to succeed Ismet Inonu, whose government was toppled last week.

'BOMB SPREE' PLOTTERS SOUGHT

Quebec Springboard for Terror

NEW YORK (AP) — New York police, the FBI and the RCMP sought possible additional members today of the thwarted terrorist plot to dynamite the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

Authorities refused to comment on reports the search had spread to Cleveland, Detroit, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, Toronto and Montreal.

With the aid of Raymond Wood, 31, a Negro undercover policeman, the dynamite scheme was uncovered Tuesday. Police arrested three American Negroes and a Canadian blonde and charged them with attempting to blow up the three national shrines.

Twenty-two sticks of dynamite, said to have been transported from Canada by one of the four, Michelle Duclos, 28, of Montreal, were seized.

"We know they have made contacts in other cities," Police Commissioner Michael Murphy said of the four. "We have no idea how many people might be involved."

The four accused, including Miss Duclos, a Montreal television commentator, are Robert S. Collier, 28, said to be the leader of the group; Walter A. Bowe, 32, a supporter of the now-defunct fair play for Cuba committee; and Khaleel S. Sayed, 27, a former engineering student who also is charged with disorderly conduct for demonstrating in front of the United Nations building last December.

Ball for the four ranged from $50,000 to $100,000 each. The New York Daily News says the dynamite plot "was hatched at a terrorist meeting of 15 to 20 American extremists last month in northern Quebec." The News story, continued: "According to the news informants, Quebec has been used as a springboard for terrorist plotting against this country. In certain areas of the French-speaking province, there is strong anti-American feeling, and a direct Montreal-Havana air service has made it easier for Castroites . . . to maintain close contact with the Quebec and American fanatics."

TNT Cache Located

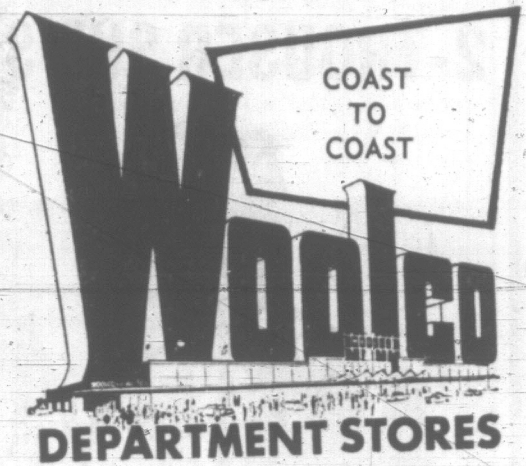

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police raided a North Philadelphia home early today and seized a cache of explosives.

Capt. Clarence J. Ferguson, head of the special investigations squad, said detectives arrested Jack Wheeler, 33, and charged him with receiving stolen goods and storing explosives.

Detectives said they found two one-pound boxes of TNT and various detonating devices.

UNITED APPEAL PROPOSAL WINS SUPPORT OF COUNCIL

NORTH COWICHAN—The time has come for Cowichan to have one united charities appeal.

Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn won the support of Reeve Donald Morton when she made this point at Wednesday's meeting of North Cowichan Council.

Mrs. Dobbyn said she had worked for many appeals in the community, "but we cannot go on much longer with 40 or 50 organizations going round knocking on doors."

Water Line Extension

CHEMAINUS—Fifteen residents who live just south of Chemainus Indian reserve want the Chemainus water system extended to their homes.

They petitioned North Cowichan council Wednesday.

Reeve Donald Morton said council would investigate the cost and see if it was necessary to get a plebiscite vote from present users of the system.

Park Mining Urged To 'Use Resources'

NORTH COWICHAN—Island Chambers of Commerce at their annual convention next month will debate a resolution calling on the government to follow a more liberal policy toward development of mineral resources in public parks.

Duncan-Cowichan chamber adopted the resolution Wednesday.

The convention will be at Campbell River Mar. 22-23. Will Dobson said such development should be allowed where it is proved the amenities would not be permanently damaged. The fish and game "lobby" in the legislature is too powerful, he said.

Don Dowsley, manager of the Shawinigan division of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., said: "I'm a member of a fish and game club but if this province is to be developed as some people want it, then only the rich could get access to these parks."

"It is only industry which gives the common man access by making roads."

NORTH COWICHAN—Coun. Gerry Smith told North Cowichan Council Wednesday he could think of no reason why the customs office should be moved from Chemainus to Duncan—but hundreds of good reasons why it should be left where it is.

Council agreed to support Chemainus Chamber of Commerce protests about the planned moving of the office.

Reeve Donald Morton said it hardly seemed reasonable to move it from a busy port to a place which is not a port.

Mr. Smith said that besides the many lumber ships using the ports of Chemainus and Crofton the harbor facilities were used in the summer by hundreds of pleasure craft.

It was nonsense to have to bring a customs officer from Duncan to clear the many U.S. visitors who came to these waters. It was added cost and a waste of time.

NORTH COWICHAN—Residents here were reminded by North Cowichan council Wednesday there is no intention of making a car road access to Quamichan Lake by way of Henderson Road.

Reeve Donald Morton made this clear when replying to a residents' petition asking for access.

He said the private fence blocking Henderson Road had been removed and the promised pathway cleared. But the road would not be made suitable for cars or trailers because there was no adequate space at the lakeside.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Census takers are out in force in the new District of Campbell River to find out how many people live in the area.

LAST-MINUTE OFFER MAY SAVE COMPLEX

NANAIMO—A last-minute move could save plans for a $1,000,000 recreation complex as part of Nanaimo's centennial project.

The move came Wednesday night from the district school board, only 24 hours after the centennial committee had decided the complex was too big a job for them to handle.

The board indicated they were investigating possible participation in the project.

On Tuesday night the centennial committee learned that the districts of Gabriola Island, Cedar and Northfield were to run their own projects.

The six remaining areas decided the project would be too big for them to handle.

Final cost of the recreation centre could be anywhere between $1,000,000 and $10,000,000.

Purpose of the census is to determine the amount of the per capita grant allowed by the government.

The census will also provide the basis for the centennial grant which is geared to population.

DUNCAN—By dropping a 20 per cent assessment on its members, Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce Wednesday cut the income of the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau by $2,000.

The chamber usually raises around $500 for the bureau.

Duncan city council makes a matching grant of $500. The government then matches the combined figure of $1,000.

Despite some misgiving among chamber members, president Cliff Pascoe said: "We're flat broke until the annual dues start coming in." He added: "Victoria gets 80 per cent of the benefit of the work of the bureau anyway."

Dave Pollock said: "I understand the bureau is in a state of disorganization anyhow."

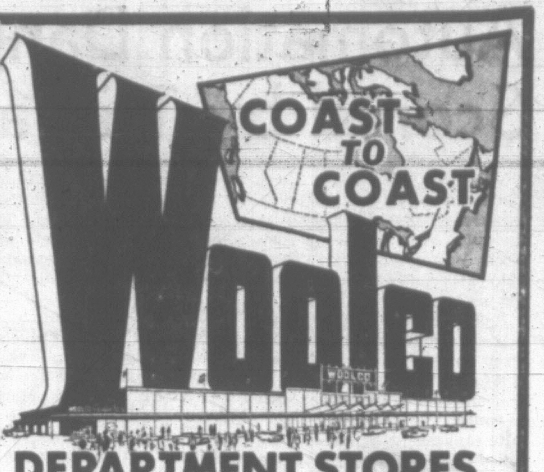

The chamber adopted a 25 per cent increase in its membership dues, an overall rise of 5 per cent to try and put its finances in the black.

CAMPBELL RIVER—A Keremeos man will be principal of the new senior secondary school expected to open its doors here this fall.

John Young, now principal of a 300-student school at Keremeos, has accepted the position effective Sept. 1.

Walter Fogg, now principal of Campbellton Elementary School, has accepted the position of vice-principal.

The school is being constructed in two stages. First stage, costing $350,000, is an academic wing with 13 teaching areas and is expected to be ready for occupancy in September. Second stage is a vocational wing, scheduled for completion in the fall of 1966.

Chamber Again To Tackle Store Hours

DUNCAN—Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce is to have another attempt at organizing uniform store closing hours.

Local retail merchants will be invited to an open general meeting March 24 to discuss the situation.

The chamber was urged to action by President Cliff Pascoe, who said Duncan was unique in the craziness of its shopping hours.

He said: "We represent the majority of city storekeepers and should try to find a solution to this mess—six-day shopping or one uniform closing day."

BIGGEST PROBLEM

Joe Kuzyk said store hours was the biggest single problem the city's retail merchants had and it was because of a lack of action that these people refused to join the chamber.

Don Dowsley said the chamber could not help until the merchants agreed among themselves what they wanted.

Al Van Sacker said it was the chamber's job to make the city a better shopping place but the city council would not enact regulations unless the merchants were agreed.

Will Dobson said: "Several years ago local merchants were unanimous on this issue until the city's biggest store (T. Eaton & Co.) got a contrary directive from head office and that was the end of that."

Lawyer's Ouster Sought By Ruby

DALLAS (UPI)—Jack Ruby's family got his signature on the dotted line Wednesday in order to qualify for a court order dismissing lawyer J. H. Tonnahill from the condemned killer's case.

Tonnahill, one of the original members of the defence team for the slayer of presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, is among a growing number of attorneys to be asked out of the case by the hard-to-please Ruby family.

But Tonnahill insists he isn't a quitter and will not resign the case unless ordered to do so by the courts.

PC CHIEF BLASTS BACK

'Goldwater' Critics Hit

(Times Ottawa Bureau) The party as a reactionary one, he said.
OTTAWA—Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker has lashed out at his Conservative critics, branding them as reactionaries in the Goldwater tradition.

In a national television address Wednesday night, the Conservative leader said that "as long as God gives me strength I will continue to fight for the principles of Macdonald, the principles of a united Canada."

Diefenbaker said he had been "maligned," "condemned" and "attacked from within and without."

"No one since the days of Macdonald has gone through the like," he said. "I don't mind criticism, but when it is done with malicious invective and misrepresentation, the time has come to speak out."

There were elements in Conservative ranks who want to see esty that I have no personal ambitions unsatisfied. Everything that a country could give has been given," he said.

"Why do I carry on in the face of an unparalleled campaign continuing for a period of four or five years? It is because I love Canada."

Diefenbaker said he wanted to continue to serve Canadians and make a further contribution. "I do not intend to be pushed around by clique or clique."

Brain Washing Protested

An army exercise involving more than 600 Canadian troops was called "a disgusting exhibition" Wednesday night at Victoria Labor Council.

The criticism was voiced by Jack Driscoll, president of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council.

The exercise in Alaska, also involving 12,000 U.S. troops, was reported in Monday's Times.

The report referred to psychological bombardment in a prisoner-of-war compound at Fort Greely, Alaska. Prisoners taken during the military exercise were subjected to "torments under simulated conditions."

WAILING BABIES

Wailing babies, barking dogs and distorted music was aired incessantly.

"A man hears that 24 hours a day and he doesn't think straight—that's when we get him," a U.S. colonel was quoted as saying.

Mr. Driscoll said the troops were practising "something we fought against for six years in the last war."

The delegate who raised the matter, John Barbillion of the Machinists, Fitters and Helpers' Union, wanted the labor council to ask the federal government why it was necessary to subject Canadians "to that kind of treatment."

But delegates approved an amendment moved by council secretary A. W. Toorie that the matter be referred to the Canadian Labor Congress.

Other delegates said more information is needed before action taken.

Icefield a Menace

ARGENTINA, Nfld. (CP)—A mammoth icefield, reaching from its birthplace in the Greenland and Labrador seas, has pushed as far south as the Grand Banks and could become a major hazard to shipping.

Sentences For Robbery

Thefts of coins and a chocolate bar resulted in a sentence of eight months definite and four months indefinite for a 15-year-old juvenile Wednesday in city magistrate's court. The term will be served in the young offenders' unit at Oakalla.

The youth broke a window of the Victoria Coin Shop, 841 Fort Ave. 30, 1964, and stole three silver dollars.

He returned Sept. 13, removed the board covering the hole he made earlier and stole six 50-cent and two 25-cent pieces.

His last offence occurred Jan. 28 when he smashed a coffee shop window at 263 Menzies and took a chocolate bar. Damage to the window was estimated at $100.

ORDERED EXPELLED from Syria on charges of spying and offering Syrian army officers $2,000,000 for military information is U.S. Embassy official Walter Snowdon.

LARGE PROVINCE

The Chinese province of Sinkiang, four times larger than California, has a total population of less than 6,000,000.

Change In Inspectors Asked for Shipyards

Shipyard safety inspectors should be employed by the government, not by the yards, Victoria Labor Council delegates were told Wednesday night.

"Asking the shipyards to pay salaries for safety inspectors is like asking bootleggers to pay for policemen to look out for bootlegging," said Len Tinning of the Brotherhood of Painters. He referred to several accidents recently in Victoria shipyards including one where a crane fell injuring a man.

It could have killed a dozen men, said Mr. Tinning, himself a shipyard worker.

A recent meeting of two shipyard unions had recommended that safety inspectors be employed by the government, he said.

Painters' business agent Gus Gildemeister asked why the labor council did not show more interest in such matters, adding "we've got to do something."

Council vice-president Charles Peck said the council is interested in safety and makes recommendation to the B.C. Federation of Labor for action.

Labor Council Questions Arena Lighting Policy

Why are lights over upper seats at Memorial Arena put out between periods of Western Hockey League games?

Victoria Labour Council wants to know, and agreed Wednesday to write the arena commission to find out.

John Schibli of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters said fans were stumbling around in the darkness carrying cups of tea and coffee and he was afraid someone will get scalded in an accident.

It wouldn't cost much to keep the lights on, he said.

Lake Residents
To Control Level

Langford Lake's anti-algae committee agreed Wednesday night to get estimates for a lake level control project as a means of stabilizing flood, drought and growth conditions.

Members of the committee, led by chairman Dirk Okker, 1199 Goldstream, were unanimous in accepting a plan put forward by committee member John F. McLean, 1225 Goldstream.

It entails deepening an outflow ditch at the north end of Langford Lake, emptying into Goldstream, controlled by a spillgate at its mouth on the lake.

Sales Tax
Not Paid?

QUEBEC (CP)—Revenue Minister Eric Kierans told the legislature Wednesday Postmaster-General Rene Tremblay and State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne did not personally pay provincial sales taxes on furniture purchases from a firm which subsequently went bankrupt.

In reply to an opposition question, he said his department is inquiring into the transaction to see whether the sales tax money paid the government by the Union Upholstery Company Limited was the amount due on the purchases.

He said Union Upholstery charged the sales tax to the accounts of the two cabinet ministers. Mr. Kierans said $222.80 was charged to Mr. Tremblay and $131.10 to Mr. Lamontagne.

The cabinet ministers bought the furniture with no down payment from the firm owned by Max and Adolph Selfkind, now in New York.

When the firm declared bankruptcy, Mr. Tremblay said he paid what he owed in a lump sum to the receivers and Mr. Lamontagne said he started paying off the debt in instalments.

Monarchy
Stand Hit

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker Wednesday night attacked the government for not repudiating recent suggestions by some young Liberal groups that the monarchy be abolished.

Speaking on the CBC-TV network program, The Nation's Business, he linked the abolitionist speeches to the government's push for a new flag.

Young Liberal associations and one senior member of the government have spoken in public of abolishing the monarchy, he said. There were also statements by the same groups on "the establishment of a republic in Canada."

"The Conservative party stands for the monarchy," the 69-year-old Conservative leader said, and he did not agree with "dividing and ruling, separating Canadians for political advantage based on fostering friction."

Route March
Program Set
During May

Military route marches to be inaugurated as the Victoria marches for Victoria Day weekend will take place May 21-24, an army spokesman said Wednesday.

Greater Victoria celebrations committee was assured at a meeting Tuesday that the marches would take place as suggested several months ago to Mayor R. B. Wilson by Maj. Gen. John Rockingham, general officer commanding Western Command.

But they may take place without Victoria's home-based rifle regiment, the First Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, which could be standing United Nations duty in Cyprus.

Other military units from western Canada would be expected to take part, however, and the winners would march in the grand parade May 24.

The marches are a form of infantry "rally" in which units compete in covering specified distances, perhaps 50 miles. They are epitomized in the Netherlands with the Nijmegen marches, in which civil and military archers from all over Europe and the British Isles take part.

BATON TESTS

The celebrations committee was told also that the third Vancouver Island baton-twirling competition would be held May 22, rather than during the summer.

The Elks Club confirmed that it will reactivate soap box derby races after a 10-year absence in Victoria, setting the date at May 23 on Cloverdale hill.

In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

From the tone and content of certain back-bench growls from the government side this week, it becomes plain that in spite of Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's assurances, at least a few So-called private members feel provincial grants to municipalities could be more generous.

On Wednesday afternoon, with most cabinet seats empty, Revelstoke SC Arvid W. Lundell leaped heels-first into what shows signs of becoming a minor insurrection.

"I think," said Mr. Lundell, "the paternalistic attitude of the provinces—this province included—which lay down a policy for the municipalities and say in effect, 'Take it and like it,' is not consistent with good government."

I want to say I do not think the municipalities are receiving their fair share, considering the affluent conditions under which we live.

This mouthful, loosed by Mr. Lundell with a conviction which would draw huzzahs from a UBCM convention, was vigorously applauded by a decimated opposition.

(When the cat's away, the mice will play; everyone who could shove off early, including the premier, was scurrying to the testimonial dinner laid on for Mr. Bennett in Vancouver.)

There are in our House, members who blow the big bassoon so fervently in support of government ways and works that they overlook the folks at home.

Mr. Lundell is not of that number. He spoke bravely and well for his constituency, pointing out how district sawmills had been reduced from 12 to two by a forest management licence whose holders float their logs to a distant pulp mill.

Then there was the matter of highways; and here again Mr. Lundell pulled no punches.

"It was five years ago," he declared, "that Highway Minister Gagliardi promised if we elected a Social Credit member, he would commence work on our eastern access. Mr. Speaker, we are still waiting!"

Mr. Lundell was followed by fellow-Scored A. S. Matthews for Vancouver Centre, a veteran legislator who rose with the air of a man about to repair a pranged fender.

"This book," orated Mr. Matthews, with one hand on a pretty-bound export copy of the premier's budget speech, "shines like a star in the firmament of political annals!"

Earlier, we were treated to a choice bit of fang-and-claw in which Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell charged that Liberal Harry McKay, while not an essentially wicked man, had short-circuited the judicial process with his Tuesday J'accuse.

Up like a rocket flew NDP Anthony Gargrave to protest. "The minister," Mr. Gargrave asserted loud and clear, "is a pompous ass!"

Mr. Gargrave retracted on Speaker's order, and subsided to a smoulder.

It has been nice to listen while this or that Scored, Mr. Campbell included, has head-patted North Van Liberal Gordon Gibson for his praise of certain government achievements.

Wiser, I suggest, to fondle a grizzly, as these remarkably trusting gent's may learn before Thursday has sped its course!

DISASTER HITS NORTH B.C. MINE

40 Buried by Glacier

FORTY MEN lie buried beneath a massive snow and ice slide in a mining camp built in this remote northern B.C. valley. This photograph, taken last

80 Survive At Granduc

STEWART, B.C. (CP)—Forty men were buried and between 80 and 90 survived today when a huge glacier slide tumbled down on a camp of the Granduc Mining Company in far northwestern British Columbia.

The site is about 30 miles north of this port community at the head of Portland Canal, some 100 miles north of the north coast city of Prince Rupert.

RCMP S. Sgt. Jack Duggan of the Prince Rupert RCMP detachment reported:

"The slide occurred at 10:16 a.m. (PST). It wiped out Portal Camp and buried 40 men. Some 80 to 90 survived."

"It is not known whether any of the survivors were injured."

A Dakota transport aircraft and a helicopter were ready to take off from the RCAF base at Comox on Vancouver Island as soon as possible. They would wait at Prince Rupert for improvement in weather conditions.

An appeal went out from Stewart to medical authorities at Ketchikan, Alaska, for more morphine—apparently to ease the pain of the injured.

Sgt. Duggan said that an 11-mile tunnel the Granduc Company was building from the mill site to its huge ore reserves was "sealed and it is believed there are men inside." This did not count the 40 buried.

"Bulldozers and other heavy equipment were buried in the slide, so there appears to be no way to get through to those in the tunnel."

He said heavy snow was falling at the remote area and all planes are grounded at Prince Rupert and Annette Island. It was reported the U.S. Air Force was trying to send in a helicopter to the scene.

Word Flashed By PWA Operator

First word of the tragedy was flashed by a radio operator employed by Pacific Western Airlines at the glacier-strip at the campsite.

Radio man Innis Kelly just had time to tell his PWA headquarters in Prince Rupert of the slide before his radio tower apparently crashed to the ground.

He said "several" men were believed trapped by the snow but nothing further was heard from him.

A report was relayed to RCAF Air Sea Rescue in Vancouver and it said between 40 and 50 men were believed trapped in the avalanche.

RCMP, army and provincial government officials were advised of the slide at the big copper property and the tragedy it brought.

Robert Baker, general manager of Granduc in Vancouver, confirmed that 40 men were unaccounted for out of 130 working at the site.

He said the slide knocked out the cookhouse and covered a considerable portion of the portal to the tunnel.

"It is estimated 40 men are unaccounted for," he said. Mr. Baker said the U.S. Coast Guard at the Annette Island base, which is socked in by snow and low visibility, was standing by with quantities of food and blankets. Evacuation would proceed as soon as weather permits, he said.

Dr. Vesey Stewart was in the camp at the time of the avalanche and he and a first aid man, O. Moore, treated those who were injured in the slide but escaped.

QUEBEC MP BOLTS PCs AS REBUKE TO LEADER

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Remi Paul, Conservative member for Berthier-Maskinonge-Delany today left the Conservative party to sit as an independent in open rebellion to the leadership of John Diefenbaker.

Paul, a 43-year-old lawyer and strong supporter of Quebec Tory leader Leon Boucher, rose on a question of privilege at the opening of the House of Commons to announce the move he has threatened to make for several weeks.

Paul, speaking in English and French, said he was leaving not the Conservative party, "but the Diefenbaker party... which unfortunately is now controlled and directed by a single man."

HALL REPORT

Provincial Medicare Plans Urged

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The royal commission on health services recommended today that a universal prepaid medical care plan be operated in Canada on a province-by-province basis under federal co-ordination.

It called also for a set of provincial, regional and municipal advisory councils drawn from the medical profession and the general public to back up the 10

The royal commission, in the second volume of its report to the federal government tabled in the Commons, said health services might vary from province to province, but the objective is "the best possible health care for all Canadians."

"The changes that we envisage... are based on the maintenance of a close relationship between those who provide and those who receive health services, including freedom of choice on the part of the patient and of the physician."

The royal commission, headed by Mr. Justice Emmett Hall of the Supreme Court of Canada, recommended its comprehensive health services program for all Canadians in a 500,000-word first report last June 19.

The 135,000-word second report, completing a 45-month study of 385 briefs, outlined the machinery under which a universal plan might operate.

Operations would have their roots in regional and municipal agencies—perhaps similar to those already existing in doctors' joint practices and local health units. But the royal commission said it would not try to spell out how these local bodies should be organized.

A federal-provincial health ministers conference would meet at least once a year to discuss common health problems.

The federal health department would be shorn of its present welfare responsibilities and become a grant-making and consultative body, still responsible as now for drug information.

In its first report, the seven-member commission, appointed by the former Conservative government, outlined its proposed "health charter for Canadians" and rejected "state medicine."

Instead, the costs of the medical care program would be divided 50-50 by the federal and provincial governments. The federal share would be paid out of general tax revenues. The provincial share would be paid out of provincial taxes, a scale

ATTACKS CONTINUE...

U.S. to Press Bomb Raids on N. Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States evidently has decided to strike military targets in North Viet Nam without waiting for specific attacks by Communist forces in South Viet Nam against which to retaliate. This is understood to be the meaning of President Johnson's statement Wednesday on Vietnamese war policy.

The president spoke of "continuing aggression" by the Communists and "continuing actions" by the United States. He said:

"We must all understand that we will persist in the defence of freedom, and our continuing actions will be those which are justified and those that are made necessary by the continuing aggression of others. These actions will be measured and fitting and adequate."

The U.S. objective in striking at bases in the north is to convince the Communist leaders in North Viet Nam that they cannot win the war in the south except at the risk of destruction of their own country.

Talks scheduled

Possible peaceful settlement of the long guerrilla conflict was foremost among the topics expected to be discussed here by French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville in talks with President Johnson, State Secretary Rusk, and Defence Secretary McNamara.

The French diplomat arrived Wednesday night and was scheduled to meet with Rusk today and with Johnson and McNamara Friday.

Johnson, in his statement Wednesday, emphasized that he does not intend to settle for less than an agreement that would assure South Viet Nam's independence.

U.S. policymakers say privately conditions for such an agreement apparently do not exist yet because they have had no indication the Communist side is interested in negotiations to bring the fighting to an end on terms acceptable to the U.S.

U.S. Library Stormed By Indonesia Rioters

JAKARTA (AP)—Some 700 Communist-led demonstrators stormed the U.S. consulate in Medan, Sumatra, today and tried to seize the American library on the ground floor.

The mob tore down the American flag in the consulate yard, raised the Indonesian flag and pulled down the U.S. shield over the front door.

U.S. Consul Theodore Heavner reported that he called the police as soon as the demonstrators appeared and the police arrived 45 minutes later. He said the police evicted the demonstrators from the library with some difficulty.

No showdown, says Adlai

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson predicted today that the United Nations General Assembly would avoid a U.S.-Soviet showdown, conclude action on essential business and adjourn this afternoon until September.

Commando ships of the United States and Saigon administration shelled Quang-Lap commune in Nghe An province at 12:30 a.m. today. Col. Ha Van Lau, chief of the Communist liaison mission, told the International Control Commission for Viet Nam in Hanoi.

SAIGON (AP)—North Viet Nam charged today that four South Vietnamese commando boats shelled a North Vietnamese village and that two of the raiding boats were damaged by North Vietnamese patrol boats.

The colonel's complaint was reported by Hanoi radio, which said the commando boats were met with answering fire from the shore "by the local armed forces."

Lau protested the attack in a message sent to Indian Ambassador N. A. Rahman, chairman of the ICC. Canada and Poland are the other members.

The broadcast said the raiders headed south and "were intercepted by patrol boats of the navy of the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam, which damaged two of them."

Without the correction the spacecraft would have missed the trailing edge of the moon by 1,136 miles. The manoeuvre came as Ranger VIII was 99,000 miles out on its 234,000-mile journey.

It involved a long series of commands to make the spacecraft twist around in space and fire a direction-changing rocket for 39 seconds, enough to change the spacecraft's course by more than 1,600 miles.

In a 13-minute, 40-second period before crash-landing on the moon's east central portion, Ranger VIII's six television cameras are to snap more than 4,000 pictures of the surface.

Scientists at jet propulsion laboratory said preliminary indications are that the camera-carrying spacecraft will land on or near its target.

Second Person Offered Bribe, Probers Told

OTTAWA (CP)—RCMP Inspector Jean - Paul Drapeau testified today at the Dorion judicial inquiry he was informed after Sept. 24 that someone besides Pierre Lamontagne was offered a bribe to get narcotics suspect Lucien Rivard out of prison on bail.

Insp. Drapeau said he was given this information by then RCMP Sgt. Ronald Crevier who said he had heard it from another member of the force.

The witness said he was told this bribe offer was not made through Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to the immigration minister.

Mr. Lamontagne, acting for the U.S. government in the extradition hearings of suspected narcotics conspirator Rivard, has testified that Denis on July 14 offered him a $20,000 bribe to agree to Rivard's release on bail.

Insp. Drapeau was being cross-examined by Ross Drouin, counsel for the Conservative party who asked whether "other" bribe offers had been made to Mr. Lamontagne.

The witness said an offer had been made so that Rivard could get out on bail but that this offer was not made to Mr. Lamontagne.

IS MOST SPECIFIC

Bribe offers other than the one allegedly made by Denis have been mentioned from time to time before the commission but Insp. Drapeau's testimony was the most specific to date on this point.

Insp. Drapeau testified he thought the police investigation into the allegations against Denis started out wrong but he had to follow orders.

He told the Dorion judicial inquiry that he thought of setting a trap by having Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne meet Denis, then executive assistant to the immigration minister, and "see what was said between the two."

Insp. Drapeau said he told a colleague of this idea Aug. 19. That was when he received his instructions following allegations by Mr. Lamontagne that Denis had agreed to a $20,000 bribe to agree to bail for Lucien Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne was acting for the U.S. government, seeking extradition of Rivard on narcotics charges.

Insp. Drapeau said he was instructed immediately to question Denis and Andre Letendre and Guy Lord, aides to Justice Minister Favreau. Conservative party counsel Ross Drouin asked whether he had thought of setting a trap.

Yes, replied Insp. Drapeau. He had said to a colleague that

U.S., SOVIET SUMMIT TALKS PUT 'ON ICE'

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The upsurge in the Viet Nam crisis has put Washington-Moscow contacts for a Soviet-American summit meeting "on ice," Russian and American sources here said Wednesday.

The Russians have been hinting that President Johnson's plans for a summit meeting with the new men in the Kremlin may be jeopardized by continued U.S. attacks on North Viet Nam.

Johnson said earlier this month he hoped to visit Moscow this year and that Soviet leaders would go to the United States. A Washington report at the time said the two nations had been in high-level contact to work out details of the exchange of visits.

IT WAS ALL FUN AND GAMES when Victoria Symphony instrumentalists left Coal Harbor for Bellingham Wednesday afternoon. But the performers looked much less jubilant when they returned early today. The reception in Bellingham was grand but fog delayed their return.

Symphony Tired — But Triumphant

Tired but triumphant, 22 members of Victoria Symphony Orchestra returned to Victoria at 6:30 this morning after playing to an audience of 1,200 at Bellingham University.

Most of them went straight to work. Delayed by navigational difficulties, they arrived late at the university auditorium Wednesday evening and the performance was held up half an hour.

The huge audience, advised of their troubles, waited patiently and greeted the orchestra with a storm of applause when they rushed in with their instruments.

There was still more applause when the orchestra concluded their performance of the Strauss opera Die Fledermaus with the Canadian Opera Company.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE

This was a repeat of the performance given by both organizations in the Royal Theatre Sunday and Monday—and it was their first appearance in Bellingham.

They left Coal Harbor in high spirits aboard the Victoria motor vessel Blue Fjord at 2 p.m. Wednesday, ran into fog on the voyage south and had difficulty finding a landing in Bellingham Harbor.

They finally located one at Bellingham Yacht Club, but a policeman on duty redirected them to a wharf adjoining a pulp mill.

Unable to find the wharf, they returned to the yacht club, scrambled ashore and telephoned the university. Soon after, they were being rushed to the university in a motor bus. "We had no time for a meal," said French horn player Charles Moore. "But the university served us sandwiches between the acts."

After the performance, the orchestra returned to the motor vessel and sailed for Victoria at 12:30 a.m.

They ran into more fog on the way home and few had any sleep. "It was a wearing night," said Mr. Moore, "but we felt compensated by the wonderful reception we had in Bellingham. It was the most enthusiastic audience I can remember—anywhere."

Schools to Expand Sex Education Plan

By BOB DONAHUE
Times Education Reporter

The Greater Victoria School Board's family life program will be expanded to include all seven junior secondary schools sometime after Easter, district superintendent John Gough said today.

The sex education program was piloted last November at Oak Bay Junior High School with more than 30 Grade 8 students participating.

Mr. Gough said reaction to the program has been good so far and it will likely be expanded to include the 2,100 Grade 8 students in the seven schools.

HIRING MORE DOCTORS

A $5,000 provision for hiring additional physicians to teach the classes is contained in the board's budget estimates for 1965.

"This may be putting the cart before the horse," said Mr. Gough, "but we believe the plan will be approved by parents."

He said the pilot program at Oak Bay will not be completed

NEW CANADIAN POLICY

'Welcome Sign' Out To Skilled Worker

Canada employs no discrimination of race or color in choosing its immigrants, a senior official of the federal department said here today.

But Canada is selective in that it seeks immigrants who have skills necessary to this country, said J. K. Abbott, Ottawa director of the Canadian service of the immigration branch of the federal government.

Mr. Abbott and Pacific region director L. C. Hawkins were interviewed here today prior to their meeting with regional personnel about 20 immigration officers from the B.C.-Yukon area.

Why has Canada so few Negroes if there is no racial discrimination? Mr. Abbott was asked. He was reminded that early last year, Governor George C. Wallace of Alabama, a U.S. segregationist, said here that "Canada is discriminatory, and does not let Negroes settle here."

NOT TRUE

"This isn't true," said Mr. Abbott. "We turn to countries that have large labor-skilled populations."

He said that in countries such as the West Indies there is a smaller percentage of highly-skilled labor available for export.

"And we have a responsibility to the underdeveloped nations; they have," Mr. Abbott added. Are there not a large number of highly-trained Negroes in the United States?

"We receive comparatively few applications from them," he said.

Mr. Hawkins said the same desire to find people whose skills are most needed in Canada sets the policy for Oriental immigration.

Recently in Vancouver, a move was spearheaded by Douglas Jung, a former Vancouver Conservative MP, to bring Chinese laborers to the Fraser delta area as farm workers. The campaign has received no formal recognition by the department, said Mr. Hawkins.

MUST SHOW NEED

If a need is shown for such immigrants and if wages and working conditions offered are adequate, then the proposal would be considered, he stated. "But so far I haven't received any representation from the farmers who would be the employers," he said.

The two officials said that in past years Canada has been most concerned with bringing settlers to Canada, but now the emphasis is on bringing in people who fit into gaps in Canadian manpower resources.

OUTLOOK CHANGED

The future of the Canadian-born worker is the prime concern, they explained. This change in outlook is the reason behind the three-day closed meetings now under way here.

In the period of 1963-64, Canada brought in up to 115,000 immigrants from 27 different countries. Greater industrialization in Europe has not depleted the sources of skilled immigrants, but "the market is very competitive now."

Canada has to change its approach in view of changing world conditions. The department intends to work closely with provincial labor departments and a move to co-operate with the Canadian Labour Congress is probable, the officials explained.

TWISTER'S BALL

Ole Empress Will Rock 'n' Roll

By AB 'KENT

There'll be rockin' at the Empress Saturday night.

The staid old lady of the Inner Harbor will lift her skirts to reveal a modern day cuttin' contest between two rock 'n' roll bands in the ballroom.

Brainchild of four Victoria teen-agers at University of Victoria, the twister's ball could roll the rockers into a jackpot.

'GUT PLUCKERS'

They also engaged a Port Alberni gut-plucking group, the Bel Aires, to come and play.

Now they find they can't advertise on the university campus and are fearful of losing their tab collar shirts.

A sympathizer, Mrs. Elva Radtke, 3685 Kathleen, in whose basement the Take Fours have been rehearsing, said they need a promotion to bail them out and get a crowd Saturday night.

A break-even bill of about $500 stares them in the face and the advance sale tickets total some $54.

One of the group, says Mrs. Radtke, has considered jumping off a building into a teacup to draw a crowd.

Meanwhile, hoping for the best, rehearsals go on, with Bernie playing lead guitar, Cal Batchelor playing bass guitar, Bill Piek electric organ, Bobby Lee on drums and Liverpoolian Phil Infield bleating the Mersey Beat.

Jail Sentence Suspended For Taking Car

A sailor was fined a total of $290 and given an 18-month suspended sentence today resulting from convictions involving a stolen car.

James F. Macready of HMCS Antigonish pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court to theft over $50, driving while suspended and careless driving.

He was stopped Wednesday night on Douglas Street in a car taken 24 hours earlier from Pat's Auto Sales, 470 Esquimalt Road.

Macready was fined $250 for driving while suspended, $40 for careless driving and prohibited from driving anywhere in Canada for 18 months.

Cousins Fined For Joy Riding

Two cousins in the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, were each fined $100 in Esquimalt magistrate's court today for taking a car without the owner's consent.

Alfred MacDonald, 21, and Donald R. MacDonald, 23, of Work Point Barracks, pleaded guilty to the charge.

Alfred was also fined $10 for driving without a licence. Court was told they took an automobile Wednesday from the 400 block Head Street by crossing the ignition wires.

They were stopped early this morning driving on Fraser Street.

Horse Riding Enthusiast, Charles Martin, Dies at 77

Capt. Charles Martin is dead. The grand old man of horse riding died today in Veterans' Hospital.

For more than 30 years he travelled up and down the Island and to take part in jumping events or to show horses.

Up to seven years ago, when he was 70, he rode everywhere on a motor-bike.

Looking every bit the part of a First World War Royal Artillery captain, he was active until breaking his leg in a motorcycle accident in 1958.

Potential Doubled In Rural Areas

By PETE LOUDON

Almost unnoticed by the general public, the strength of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police has been recently increased by 650 men in British Columbia.

Spread throughout every community where there is an RCMP detachment, they have almost doubled the potential of the force in rural areas.

And except for the cost of uniforms, side-arms and training, they haven't cost the taxpayer a cent.

The full story of the creation of the RCMP Auxiliary was told to The Times today by senior officials of the force at B.C. headquarters here.

The auxiliary officers are recruited in the communities in which they live and serve. Given an abbreviated training course, they learn most of their duties travelling on patrols with regular force officers.

The auxiliary, which is expected to grow to a strength of up to 800, swears it members as peace officers with power of arrest. But their main purpose is to create a well-trained reinforcing unit which can be called into service in any emergency or disaster.

They are trained to take over from regular officers in traffic direction and crowd control. But their service does not extend to their employment in civil disputes such as labor strikes, a senior officer emphasized.

ONE-FOR-ONE

The auxiliary was conceived at a time when civil defence organization was given a new role, that of national disaster planning. An order-in-council passed by the B.C. cabinet in 1960 authorized all detachments to recruit one auxiliary for each regular officer.

The full complement has not been attained in all areas. There are six in Colwood but only one at Sooke and one at Sidney. The federal government pays 75 per cent of the costs, the provincial government 15 per cent and municipal governments 10 per cent.

Existence of the auxiliary has not meant any reduction in the 1,500-man regular officer force in B.C.

Not all, but most, are in uniform and sidearms have been ordered but not yet issued. The auxiliary officer wears a standard RCMP uniform with a shoulder patch and a cap badge showing his status.

Although he serves without pay, some of the part-time officers log as many as 100 hours a month in patrols and training.

The 12-week classroom course covers criminal law, discipline, first aid, foot drill, crowd control, traffic control and small arms training. Their practical training takes them on patrols, but only under supervision of a regular officer.

NO RECRUITING DRIVE

While there has been no drive for recruits there has been no shortage. Each applicant must be a respected resident of the area where he serves. Final selection is up to the senior NCO in each detachment, but each must be a British subject.

He must be between the ages of 15 and 55 generally, and stand five feet six to six feet five, with a good build and be well proportioned. He can be married or single with a minimum Grade 7 education. He must submit his fingerprints and have no other emergency commitments.

The auxiliaries have merged so smoothly with the regular force, many British Columbia residents don't know they exist.

AUXILIARY RCMP constable Bob Turner of Colwood is a health branch employee by day, but a policeman in his spare time. He puts in 100 hours a month without pay.

Moonie Guilty 'Manslaughter'

Jury Recommends Leniency; Judge Asks Probation Report

The three-day trial of Gary Allan Moonie, 21, charged with the non-capital murder of his father, ended in a verdict of manslaughter-Wednesday afternoon.

The 12-man jury added a recommendation for leniency, and Chief Justice J. O. Wilson replied:

"You may be sure your recommendation will receive the most serious and sympathetic consideration."

"I have no quarrel with your verdict," he added.

The jury took less than an hour to reach its verdict after listening to a two-hour summation by Chief Justice Wilson.

Addressing a crowded courtroom, the chief justice remanded Moonie in custody for sentence until Friday, Feb. 26.

"I want a probation report and I want to give very careful thought to the sentence."

Moonie had been charged with the non-capital murder of his father, Allan Austin Moonie, 41, by shooting him with a .303 rifle at their home at 170 Hartland Road, Saanich, in the early hours of Nov. 28 last.

The father died in Royal Jubilee Hospital two days later from kidney damage, shock and peritonitis.

'VULNERABLE'

"If a man intended to kill, he would be more likely to aim at the upper part of the body, which is generally more vulnerable," the chief justice said.

"If there is any reasonable doubt as to whether the accused shot his father he must be found not guilty. And if you find it was an accident you must find him not guilty."

"If you conclude he did actually shoot his father, then you have to decide whether he is guilty of murder or manslaughter."

'CAN'T REMEMBER'

The chief justice noted that, in his statements to police, Moonie had repeatedly stated: "I didn't mean to kill him" and he said he did not remember firing the shot which killed his father.

"You may say: 'Poor young devil he has suffered enough. But emotion cannot be allowed to guide a decision in law. You must decide on the evidence whether the accused committed murder or manslaughter.'"

Chief Justice Wilson said it appeared from the evidence that Moonie, Sr., was "not a very pleasant man." He returned home in the small hours of the morning and abused his young daughter (Gail, 14) about giving milk to her cat.

In evidence it was stated that Moonie, Sr., returned home intoxicated and screamed at his daughter after stepping on the cat's milk saucer.

REASON FOR ANGER

Chief Justice Wilson said it appeared the accused had reason to be angry with his father and, according to police evidence, he had said he wanted to hurt him.

The chief justice noted that the accused, in a statement to police, had said his sister was "all kicked up inside" and that

'Finest Principles Of the Law'

The people of Saanich have every right to be proud of their police force, Chief Justice J. O. Wilson said in Assize Court Wednesday.

"I honestly believe they uphold the finest principles of the administration of the law," said the chief justice in reference to two detectives, and three police officers who gave evidence at the trial of Gary Allan Moonie, 21, found guilty of manslaughter in the death of his father, Allan Austin Moonie.

Later the chief justice said: "I was most impressed by the conduct of these police officers. They seemed to be trying at all times to be fair to the accused."

Hugh McGivern, the lawyer defending Moonie, also praised the Saanich police.

"I am convinced these officers did all in their power to be fair to the accused," Mr. McGivern said.

The officers referred to were Detective Sgt. Robin Stewart, Detective Norman Baker, Sgt. Robert Coleman, Constable James White and Constable J. M. Post.

When she began crying her father mimicked her crying. He said he had formed the opinion the accused was "emotionally unstable," but added:

TOLD TRUTH

"Any man who has shot another, especially his father, would be emotionally disturbed. And there is a perfectly valid argument that he would be telling the truth when he was in an upset state."

In his final address to the jury, Crown prosecutor William R. McIntyre said the evidence showed the shooting was "no accident."

It was serving as a department of mines museum at the time.

By Arthur Mayse

From the tone and content of certain back-bench growls from the government side this week, it becomes plain that in spite of Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's assurances, at least a few So-called private members feel provincial grants to municipalities could be more generous.

On Wednesday afternoon with most cabinet seats empty, Revelstoke SC Arvid W. Lundell leaped heels-first into what shows signs of becoming a minor insurrection.

"I think," said Mr. Lundell, "the paternalistic attitude of the provinces — this province included — which lay down a policy for the municipalities and say in effect, 'Take it and like it,' is not consistent with good government."

"I want to say I do not think the municipalities are receiving their fair share, considering the affluent conditions under which we live."

This mouthful, foisted by Mr. Lundell with a conviction which would draw buzzhairs from a UBCM convention was vigorously applauded by a decimated opposition.

(When the cat's away, the mice will play; everyone who could shove off early, including the premier, was scurrying to the testimonial dinner laid on for Mr. Bennett in Vancouver.)

There are in our House, members who blow the big bassoon so fervently in support of government ways and works that they overlook the folks at home.

Mr. Lundell is not of that number. He spoke bravely and well for his constituency, pointing out how district sawmills had been reduced from 12 to two by a forest management licence whose holders float their logs to a distant pulp mill.

Then there was the matter of highways: and here again Mr. Lundell pulled no punches.

"It was five years ago," he declared, "that Highway Minister Gagliardi promised if we elected a Social Credit member, he would commence work on our eastern access. Mr. Speaker, we are still waiting."

Mr. Lundell was followed by fellow-Soured A. S. Matthews for Vancouver Centre, a veteran legislator who rose with the air of a man about to repair a pranged fender.

"This book," orated Mr. Matthews, with one hand on a pretty-bound export copy of the premier's budget speech, "shines like a star in the firmament of political annals."

Earlier we were treated to a choice bit of fang-and-claw in which Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell charged that Liberal Harry McKay, while not an essentially wicked man, had short-circuited the judicial process with his Tuesday-J'accuse.

Up like a rocket flew NDP Anthony Gargrave to protest. "The minister," Mr. Gargrave asserted loud and clear, "is a pompous ass!"

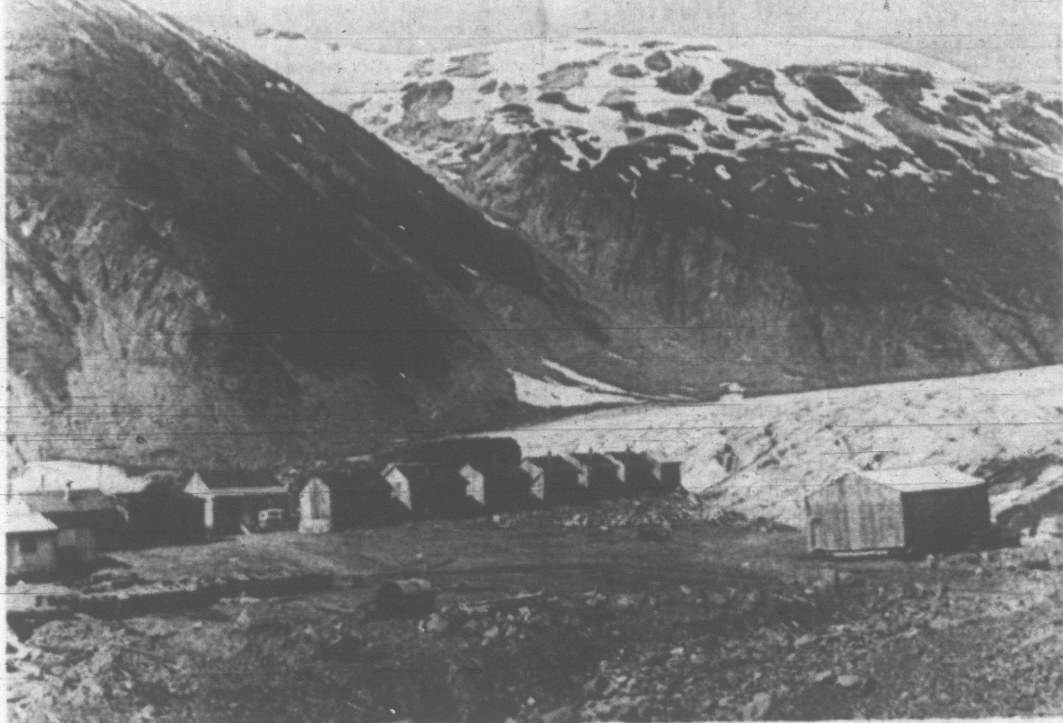

Mr. Gargrave retracted on Speaker's order, and subsided to a smoulder.

It has been nice to listen while this or that So-called, Mr. Campbell included, has head-patted North Van Liberal Gordon Gibson for his praise of certain government achievements.

Wiser, I suggest, to fondle a grizzly, as these remarkably trusting gentes may learn before Thursday has sped its course!

DISASTER HITS NORTH B.C. MINE

80 Survive At Granduc

STEWART, B.C. (CP)—Forty men were buried and between 80 and 90 survived today when a huge glacier slide tumbled down on a camp of the Granduc Mining Company in far northwestern British Columbia.

The site is about 30 miles north of this port community at the head of Portland Canal, some 100 miles north of the north coast city of Prince Rupert.

RCMP S. Sgt. Jack Duggan of the Prince Rupert RCMP detachment reported:

"The slide occurred at 10:16 a.m. (PST). It wiped out Portal Camp and buried 40 men. Some 80 to 90 survived."

"It is not known whether any of the survivors were injured."

A Dakota transport aircraft and a helicopter were ready to take off from the RCAF base at Comox on Vancouver Island as soon as possible. They would wait at Prince Rupert for improvement in weather conditions.

An appeal went out from Stewart to medical authorities at Ketchikan, Alaska, for more morphine—apparently to ease the pain of the injured.

Sgt. Duggan said that an 11-mile tunnel the Granduc Company was building from the mill site to its huge ore reserves was "sealed" and it is believed there are men inside. This did not count the 40 buried.

"Bulldozers and other heavy equipment were buried in the slide, so there appears to be no way to get through to those in the tunnel."

He said heavy snow was falling at the remote area and all planes are grounded at Prince Rupert and Annette Island. It was reported the U.S. Air Force was trying to send in a helicopter to the scene.

LOCATION of glacier slide at Stewart, B.C., near Alaska border, is indicated by arrow. Forty men are reported trapped. Stewart is 800 miles north of Vancouver.

QUEBEC MP BOLTS PCs AS REBUKE TO LEADER

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Remi Paul, Conservative member for Berthier-Maskinonge-Delanaudiere today left the Conservative party to sit as an independent in open rebellion to the leadership of John Diefenbaker.

Paul, a 43-year-old lawyer and strong supporter of Quebec Tory leader Leon Baskin, rose on a question of privilege at the opening of the House of Commons to announce the move he has threatened to make for several weeks.

Paul, speaking in English and French, said he was leaving not the Conservative party, "but the Diefenbaker party... which unfortunately is now controlled and directed by a single man."

HALL REPORT

Provincial Medicare Plans Urged

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The royal commission on health services recommended today that a universal prepaid medical care plan be operated in Canada on a province-by-province basis under federal co-ordination.

It called also for a set of provincial, regional and municipal advisory councils drawn from the medical profession and the general public to back up the 10 operating commissions.

The royal commission, in the second volume of its report to the federal government tabled in the Commons, said health services might vary from province to province, but the objective is "the best possible health care for all Canadians."

"The changes that we envisage... are based on the maintenance of a close relationship between those who provide and those who receive health services, including freedom of choice on the part of the patient and of the physician."

The royal commission, headed by Mr. Justice Emmett Hall of the Supreme Court of Canada, recommended its comprehensive health services program for all Canadians in a 500,000-word first report last June 19.

The 135,000-word second report, completing a 45-month study of 385 briefs, outlined the machinery under which a universal plan might operate.

Operations would have their roots in regional and municipal agencies — perhaps similar to those already existing in doctors' joint practices and local health units. But the royal commission said it would not try to spell out how these local bodies should be organized.

A federal-provincial health ministers conference would meet at least once a year to discuss common health problems.

The federal health department would be shorn of its present welfare responsibilities and become a grant-making and consultative body, still responsible as now for drug information.

In its first report, the seven-member commission, appointed by the former Conservative government, outlined its proposed "health charter for Canadians" and rejected "state medicine."

Instead, the costs of the medical care program would be divided 50-50 by the federal and provincial governments. The federal share would be paid out of general tax revenues. The provincial share would be paid out of provincial taxes, a scale

ATTACKS CONTINUE...

U.S. to Press Bomb Raids on N. Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States evidently has decided to strike military targets in North Viet Nam without waiting for specific attacks by Communist forces in South Viet Nam against which to retaliate. This is understood to be the meaning of President Johnson's statement Wednesday on Vietnamese war policy.

The president spoke of "continuing aggression" by the Communists and "continuing actions" by the United States. He said:

"We must all understand that we will persist in the defence of freedom, and our continuing actions will be those which are justified and those that are made necessary by the continuing aggression of others. These actions will be measured and fitting and adequate."

The U.S. objective in striking

Word Flashed By PWA Operator

First word of the tragedy was flashed by a radio operator employed by Pacific Western Airlines at the glacier strip at the campsite.

Radio man Innis Kelly just had time to tell his PWA headquarters in Prince Rupert of the slide before his radio tower apparently crashed to the ground.

He said "several" men were believed trapped by the snow but nothing further was heard from him.

A report was relayed to RCAF Air Sea Rescue in Vancouver and it said between 40 and 50 men were believed trapped in the avalanche.

RCMP army and provincial government officials were advised of the slide at the big copper property and the tragedy it brought.

Robert Baker, general manager of Granduc in Vancouver, confirmed that 40 men were unaccounted for out of 150 working at the site.

He said the slide knocked out the cookhouse and covered a considerable portion of the portal to the tunnel.

Mr. Baker said the U.S. Coast Guard at the Annette Island base, which is socked in by snow and low visibility, was standing by with quantities of food and blankets. Evacuation would proceed as soon as weather permits, he said.

Dr. Vesey Stewart was in the camp at the time of the avalanche and he and a first aid man, O. Moore, treated those who were injured in the slide but escaped.

U.S. Library Stormed By Indonesia Rioters

JAKARTA (AP)—Some 700 Communist-led demonstrators stormed the U.S. consulate in Medan, Sumatra, today and tried to seize the American library on the ground floor.

The mob tore down the American flag in the consulate yard, raised the Indonesian flag and pulled down the U.S. shield over the front door.

U.S. Consul Theodore Heavner reported that he called the police as soon as the demonstrators appeared and the police arrived 45 minutes later. He said the police ejected the demonstrators from the library with some difficulty.

No Showdown, Says Adlai

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson predicted today that the United Nations General Assembly would avoid a U.S.-Soviet showdown, concluding action on essential business and adjourn this afternoon until September.

A similar demonstration was held in Jakarta Monday, and the semi-official national front seized the American cultural centre and library. The Indonesian government said Wednesday it was taking over supervision of the centre.

It involved a long series of commands to make the spacecraft twist around in space and fire a direction-changing rocket for 59 seconds, enough to change the spacecraft's course by more than 1,600 miles.

In a 13-minute, 40-second period before crash-landing on the moon's east-central portion, Ranger VIII's six television cameras are to snap more than 4,000 pictures of the surface.

The colonel's complaint was reported by Hanoi radio, which said the commando boats were met with answering fire from the shore "by the local armed forces."

Lau protested the attack in a message sent to Indian Ambassador N. A. Rahman, chairman of the ICC. Canada and Poland are the other members.

The broadcast said the raiders headed south and "were intercepted by patrol boats of the navy of the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam, which damaged two of them."

Ranger 8 Takes Aim On Moon

PASADENA (AP)—Ranger VIII straked on toward the moon today after what scientists say was an apparently successful manoeuvre designed to send it crashing onto the lunar surface early Saturday morning.

Scientists at jet propulsion laboratory said preliminary indications are that the camera-carrying spacecraft will land on or near its target.

Without the correction the spacecraft would have missed the trailing edge of the moon by 1,136 miles. The manoeuvre came as Ranger VIII was 99,000 miles out on its 234,000-mile journey.

It involved a long series of commands to make the spacecraft twist around in space and fire a direction-changing rocket for 59 seconds, enough to change the spacecraft's course by more than 1,600 miles.

In a 13-minute, 40-second period before crash-landing on the moon's east-central portion, Ranger VIII's six television cameras are to snap more than 4,000 pictures of the surface.

North Viet Village Shelled From Boats

SAIGON (AP)—North Viet Nam charged today that four South Vietnamese commando boats shelled a North Vietnamese village and that two of the raiding boats were damaged by North Vietnamese patrol boats.

Commando ships of the United States and Saigon administration" shelled Quynh Lap commune in Nghe An province at 12:30 a.m. today, Col. Ha Van Lau, chief of the Communist liaison mission, told the International Control Commission for Viet Nam in Hanoi.

The colonel's complaint was reported by Hanoi radio, which said the commando boats were met with answering fire from the shore "by the local armed forces."

Lau protested the attack in a message sent to Indian Ambassador N. A. Rahman, chairman of the ICC. Canada and Poland are the other members.

The broadcast said the raiders headed south and "were intercepted by patrol boats of the navy of the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam, which damaged two of them."

Wednesday night and was scheduled to meet with Rusk today and with Johnson and McNamara Friday.

Johnson, in his statement Wednesday, emphasized that he does not intend to settle for less than an agreement that would assure South Viet Nam's independence.

U.S. policymakers say private conditions for such an agreement apparently do not exist yet because they have had no indication the Communist side is interested in negotiations to bring the fighting to an end on terms acceptable to the U.S.

Isolation Cell For Juveniles May Be Moved

Relocation of isolation cells at the juvenile detention home is recommended in the January report of superintendent Charles Etchells.

The report was tendered with the superintendent's annual report at city hall Wednesday.

Mr. Etchells said the two existing isolation cells on the home's basement level are "not convenient and not suitable for the purpose."

He said they were constructed as holding places for intoxicated children. He proposes two more cells, for general purposes, to be added to the main floor to the rear of his own quarters.

When superintendent Etchells took on the post last year, the home was almost completed, a joint undertaking of Greater Victoria municipalities.

"I felt from the start these cells should be on the main floor of the building to be more easily supervised," he said.

BUSY MONTH

Mr. Etchells said January was an extremely busy month, handling 33 boys and 12 girls. One case resulted in a willful damage charge against the boy, who in fighting with a policeman caused $75 damage to the building.

The annual report shows 438 juveniles were held, 72 of them girls, and offences were committed in these areas: Victoria 211; Oak Bay 14; Saanich 133; Esquimalt 15; RCMP territory 50; Central Saanich 2; federal Immigration 1.

The Victoria figure is up 110, Saanich is increased 34, Esquimalt 8, and Oak Bay 6.

Theft, breaking and entering were the major offences.

UNDERDOG MAN CHARGED WITH THEFT

VANCOUVER (CP)—David Cowlishaw, 33, who formed a movement called "Underdog" to give aid to persecuted individuals, has been charged with theft of his mother-in-law's cutlery, RCMP disclosed Wednesday.

Cowlishaw, who last year drew attention by hurling a milk carton of cow's blood on the floor of the House of Commons and recently threw ashes at an SPCA meeting here, will appear in court Friday.

RCMP said he was served Tuesday with a summons alleging the theft of the cutlery from a house his mother-in-law owns at Deep Cove. The cutlery, police said, was recovered from a pawn shop.

Interior Land Sales Booming

The boom in agricultural and homesite land sales is shifting from the Peace River country to the central interior according to the annual report of the provincial lands department tabled in the legislature Wednesday.

The report said collections from leases, rentals and sales jumped 27 per cent during 1964 over the previous year to bring in a total revenue of $2,587,110.

Greatest land activity centred in the Prince George to Terrace area. Although still high, interest in Peace River farm lands tapered off during the year because the choice sites with access have been taken up.

The report said the provincial government holds title to 342,621 square miles of land, private owners have 19,751 square miles and the federal government owns 3,883 square miles.

COMMITTEE REPORT

Johnson Street Site Backed For Parking

A Johnson Street site for Victoria's next off-street parking building was recommended Wednesday by a special committee following several months' study.

Recommendation of the special merchants-city council committee will go to aldermen at their next meeting.

It is expected to end speculation and disagreement between downtown factions as to whether Johnson Street or Yates Street would be the better location of the next building.

It is urged that council authorize the acquisition of properties on the north side of the 700 block to make a site for the structure, which may not be built for three years, or when finances become available.

The city has $122,000 in its off-street parking reserve fund, which may swell by another $30,000 this year with current parking meter revenues.

LAND PRICE

Cost of the building would be in the vicinity of $375,000, plus price of the land, in order to accommodate 350-400 cars. City manager Dennis Young

GOD-LIKE FIGURES

Jovial Dane Busy Carver

By MARK DICKINSON

He works with the Gods. In fact, wood carver Nick Sorenson, 46, a resident at the Dominion Hotel, is carving 28 God-like figures for a chalet at Deep Cove.

Born and raised in Aalborg, Denmark, Mr. Sorenson practised woodwork as his profession before he was 10 years old.

His vivid imagination allowed him to produce a wide range of unique figure carvings.

In his home town he set up a shop that was equipped with more than 300 carving tools and six workers.

However, tax rates forced him to move to Canada, and in Stratford, Ontario, he again set up shop.

He became established in the famous theatrical town by producing many statues and props for the Stratford Festival Theatre.

One of his assignments was to sculpture, in wood, a figure of William Shakespeare. This now stands on the theatre grounds.

While occupied there for eight years Sorenson met another Danish wood carver, Ove Nielson, 37.

GOOD TEAM

Mr. Nielson says they make a good partnership. He does the rough work and sanding while Sorenson manipulates a chisel for the finer detail.

Last October the two decided to set up business in Victoria.

"Our wood carvings have had a wonderful reception in this area," said Mr. Sorenson.

Mr. Sorenson possesses only manual carving tools and rents a small shop at the rear of a local garage.

In this shop he works with red or yellow cedar shaping it into a Godly image, a wild life creature, a historic figure or even something that suits his imagination—whatever his customer demands.

Besides statue carving Mr. Sorenson produces "reliefs," a carving of the main feature extended two or so inches from the face of the picture, a hand-carved and painted background.

NO TITLE

The jovial Dane works under no company title. He dislikes any hint of commercialism.

An expert at cabinet making and sign embossing, he is an excellent painter of traditional art.

Mr. Sorenson showed a magazine clipping of a well known race horse and then from a pile of assorted works drew a copy of it in relief carving. The two were identical to the last muscle.

Working alone, Mr. Sorenson claims that he is capable of completing a 6 by 13-inch figure in less than one day.

The eyes and the hair take a good percentage of the time. Mr. Sorenson believes his best work was a relief carving of the "last supper" for a private individual in Stratford.

TAX EVADERS PURLOIN $1 MILLION IN EAST

HALIFAX (CP)—Widespread evasion of fuel taxes was revealed in a report tabled in the Nova Scotia legislature this week by G. I. Smith, finance and economics minister.

The report says the provincial government may have been cheated out of $1,100,000 last year through illegal use of marked dyed gasoline and ineffective attempts to collect taxes on diesel fuel.

Get Fat For Quick Pension

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—How to obtain a retirement pension at the ripe old age of 28, was uncovered by the auditor general Max Henderson and set out in his annual report to parliament tabled Tuesday.

The system is surprisingly simple.

Get fat. Enlist in the armed forces. Show a reluctance to take off weight.

Take your medical discharge, and retire with your service pension.

Canadian army authorities said today that a fully-trained private, married who had been in the force the minimum of 10 years and retired at 28 would receive a pension of $792 per year gross, or $66 per month. It would be taxable.

In 1963 the auditor general noted that in determining pension awards every possible consideration is given to the welfare of the individual serviceman. But he said somewhat wryly that it was, sometimes questionable whether a reasonable balance is struck between fairness to servicemen on the one hand and economy of public funds on the other.

In the latest year under review (1964) by the auditor general several cases were noted of which he cited four.

In the four instances servicemen were awarded full annuities on being retired compulsorily for medical unfitness. Information on the files indicated the reason given for retirement was of secondary importance to others, which, had they been recognized officially, would have resulted in the aggregate in a reduction in capitalized value of the annuities awarded of approximately $45,000.

Each of the servicemen was 28 years old and had served to qualify for pension. In one of the four cases a medical release, was recommended although in the opinion of the medical board the serviceman did not require hospitalization or a active therapy in the foreseeable future.

There was the case of the overweight serviceman, a condition that existed when he joined the forces and said the auditor general "he presumably lacked motivation to regain normal fitness."

Another case concerned an airman who was determined to leave the service on the completion of his current engagement in order to return to school. He had indicated his intention not to re-engage but was granted a medical release apparently to prevent a possible re-engagement.

The fourth case dealt with a medical release following a long period of domestic trouble and eventual psychological disturbance. At the time of his release the serviceman was not incapacitated and the audit office view was that he was actually released to "promote economy and efficiency."

Band Plays Better With Banknote Base

There's more to forming a band than learning the notes of the scale.

There's the slight matter of less musical notes which rustle as they slip across the bank counter.

And they're every bit as important, as Victoria City Police Boys' Band has just found out. For while it lacks none of the first kind its funds are way down low.

To date they stand somewhere between middle C and lower base.

All being well they are aiming for the treble range.

For non-musicians this note rings at around the $10,000 mark.

In charge of collections is Constable Kenneth Horsman of the city force.

It was his idea to form the band in the first place.

So far auditions have been held and the 50-plus junior musicians selected.

First practice session will take place at the city H.Q. on Yates Street Feb. 23.

But before the band can really really swing into action the money is needed to buy instruments and uniforms.

Cost of instruments alone will be around $5,000 or $6,000.

Several businesses and clubs have already been asked to lend an ear to the cause. And not all have been tone deaf.

Victoria Gyro Club this week chipped in a cheque to the tune of $250.

Automation Danger Idea Scored by Trio at UBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three University of British Columbia professors sniped Wednesday at the automation theories of New York Professor Robert Theobald, apparently without changing his mind.

Prof. Theobald, who says automation and computers will destroy society unless capitalism is reformed, was participating in a seminar for 30 Vancouver businessmen.

He says the "cybernation revolution" — brought about by the combination of computer and automated self-regulating machines — means unlimited productive capacity and progressively less human labor.

Prof. Len Crouch of the mining and geology engineering department at UBC, said Prof. Theobald's views are extreme. He said automation is not self-perpetuating, and people will adjust the rate of change to their ability to make automation serve them.

LACKS DETAILS

Attacking Prof. Theobald's theories because of a "lack of supporting facts, statistics and research" was Dr. Martin Meissner, assistant professor of anthropology and sociology. He questioned the expansion in productive power implied by automation can be dangerous when most of the world is impoverished.

Prof. J. T. Montague, UBC director of industrial relations, said the economy will adjust to automation and the constant level of 20 per cent of new investment in automation indicates the program is not making great inroads.

All these are familiar arguments, Prof. Theobald answered.

"The failure to achieve a meeting of minds has been just as complete on other occasions," he said.

Prof. Theobald said that within 20 years there will be computers able to carry out any job in which decision-making rules can be set out in advance.

This, he said, threatens not only white and blue-collar jobs but also middle management. He said Wall Street traders now earning $50,000 a year will be out of their jobs when odd-lot trading is computerized, as now planned.

'BOMB SPREE' PLOTTERS SOUGHT

Quebec Springboard for Terror

NEW YORK (AP) — New York police, the FBI and the RCMP sought possible additional members today of the thwarted terrorist plot to dynamite the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

Authorities refused to comment on reports the search had spread to Cleveland, Detroit, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore Toronto and Montreal.

With the aid of Raymond Wood, 31, a Negro undercover policeman, the dynamite scheme was uncovered Tuesday. Police arrested three American Negroes and a Canadian blonde and charged them with attempting to blow up the three national shrines.

Twenty-two sticks of dynamite, said to have been transported from Canada by one of the four, Michelle Duclos, 28, of Montreal, were seized.

"We know they have made contacts in other cities," Police Commissioner Michael Murphy said of the four. "We have no idea how many people might be involved."

The four accused, including Miss Duclos, a Montreal television commentator, are Robert S. Collier, 28, said to be the leader of the group; Walter A. Bowe, 32, a supporter of the now-defunct fair play for Cuba committee; and Khaleel S. Sayed, 22, a former engineering student who also is charged with disorderly conduct for demonstrating in front of the United Nations building last December.

Bail for the four ranged from $50,000 to $100,000 each.

The New York Daily News says the dynamite plot "was hatched at a terrorist meeting of 15 to 20 American extremists last month in northern Quebec."

The News story continued: "According to the news informants, Quebec has been used as a springboard for terrorist plotting against this country. In certain areas of the French-speaking province, there is strong anti-American feeling, and a direct Montreal-Havana air service has made it easier for Castroites . . . to maintain close contact with the Quebec and American fanatics."

TNT Cache Located

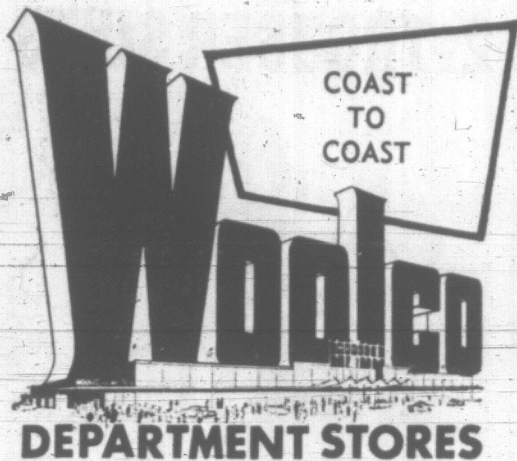

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police raided a North Philadelphia home early today and seized a cache of explosives.

Capt. Clarence J. Ferguson, head of the special investigations squad, said detectives arrested Jack Wheeler, 33, and charged him with receiving stolen goods and storing explosives.

Detectives said they found two one-pound boxes of TNT and various detonating devices.

OTTAWA—Remi Paul, Conservative member for Berthier-Maskinonge-Delanaudiere today left the Conservative party to sit as an independent in open rebellion to the leadership of John Diefenbaker.

Paul, a 43-year-old lawyer and strong supporter of Quebec Tory leader Leon Balcer, rose on a question of privilege at the opening of the House of Commons to announce the move he has threatened to make for several weeks.

Paul, speaking in English and French, said he was leaving not the Conservative party, "but the Diefenbaker party... which unfortunately is now controlled and directed by a single man."

Probers Told

OTTAWA (CP)—RCMP Inspector Jean - Paul Drapeau testified today at the Dorion judicial inquiry he was informed after Sept. 24 that someone besides Pierre Lamontagne was offered a bribe to get narcotics suspect Lucien Rivard out of prison on bail.

Insp. Drapeau said he was given this information by then RCMP Sgt. Ronald Crevier who said he had heard it from another member of the force.

The witness said he was told this bribe offer was not made through Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to the immigration minister.

Mr. Lamontagne, acting for the U.S. government in the extradition hearings of suspected narcotics conspirator Rivard, has testified that Denis on July 14 offered him a $20,000 bribe to agree to Rivard's release on bail.

Insp. Drapeau was being cross-examined by Ross Drouin, counsel for the Conservative party who asked whether "other" bribe offers had been made to Mr. Lamontagne.

The witness said an offer had been made so that Rivard could get out on bail but that this offer was not made to Mr. Lamontagne.

HALL REPORT

Provincial
Plans Urged

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The royal commission on health services recommended today that a universal prepaid medical care plan be operated in Canada on a province-by-province basis under federal co-ordination.

It called also for a set of provincial, regional and municipal advisory councils drawn from the medical profession and the general public to back up the 10 operating commissions.

The royal commission, in the second volume of its report to the federal government tabled in the Commons, said health services might vary from province to province, but the objective is "the best possible health care for all Canadians."

"The changes that we envisage... are based on the maintenance of a close relationship between those who provide and those who receive health services, including freedom of choice on the part of the patient and of the physician."

The royal commission, headed by Mr. Justice Emmett Hall of the Supreme Court of Canada, recommended its comprehensive health services program for all Canadians in a 500,000-word first report last June 19.

The 135,000-word second report, completing a 45-month study of 385 briefs, outlined the machinery under which a universal plan might operate.

Operations would have their roots in regional and municipal agencies—perhaps similar to those already existing in doctors' joint practices and local health units. But the royal commission said it would not try to spell out how these local bodies should be organized.

Provincial advisory bodies would be appointed by provincial governments from panels nominated by professional bodies, voluntary organizations, universities, municipal, farm, business, labor and other representative associations.

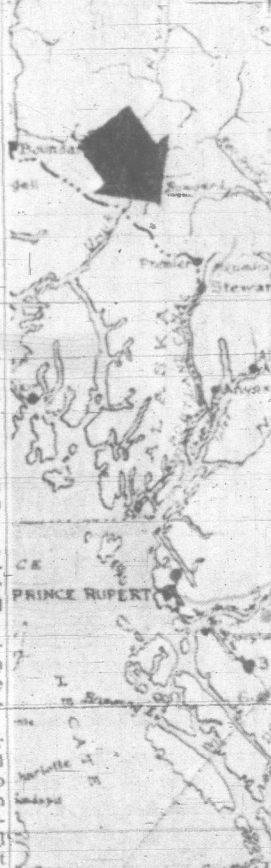

The work of the provincial commissions would be co-ordinated by a federal-provincial health services co-ordinating committee, assisted by national health planning and health sciences research councils.

The 10 provincial health services commission would take over existing provincial hospital insurance plans. This would ensure proper development of health services on an integrated basis, "responsive to those who use and those who provide health services," and would keep duplication of services to a minimum.

Insp. Drapeau said he was instructed immediately to question Denis and Andre Letendre and Guy Lord, aides to Justice Minister Favreau. Conservative party counsel Ross Drouin asked whether he had thought of setting a trap.

Yes, replied Insp. Drapeau. He had said to a colleague that

Aid Pledged
By Alaska

The state of Alaska has pledged all the help possible to the avalanche-struck area at Granduc mine in northern B.C.

In the legislature this afternoon Provincial Secretary Wesley Black said the governor of Alaska had offered medical aid and rescue teams to work in the stricken area.

Highways Minister Gagliardi said the governor had been in constant touch since the first news of the avalanche and had informed him that Alaska ferries and heavy road equipment was standing by for use if required.

Mines Minister Brothers said outside the House that the slide—mostly snow and ice—was as great in size as the slide cutting the Hope-Princeton Highway.

Weather Delays
Rescue Planes

STEWART, B.C. (CP)—Forty men were buried and between 80 and 90 survived today when a huge glacier slide tumbled down on a camp of the Granduc Mining Company in far northwestern British Columbia.

The site is about 30 miles north of this port community at the head of Portland Canal, some 100 miles north of the north coast city of Prince Rupert.

RCMP S. Sgt. Jack Duggan of the Prince Rupert RCMP detachment reported:

"The slide occurred at 10:16 a.m. (PST). It wiped out Portal Camp and buried 40 men. Some 80 to 90 survived.

"It is not known whether any of the survivors were injured."

A Dakota transport aircraft and a helicopter was ready to take off from the RCAF base at Comox on Vancouver Island as soon as possible. They would wait at Prince Rupert for improvement in weather conditions.

An appeal went out from Stewart to medical authorities at Ketchikan, Alaska, for more morphine—apparently to ease the pain of the injured.

Sgt. Duggan said that an 11-mile tunnel the Granduc Company was building from the mill site to its huge ore reserves was "sealed" and it is believed there are men inside. This did not count the 40 buried.

"Bulldozers and other heavy equipment were buried in the slide, so there appears to be no way to get through to those in the tunnel."

He said heavy snow was falling at the remote area and all planes are grounded at Prince Rupert and Annette Island. It was reported the U.S. Air Force was trying to send in a helicopter to the scene.

Word Flashed By PWA Operator

First word of the tragedy was flashed by a radio operator employed by Pacific Western Airlines at the glacier strip at the campsite.

Radio man Innis Kelly just had time to tell his PWA headquarters in Prince Rupert of the slide before his radio tower apparently crashed to the ground.

He said "several" men were believed trapped by the snow but nothing further was heard from him.

A report was relayed to RCAF Air Sea Rescue in Vancouver and it said between 40 and 50 men were believed trapped in the avalanche.

RCMP, army and provincial government officials were advised of the slide at the big copper property and the tragedy it brought.

Robert Baker, general manager of Granduc in Vancouver, confirmed that 40 men were unaccounted for out of 150 working at the site.

He said the slide knocked out the cookhouse and covered a considerable portion of the portal to the tunnel.

Mr. Baker said the U.S. Coast Guard at the Annette Island base, which is socked in by snow and low visibility, was standing by with quantities of food and blankets. Evacuation would proceed as soon as weather permits, he said.

Dr. Vesey Stewart was in the camp at the time of the avalanche and he and a first aid man, O. Moore, treated those who were injured in the slide but escaped.

In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

From the tone and content of certain back-bench growls from the government side this week, it becomes plain that in spite of Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's assurances, at least a few So-called private members feel provincial grants to municipalities could be more generous.

On Wednesday afternoon, with most cabinet seats empty, Revelstoke SC Arvid W. Lundell leaped first into what shows signs of becoming a minor insurrection.

"I think," said Mr. Lundell, "the paternalistic attitude of the provinces - this province included - which lay down a policy for the municipalities and say in effect, 'Take it or leave it,' is not consistent with good government."

"I want to say I do not think the municipalities are receiving their fair share, considering the affluent conditions under which we live."

This mouthful, loosed by Mr. Lundell with a conviction which would draw huzzahs from a UBCM convention was vigorously applauded by a decimated opposition.

(When the cat's away, the mice will play; everyone who could shove off early, including the premier, was scurrying to the testimonial dinner laid on for Mr. Bennett in Vancouver.)

There are in our House, members who blow the big bassoon so fervently in support of government ways and works that they overlook the folks at home.

Mr. Lundell is not of that number. He spoke bravely and well for his constituency, pointing out how district sawmills had been reduced from 12 to two by a forest management licence whose holders float their logs to a distant pulp mill.

Then there was the matter of highways; and here again Mr. Lundell pulled no punches.

"It was five years ago," he declared, "that Highways Minister Gagliardi promised if we elected a Social Credit member, he would commence work on our eastern access. Mr. Speaker, we are still waiting."

Mr. Lundell was followed by fellow-Socred A. S. Matthews for Vancouver Centre, a veteran legislator who rose with the air of a man about to repair a pranged fender.

"This book," orated Mr. Matthews, with one hand on a prettily-bound export copy of the premier's budget speech, "shines like a star in the firmament of political annals!"

Earlier we were treated to a choice bit of fang-and-claw in which Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell charged that Liberal Harry McKay, while not an essentially wicked man, had short-circuited the judicial process with his Tuesday J'accuse.

Up like a rocket flew NDP Anthony Gargrave to protest. "The minister," Mr. Gargrave asserted loud and clear, "is a pompous ass."

Mr. Gargrave retracted on Speaker's order, and subsided to a smoulder.

It has been nice to listen while this or that Socred, Mr. Campbell included, has head-patted North Van Liberal Gordon Gibson for his praise of certain government achievements.

Wiser, I suggest, to fondle a grizzly, as these remarkably trusting gents may learn before Thursday has sped its course!

N. VIET NAM ATTACKS CONTINUE

U.S. to Press Bomb Raids

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States evidently has decided to strike military targets in North Viet Nam without waiting for specific attacks by Communist forces in South Viet Nam against which to retaliate.

This is understood to be the meaning of President Johnson's statement Wednesday on Vietnamese war policy.

The president spoke of "continuing aggression" by the Communists and "continuing actions" by the United States. He said:

"We must all understand that we will persist in the defence of freedom, and our continuing actions will be those which are justified and those that are made necessary by the continuing aggression of others. These actions will be measured and fitting and adequate."

The U.S. objective in striking at bases in the north is to convince the Communist leaders in North Viet Nam that they cannot win the war in the south except at the risk of destruction of their own country.

TALKS SCHEDULED

Possible peaceful settlement of the long guerrilla conflict was foremost among the topics expected to be discussed here by French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville in talks with President Johnson, State Secretary Rusk, and Defence Secretary McNamara.

The French diplomat arrived Wednesday night and was scheduled to meet with Rusk today and with Johnson and McNamara Friday.

Johnson, in his statement Wednesday, emphasized that he does not intend to settle for less than an agreement that would assure South Viet Nam's independence.

U.S. policymakers say privately conditions for such an agreement apparently do not exist yet because they have had no indication the Communists side is interested in negotiations to bring the fighting to an end on terms acceptable to the U.S.

North Viet Village Shelled From Boats

SAIGON (AP) — North Viet Nam charged today that four South Vietnamese commando boats shelled a North Vietnamese village and that two of the raiding boats were damaged by North Vietnamese patrol boats.

Commando ships of the United States and Saigon administration shelled Quynh Lap commune in Nghe An province at 12:30 a.m. today, Col. Ha Van Lau, chief of the Communist liaison mission, told the International Control Commission for Viet Nam in Hanoi.

The colonel's complaint was reported by Hanoi radio, which said the commando boats were met with answering fire from the shore "by the local armed forces."

Lau protested the attack in a message sent to Indian Ambassador N. A. Rahman, chairman of the ICC. Canada and Poland are the other members.

The broadcast said the raiders headed south and "were intercepted by patrol boats of the navy of the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam, which damaged two of them."

U.S., SOVIET SUMMIT TALKS PUT 'ON ICE'

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The upsurge in the Viet Nam crisis has put Washington-Moscow contacts for a Soviet-American summit meeting "on ice," Russian and American sources here said Wednesday.

The Russians have been hinting that a President Johnson's plans for a summit meeting with the new men in the Kremlin may be jeopardized by continued U.S. attacks on North Viet Nam.

Johnson said earlier this month he hoped to visit Moscow this year and that Soviet leaders would go to the United States. A Washington report at the time said the two nations had been in high-level contact to work out details of the exchange of visits.

Ranger 8 Takes Aim On Moon

PASADENA (AP) — Ranger VIII straked on toward the moon today after what scientists say was an apparently successful manoeuvre designed to send it crashing onto the lunar surface early Saturday morning.

Scientists at jet propulsion laboratory said preliminary indications are that the camera-carrying spacecraft will land on or near its target.

Without the correction the spacecraft would have missed the trailing edge of the moon by 1,136 miles. The manoeuvre came as Ranger VIII was 99,000 miles out on its 234,000-mile journey.

It involved a long series of commands to make the spacecraft twist around in space and fire a direction-changing rocket for 59 seconds, enough to change the spacecraft's course by more than 1,600 miles.

In a 13-minute, 40-second period before crash-landing on the moon's east central portion, Ranger VIII's six television cameras are to snap more than 4,000 pictures of the surface.

No More for Walker

LONDON (Reuters) — Former foreign secretary Patrick Gordon Walker, who resigned from the government after two unsuccessful attempts to win a seat in the House of Commons, declined an invitation to try again. He was asked to contest a "safe" Labor party seat of Aberlilly, South Wales, in a forthcoming by-election.

POSSUMS A MENACE

ABBOTSFORD, B.C. (CP) — Possums, unknown in British Columbia 15 years ago, now are becoming a menace, says Abbotsford game warden Jack Lay.

The cat-size predators feed on duck and pheasant eggs and kill young birds. The first seen in this area was found dead on a road in 1961.

"Now we trap about 60 a month. They are so thick at present that only disease will cut them down."

U.S. Library Stormed By Indonesia Rioters

JAKARTA (AP) — Some 700 Communist-led demonstrators stormed the U.S. consulate in Medan, Sumatra, today and tried to seize the American library on the ground floor.

The mob tore down the American flag in the consulate yard, raised the Indonesian flag and pulled down the U.S. shield over the front door.

U.S. Consul Theodore Heaver reported that he called the po-
